2 ARE KILLED, 10 INJURED IN ROAD CRASHES

Mrs. Suzelle Carroll and Corp. Mack Marosy Are Victims.

NUMBER OF AUTOS INVOLVED IN WRECK

Guardsman Returning From Camp at Time; Norman, Hurt Friday, Dies.

A man and a woman were killed and ten persons were injured in automobile accidents on highways near Washington yesterday afternoon. A second woman died from injuries received Friday.

The dead are Mrs. Suzelle Carroll, about 50 years old, of 43 V street northwest, killed in a crash on Defense highway; Corporal Mack Marosy, of 1314 Eleventh street northwest, a member of the Twenty-ninth Division of Military Police and of the District of Columbia National Guard, who was fatally injured in a collision on the Rockville pike, and Mrs. Anice L. Bayne, 74 years old, who was injured last week.

Mrs. Carroll was riding in a car with her husband, Frank S. Carroll, 54 years old, a clerk in the War Department, when it was struck head-on by a car driven by a colored man, according to witnesses. Mr. Carroll and a 14-year-old son, Norman Carroll, also in the car, were injured.

Mrs. M. E. Smoot, of 904 Massachusetts avenue northeast, another passenger in the Carroll machine, sustained a broken right leg and lacerations of the head. The three injured were taken to Pinehurst Sanitarium at Mount Rainier by Dr. Maynard J. Simmons, superintendent of the sanitarium, who happened to be near the scene of the accident.

Involved Other Autos.

The collision involved a number of other automobiles in the heavy line of traffic between here and Baltimore. Eight persons, riding in two separate cars, were injured. They are: Catherine Swain, 28 years old, of Baltimore, Md., lacerations of the scalp, neck and back and contusions of the left knee; George Swain, 33 years old, of Baltimore, lacerations of the left forearm, hand and left knee; Floyd Lamble, of Baltimore, reported to be the driver of the car, lacerations of the forehead; Mildred C. Schwartz, 25 years old, of 1811 Wyoming avenue northwest, lacerations of the left hip and left leg, and Mary Coxe, of Germantown, Pa., fractured rib and ankle and lacerations of the back.

The latter two girls were in one machine while the others made up a party in a separate car.

Mr. Carroll received a possible dislocation of the left shoulder and lacerations of the head. His son sustained cuts about the mouth and head.

Identity of the driver of the car alleged to have caused the mass collision had not been learned early last night.

Returning From Camp.

Corpl. Marosy was fatally injured while returning to his home from a two weeks' encampment at Camp Albert Ritchie, Md. Marosy, who was the only occupant of his car, was bringing Government equipment back to National Guard headquarters when he collided with a car driven by Ewel Bean, of Rockville, Md. Witnesses to the accident, including Walter Johnson, jr., son of the manager of the Washington Ball Club, told Maryland police that Bean's car was proceeding on the wrong side of the road.

Two hours later an official Army car, operated by Warren Hughes, of 807 Tenth street northeast, while proceeding to the scene of the accident for an investigation, struck a car driven by Stanley Colinge, of 527 Sixth street southeast, at the entrance to the Woodmont Country Club. Although both cars were damaged, no one was injured in this accident.

Both Marosy and Bean, the drivers of the cars involved in the fatal accident, were removed to Georgetown Hospital by passing motorists and other members of the National Guard. Marosy died a half hour

Copenhagen Fliers Are Safe in North

Preston and Collignon Radio Arrival After Being Unreported 2 Days.

Detroit, Aug. 23 (A.P.).—Radio messages to the Transamerican Air Lines Corporation here today from its Copenhagen-bound fliers, Edwin L. Preston and Robert H. Collignon, reported their safe arrival at Portland Promontory, Post Hanson, Hudson Bay, Quebec.

The fliers had been unreported for two days, since they left Cochrane, Ontario.

The message received here said the plane was in good condition, but that the fliers probably would remain at the promontory until Tuesday, then take off for Wakeham Bay, near the Straits of Labrador.

Third Degree Charge Is Denied by 23 Police

Officials Advance No Theory as to How Prisoner Was Injured, but Precinct Heads Admit Finding Blood on Suit Held as Evidence.

Police officials, after taking 23 statements from men at the First Precinct Station who were on duty during the entire time James Harker, 24 years old, of 701 North Capitol street, was under arrest, said yesterday they were at loss to understand how the young man had his eye blackened, and back marked with long stripes, which Harker said were left by a length of rubber hose.

Harker's clothing, which he said he wore while undergoing the beating, is flecked with "about five small spots of blood," police officials admitted yesterday. They said they did not return the wearing apparel to the young man because the clothing was held for evidence in the case in which Harker is accused.

While Capt. William E. Holmes and Inspector Louis Stoll declined to make public the verbatim statements made by a lieutenant, several sergeants, station clerks, precinct detectives and privates, they declared that all 23 men categorically denied that Harker had been beaten with a hose, struck by fists, or mistreated in any way.

The young man was treated by a physician Saturday night after his release from the First Precinct Station for a badly injured eye, a number of abrasions on his back and injuries to his legs.

He said he received these wounds when six policemen, including a precinct detective, gave him the "third degree," as they forced him into an admission that he robbed a place of business at 727 North Capitol street Thursday night of $200.

Inspector Stoll insisted he was particularly anxious to get at the bottom of the affair, but declared that any investigation he might make was being balked by the young man's attorney, S. McComas Hawken, who had hidden Harker away and refused to allow him to be interviewed by police officials.

Inspector Stoll said he invited Mr. Hawken to bring his client to the police station to identify the six men who allegedly participated in the beating, but that Mr. Hawken declined to bring Harker to the station again.

Then, Inspector Stoll said, he asked to interview Harker in the attorney's office, with Mr. Hawken present, and that Mr. Hawken first agreed to this procedure, but later called him back and declared that he had decided not to let the police see his client before the preliminary hearing in the housebreaking case, which is set for today.

On the other hand, Mr. Hawken said last night that he could see no reason for allowing police to talk to Harker again before the hearing.

"If the police officials do not show enough interest in their department

HOOVER TO GET PLEA FROM U.S. SHIP OWNERS

Will Be Asked to Reopen Wheat and Coffee Deal With Brazil.

ASSOCIATION LIKELY TO ASK INTERCESSION

Companies, Facing Loss of Huge Contracts, Plan for New Step.

By EDWARD T. FOLLIARD.

The plight of American steamship owners, who are faced with the loss of a huge contract—the transportation of 25,000,000 bushels of wheat to Brazil and of 1,050,000 bags of coffee from Brazil to the United States—will be described to President Hoover upon his return from his Rapidan Camp today.

The President is to be asked to have the deal between Brazil and the United States reopened so that an agreement can be entered into whereby American ships will be used in hauling the wheat and coffee.

Invades Big Revenue.

The 25,000,000 bushels of wheat and the 1,050,000 bags of coffee represent between 125 and 150 cargoes—cargoes which will mean a revenue to the ship owners of between $150,000 and $2,000,000.

The American Steamship Owners Association, which represents the owners of 90 per cent of the commercial ships flying the American flag, is scheduled to hold a meeting in New York today, and the expectation is that it will send an appeal to President Hoover to intercede.

Merchant Marine Ignored.

As was explained in The Washington Post yesterday, the wheat-coffee barter was consummated between the Federal Farm Board and the Brazilian government without any thought of the American merchant marine.

Not only did the Federal Farm Board fail to insert a provision in the contract providing that the wheat and coffee should be transported in American bottoms, but it agreed that Brazil should take care of the transportation.

Clark's Acquittal Fails by One Vote

Hung Jury Is Discharged After Deliberating for 68 Hours.

Los Angeles, Aug. 23 (A.P.).—A jury which, members said, failed by but one vote to acquit David H. Clark, former deputy district attorney, charged with the murder of two Los Angeles politicians, was discharged here today after 68 hours of deliberation.

Clark, accused slayer of Herbert Spencer, editor of a political magazine, and Charles Crawford, wealthy real estate man, was on trial for killing Spencer. He was returned to jail for future action of the prosecutor's office, expected to be a retrial on the Spencer murder charge.

Jefferson Davis, one of the jurors, said, "We took ten ballots. The first three were 10 to 2 for acquittal. On the fourth ballot, the vote changed to 11 to 1 for acquittal. We stood that way for 48 hours."

German Aviatrix Lands At Irkutsk, in Siberia

Moscow, Aug. 23 (A.P.).—Fraulein Marga von Etzdorf, German flier, landed at Irkutsk, Siberia, today on her solo flight from Berlin to Tokyo, the Tass Agency reports.

DO-X to Leave Miami For North Tomorrow

Miami, Fla., Aug. 23 (U.P.).—Officers of the DO-X decided today to start the giant flying boat toward New York about 8 a. m. Tuesday.

Passengers and crew were entertained today at a civic reception, after which 700 persons went out in launches to view the DO-X, lying a mile and a quarter off shore.

If weather is favorable officers of the craft expect to reach Charleston, S. C., late Tuesday and arrive in New York Thursday.

U.S. Troops Guard Town After Fires

Two Churches in East Texas Oil Field Razed by Incendiarism.

Kilgore, Tex., Aug. 23 (A.P.).—National Guardsmen and Texas Rangers late today were placed on guard in Kilgore, following an outburst of incendiary fires and threats of others in this east Texas oil boom town, quarters of military occupation of the area.

Kilgore's two churches were razed within two hours today. Later gasoline-soaked bags started fires at a seed house and gin and under the structure housing a wholesale grocery concern. They were quickly controlled.

County officers were advised anonymously by telephone they "had better watch" their jail, a building of flimsy frame construction. A special guard was thrown about it immediately.

Brig. Gen. Jacob F. Wolters, in general command of the oil-field area under a martial-law proclamation which shut down 1,600 wells in the east Texas field, joined in the inquiry.

HOOVER AND GIFFORD GO OVER RELIEF PLAN

Discuss Aid Organization at Rapidan; Other Moves Are Started Over U. S.

(Associated Press.)

With cold weather only a few months away, highly diversified and widspread activity has developed in the realm of unemployment relief.

President Hoover devoted the week-end to an intensive study of the problem with Walter S. Gifford, his new director of relief, at the chief executive's Rapidan Camp.

Gov. Roosevelt was at work on a message on the subject to be delivered to a special session of the New York Legislature which will convene Tuesday.

In Detroit, Senator Couzens offered $1,000,000 for the assistance of the city's jobless with the provision that $9,000,000 be raised from other sources.

A conference on unemployment relief was scheduled to begin today at Memphis, Tenn., on a call by Gov. Murray of Oklahoma. The program to be submitted by Murray has not been announced.

The United States Chamber of Commerce committee appointed to study relief was putting the finishing touches on its findings and its plan preparatory to submitting them to President Hoover by September 1.

A committee from the National Electric Light Association was studying the possibilities of guaranteeing employment to public utility workers for a given time to remove the fear of dismissal.

Many governors and State superintendents of instruction were fostering a "back-to-school movement" for unemployed falling within the school age. President Hoover's emergency committee for employment was encouraging the idea.

1 DEAD AS BROOKLYN GANG WAR FLAMES

Two Seriously Wounded as Men in Car Open Fire; Police Redouble Efforts.

New York, Aug. 23 (A.P.).—Gang warfare flamed in Brooklyn tonight when a carload of gunmen shot down three men on a sidewalk, killing one and critically wounding the other two.

The men were standing at a corner when a sedan carrying five men sprayed them with bullets. The gunmen's car escaped before police arrived and removed the wounded to a hospital.

The new outbreak came just as the precarious condition of 13-year-old James Giordan, who may be the second child to die from stray bullets fired in Friday's robber chase, tonight spurred the mobilization of public agencies in a campaign against gunmen.

Giordan lay in a hospital with a bullet pressing dangerously close to his heart. A sudden movement in bed would be fatal, surgeons said.

Among the six persons killed in the chase was the 4-year-old daughter of a city fireman, who today appeared in danger of losing his sight from wounds he suffered in the shooting. The condition of most of nearly a dozen others who were shot in the mad pursuit was encouraging.

Police officials, spurred by the loss of the lives of two patrolmen, will seek an appropriation of $100,000 with which to equip cruising squad cars with radio sets, so they may be dispatched to the scene of an outbreak immediately. It was half an hour before any of the cruising shotgun squad joined Friday's chase.

Commission Clears Aliens Of Excessive Crime Rate

Wickersham Group Finds Persons Born Abroad Guilty of Less Lawlessness Here in Relation to Population Than Either Native Whites or Negroes.

(United Press.)

The latest report of the Wickersham Commission presents evidence to absolve foreign-born residents from the charge of lawlessness, but perhaps transferring it to their American-born children.

Residents of this country actually born abroad commit fewer crimes in proportion to their numbers than do citizens born within the United States, the report finds.

The real problem is the American-born son of foreign-born parents, the commission suspects. This child often drifts into crime through loafing on the streets while his honest, hard-working parents are busy. The commission was unabe to determine definitely the accuracy of that theory, but recommended that some agency carry further that phase of the investigation.

The report is the last of 14 made by the Wickersham Commission. It was made public yesterday at the White House.

A special study of Federal prohibition prosecutions showed that the foreigners were just as frequent offenders as native-born Americans. The percentage of foreigners accused was found to conform closely to the percentage of foreigners in the population. But Italians and Mexican prohibition law violators were found to be more than twice as numerous as their population percentage warranted. Hence, the report found, the percentage of these nationalities arrested for dry law violations is more than twice that of natives, and of most other nationalities.

The commission's experts reached their conclusions from study and tabulation of 4,846,707 cases of individual offenders, included in lists of arrests, prohibition indictments and convictions, and commitments to various prisons and jails.

The commission in reporting these findings said they showed that the immigration policy of the future may be decided entirely on economic and social grounds. It recalled prejudice and attacks on new immigrants and commented: "Each generation of immigrants has had to be freshmen in

$1 OFFERED FOR OIL IN KANSAS, IS REPORT

Pool-Shutdown Order May Be Withdrawn, Says Gov. Woodring.

Topeka, Kans., Aug. 23 (A.P.).—Success in a midcontinent area effort to obtain a dollar a barrel for petroleum through an arbitrary shutdown of production, was indicated today when Gov. Harry H. Woodring said a major purchasing company had offered to raise its price to that amount.

Gov. Woodring declined to reveal the name of the company but said there was a possibility that an order of the Kansas Public Service Commission, declaring a shutdown tomorrow of the Ritz-Canton oil pool production, might be withdrawn, at least temporarily.

Yesterday, in connection with announcement of the Ritz-Canton order, Gov. Woodring said he was in "complete accord" with the governors of Texas and Oklahoma, who have declared martial law to enforce a complete shutdown of certain oil areas.

Gov. W. H. (Alfalfa Bill) Murray, who first called out the military in Oklahoma, announced he would enforce his order until oil reached a dollar a barrel. Petroleum then was selling for as little as 10 cents a barrel in the midcontinent territory.

Gov. Woodring said today that the unidentified company offering to pay the dollar quotation was negotiating with other major purchasers to determine whether they would meet the price.

Amy Johnson Hops Off In Tokyo for England

Miss Johnson, who flew here via Siberia and accompanied by a mechanic, departed at 4:54 a. m. (2:54 p. m. Sunday, E. S. T.) in her puss moth plane. She was the first woman to fly the Siberian route to Japan.

4 Killed, 20 Injured In Auto-Truck Collision

Drummondville, Quebec, Aug. 23 (A.P.).—Four persons lost their lives and 20 others were injured in a collision between a motor truck and an automobile near here tonight.

LINDBERGHS REACH NEMURO AFTER FOG

Complete Next to Last Leg of Flight Following Night on Island.

Nemuro, Japan (Monday), Aug. 24 (A.P.).—Col. and Mrs. Charles Lindbergh brought their powerful black monoplane to rest on Nemuro Harbor at 7:51 a. m. today (5:51 p. m., Sunday, E. S. T.), successfully completing the next to the last leg of their hazardous flight from the Eastern United States to Tokyo.

They came here from Annoro Lake, on Kunashiri Island, 50 miles to the north, where they spent the night after they were unable to land here yesterday because of heavy fog. This incident occurred about 5 p. m. Sunday (3 a. m., Sunday, E. S. T.), after a 200-mile flight from Shana, Iturup Island, in the southern Kuriles. The Lindbergh plane then circled the city time and again, seeking an opening through the fog. But once more the "white darkness" defeated them.

At 4:45 p. m. (2:55 a. m. E. S. T.) the Ochiishi Radio Station asked them if they were still flying over Nemuro.

"Descent impossible," Anne Lindbergh, radio operator of the plane, answered. "Clouds and dense fog." Later she wirelessed that the plane had only an hour's gasoline left. The message was incomplete and it was believed the couple had turned northward.

There followed a long suspense, during which the plane's radio was not heard.

Finally came the faint dispatch, "Descended, but don't know where we are," and at 5:56 p. m. (3.56 a. m. E. S. T.): "Stay overnight here. Will communicate Ochiishi at 6 a. m. Monday (4 p. m. Sunday E. S. T.)."

Subsequently their landing place was identified as Lake Annoro.

The fliers hopped off from the lake at 7:23 a. m. Monday (5:23 p. m. Sunday, E. S. T.), completing the flight to Nemuro, where they stepped upon the soil of Japan proper for the first time, in 28 minutes.

Their reception at Kunashiri was probably the most simple of any during the colonel's present flight. The postmaster, acting as host, showed the flying couple around the fish hatcheries, located here.

Later they did ample justice to the dinner of rice, fish, beer and apples and returned to their plane to spend the night.

Eccentric Weather to Begin Leaving Washington Today

Winds and Sweeping Rains Will Move to Seaboard, Bureau Predicts, in Issuing Storm Warnings; Farmers in Easton and Talbot County Suffer.

Eccentric weather which has made Washington and the greater part of the East shiver for the past three days will begin to depart, it was forecast by the Weather Bureau last night.

The winds and sweeping rains will move to the seaboard to agitate sailors and seacoast folk from Newfoundland to the Virginia Capes, according to the prediction. Storm warnings issued yesterday prepared the seaboard. The unpleasantness will extend as far as Texas, probably until tomorrow, it is expected, when the invader from the Arctic is expected to move out to sea and to obscurity.

Forecaster W. R. Stevens, of the Weather Bureau, believes the stifling stretches of warm weather that characterized last month and the early part of August will not return to Washington this summer. The forecaster expects a number of warm days, but not in succession. He admitted that the unusual cool weather might mean the beginning of fall, but added that this is not predictable. The forecaster regards the chilly weather as a slightly unusual situation in a summer nearer normal than last year's drought months.

Thoug a virtually steady rain fell on Washington from 8 o'clock Satur-

M'DONALD CABINET COLLAPSE IS NEAR; COALITION REGIME MAY BE SOLUTION

Retirement of Labor Government Is Expected Today in High Circles, Following Extraordinary Session Last Night.

MEETING ENDS AFTER PREMIER CONFERS WITH KING IN PALACE

Communique First Promised, Then Held Up on Return From Buckingham; Leaders Later Discuss Organization of Three-Party Rule, Reports Say.

London, Monday, Aug. 24 (A.P.).—A national government in which all three of the principal British parties will be represented seems a possible outcome of the British political crisis after a hectic day of conferences, alarms and semisensations yesterday.

The MacDonald government has not resigned, but it was believed early this morning in the best informed circles that its resignation is in contemplation.

Lobby correspondents in close touch with today's developments say the formation of a national government was discussed by leaders of the parties after the cabinet meeting broke up at 10 Downing street late last night.

Resignation of Cabinet Expected Today.

In the same circles it was asserted that the government's resignation probably would occur today. It was emphasized, however, that there was no official confirmation of this, or any other similar report, at present.

A report that the government was about to resign followed upon a long cabinet meeting tonight, one of the first Sunday sessions of the ministry since the war, when Prime Minister MacDonald motored hurriedly to Buckingham Palace shortly after 10 p. m. and conferred for 20 minutes with King George. The prime minister left a cabinet session to go to the palace, but the cabinet adjourned immediately after he returned.

Leaders of the Conservative and Liberal parties, including Stanley Baldwin, Neville Chamberlain and Sir Herbert Samuel, entered into a conference with the prime minister in Downing street after the adjournment of the cabinet. It was ten minutes after midnight when Baldwin and Chamberlain left the prime minister's offices.

Opposition Within Cabinet.

Reports that the prime minister encountered strong opposition within the cabinet to his economy proposals came tonight with considerable weight of authority. Best informed commentators said they could find nothing inherently improbable in the suggestion that the prime minister now is turning toward the notion of a national government and that the subject was debated in his midnight interview with opposition party chiefs.

When the prime minister returned from his late visit with the king it was reported a statement would be issued from Downing street within a few minutes. After the opposition leaders had conferred with him, however, it was intimated the prime minister had changed his mind about issuing a communique and no statement on the government's position could be expected until some time today.

Sir Herbert Samuel, who left No. 10 just after midnight, said: "There is no statement to make tonight."

Baldwin and Chamberlain left by the back door and correspondents who were waiting at the prime minister's residence a half hour after midnight were told that Mr. MacDonald had gone to bed.

Sir Josiah Stamp a Caller.

Among the callers at Downing street during the evening was Sir Josiah Stamp, noted economist, who was accompanied by two companions, believed to be financial experts. The economist did not leave until after midnight and it was generally assumed his visit had to do with new taxation measures which the prime minister was believed to have incorporated in new proposals for the

GOVERNMENT DENIES ALL GANDHI CHARGES

79 Delhi Pact Allegations Specifically Answered by India Regime.

Simla, India, Aug. 23 (A.P.).—The government of India tonight replied to charges of Mahatma Gandhi and the Indian National Congress that the government had violated the Delhi pact, under which the campaign of civil disobedience ended, with a sweeping denial of the charges made by the congress.

The government's answer was divided into two parts, the first answering specific charges and complaints and the second replying to general charges.

The government's statement declared that the total number of complaints, "the majority of which are local and comparatively trivial," is 79.

The general tenor of the replies of the local governments to the first schedule of complaints alleging specific breaches of the pact is that many of the complaints do not come within the scope of the treaty at all and that in many other cases the facts show no breach of the settlement.

In two or three cases, it was stated, ample reparation has been made, while in other cases the governments have gone out of their way to take liberal administrative action outside of the scope of the settlement.

The government's general conclusion, it was declared, is to establish that the utmost has been done to observe the settlement honorably and that instances to the contrary are so few and of such trivial character as not to warrant the charges of the congress.

One of Ghandi's complaints concerned the posting of additional police in a certain village. To this the government replied that in the last

Fall From Window Kills Officer's Wife

Bride of Lieut. Comdr. Price, of U.S.S. Lexington, Dies After Party.

San Francisco, Aug. 23 (A.P.).—Mrs. George Price, Coronado, Calif., wife of the lieutenant commander of the U. S. S. Lexington, died today as the result of a fall from her apartment on the fourth floor of a hotel here. The accident, police said, followed a party attended by several other persons, all connected with the Navy. Police said liquor was served at the party and that they found a quantity in the apartment.

Reconstructing events after the guests had departed, officials said Mrs. Price apparently had gone to bed but later arose, groped about in the dark and either fell or stumbled through the window, carrying with her a chair she had grasped in an apparently frantic attempt to save herself.

Mrs. Price was the former Miss Daisy Beury, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Beury, of Charleston, W. Va. Her marriage to Lieut. Comdr. Price took place at Coronado last July 1.

Family of 4 Wiped Out In Grade-Crossing Crash

Jacksonville, Ill., Aug. 23 (A.P.).—A family of four was killed today when their automobile was demolished by a Wabash Railroad train at a country lane crossing. The dead: Mr. and Mrs. Walter Bozarth and their children, Mildred, 11, and Mary Ellen, 5.

They were on their way to church when the engine of their automobile stalled on the tracks. A fast St. Louis-bound passenger train smashed into the car before any one had time to jump.

DISEASE AND SNAKES INVADE FLOOD AREAS

Medical Aid Rushed to Zones in Mexico Devastated by Overflows.

Mexico City, Aug. 23 (A.P.).—Spread of disease and an invasion of serpents have added to the horrors faced by survivors of the recent floods in Vera Cruz, Tamaulipas, San Luis Potosi and Guanajuoto, caused by cloudbursts and overflowing of the Tamesi, Panuco and tributary rivers.

Dispatches from the flood regions today said the waters had receded from most of the territory after submerging large zones of fertile farm lands, oil fields and dozens of villages, but yellow fever, dysentery and other diseases had broken out among thousands of survivors.

Hordes of snakes were treversing the mudcovered sector looking for dry ground and attacking everyone in their path, the dispatches added.

Bodies of human victims and cattle were reported strewn about the region. The survivors were said to be too busy taking care of their personal needs to bury the dead.

This condition has led to rapid spread of disease. Medical brigades are being rushed into the zone to clean it up. Troops have been sent to several of the more populated regions to prevent looting in the villages from which the waters have receded.

No accurate account of the dead has been received, but it is estimated more than 100 lives were lost.

The property damage is estimated in millions of dollars, crop and cattle destruction in the Jaral Zone of Guanajuato, alone having mounted to more than $1,000,000.

A cloudburst between Mexico City and Puebla yesterday washed out a large section of the main highway and destroyed a number of farm houses, but there were no casualties.

Field for Cement Sales Found in South America

(Associated Press.)

Potential cement sales prospects along the east coast of Central America and in Venezuela and Colombia were described yesterday by Joseph Ulmer, of the minerals division of the Commerce Department.

Referring to the Latin-American market in general, Ulmer pointed out the continent imports nearly half of its cement and that before the World War the United States shipped an important percentage of this. He attributed present nonparticipation of the United States largely to price.

"If quality were the outstanding basis," he said, "United States brands would encounter much less resistance, especially as the Americans approach more nearly a single-standardized product. * * * Local production is limited by cost and accessibility of raw materials and by limited capital. Unofficial estimates place the minimum annual capacity of an individual plant in Latin America at between 75,000 and 100,000 barrels. * * * Mining, highways, port works, general municipal improvements and other public and private projects in Latin America during the last few years have required cement. The central highway system of Cuba has demanded large quantities, as have rehabilitated earthquake and hurricane zones. With improvement in price, it is thought that an opportunity exists for the reentry of the United States in the Latin-American market for the first time in years."

Georgians Enact Bills by Governor

Full Program Favored Is Passed Before Assembly Adjourns.

Atlanta, Ga., Aug. 23 (A.P.).—After an all-night session, the Georgia General Assembly adjourned shortly before 6 a. m. today, with a record of enacting into law every piece of legislation approved by the State's youthful governor, Richard B. Russell, jr.

Early morning sunshine flooded the senate chamber, as the last measure, the appropriations bill, was approved. A short time previously the House passed the bill almost unanimously.

Included in the work of the legislature was passage of a departmental reorganization measure, cutting the number of State Departments and bureaus from 12 to 10, redistricting the State from 12 to 10 congressional districts to meet a reduction necessitated by census measures. The three major items of the session, reorganization, redistricting and appropriations, did not get through until the last day. Clocks in legislative halls were stopped shortly before midnight Saturday.

day night until 8 o'clock last night, only a quarter of an inch was registered.

The temperature never got above 65 degrees yesterday. From 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon until 6 o'clock last night, the thermometer remained at 59 degrees and rose to 60 at 8 o'clock last night. At 10 o'clock it fell to 57.

Eastern Maryland and the Chesapeake Bay country have been lashed severely by the stormy weather since Thursday. Farmers in Easton and Talbot County have suffered severely. Corn fields were flattened by a gale early yesterday, which means that the bent stalks will have to be cut down by hand, causing a big loss. Tomatoes were inundated and heavily laden branches of peach trees and other fruits were forced to the ground by the rain.

Cellars of a great many houses in Easton and the surrounding country were flooded, electric light wires were blown down, trees were blown across the public roads in Talbot County and roadbeds were flooded to a depth of from 3 to 5 feet, making motor travel dangerous.

Chesapeake Bay was churned with waves, giving it the resemblance of a midocean in stormy weather, which made ferry travel difficult. The two ferries of the Annapolis-Claiborne lined braved the angry waters throughout the day, making one trip in the morning and three in the afternoon, running considerably behind schedule. Tardiness of the ferries caused trains on the Washington, Baltimore and Annapolis line to run slightly behind schedule.

Female Beauty Is Seen Sacrificed to Nicotine

By JOHN J. DALY

OUT of the ages, womanhood and the beauty of the fair nymphs whose charms enchant the domain of man's existence have stirred the immortal soul of the poet and the painter, touched alike the heart strings of the emperor and the court clown. The sparkling eye, the pretty head, the pensive mouth, the glowing cheeks! These have been the boon of mankind since the world began.

Now American womanhood places its beauty on the sacrificial altar of the fell goddess Nicotine. At least this is the charge of one who should know—Mrs. M. B. McGavran, of Kansas City, president of the American Association of Cosmeticians. Cigarette smoking, avers the chief priestess of all the beauty experts, is giving American womanhood a "bloodhound facial droop." Alas that such words should be applied to the glorious American female physiognomy!

"Women smokers' faces are growing sharper," the priestess told the cosmeticians in convention assembled out in Chicago. "Lips are becoming pallid, corners of the mouth sag, cheeks commence to sink and develop twitching habits and the eyes acquire a blank stare."

* * * *

SAY not so! Let us see thy sparkling eye, O Cynthia, where love assembles and the summer night grows softer by thy glance, the dew of summer day sparkling with delight in the sunshine of thy smile.

Woe to the world if the high priestess of cosmetics speaks the truth. "The feminine physiognomy," she says, "is becoming permanently altered by cigarette smoking. The face has the habit of mirroring the reflections of its homeliest members, and it will be the children of present-day mothers who will suffer most."

So the smoking sins of the mothers shall be visible in the distorted visages of children, even to the fourth generation.

Keats, in Endymion, summed up the sacredness of it all in one sentence: "A thing of beauty is a joy forever."

* * * *

THIS is what the world not only wants, but expects, as its divine right, of womanhood—and if American women, who think, perhaps, they are being kind to their Adam's apples, will only stop, pause, reflect and digest the terrible warning given by the crowned cosmetician of the homeland, the fell goddess, Nicotine, will confine her activities, as of the past, to staining the lips and fingers of manhood, and leave the maidens in their unblemished beauty in the dales of Arcady.

'Twas Sir Walter Raleigh who first courted the deceitful goddess, Nicotine, as a visitor to these shores, where the Indians smoked the pipe of peace, but the gallant and courtly gentleman had no idea to what length the goddess would go in weaving her sorceries. Now the bloodhound facial droop stares from the boudoir mirror into the horrified face of feminity, and clutches with yellow fingers at the soft throat of Cynthia.

Milady, beware of the dog!

LATIN TRADE SLUMP FIGURES ARE ISSUED

Argentinian and Brazilian Imports From U. S. Cut the Most Heavily.

(Associated Press.)

Reduction by half of Argentinian and Brazilian imports of American goods during the year ended June 30, 1931, was said yesterday by the Commerce Department to have accounted for two-thirds of the shrinkage of United States exports to South America during that period.

Low prices received for Latin-American products were said to have caused Latin-American imports of American goods to decline about 39 per cent. Central American imports of United States goods, the department said, fell off about 35 per cent, while Mexican and Cuban declines were 38 and 43 per cent, respectively.

Other declines in South America, the department announced, with the exception of Peru, tapered to 26 per cent in Chile.

U. S. Imports Off Also.

Similarly, United States imports of Latin-American products were shown to have fallen off sharply. Smaller purchases of hides and skins, unmanufactured wool, meat products and flaxseed brought imports from Argentina off 67 per cent. Chilean exports to this country were 44 per cent less. Brazilian export values to the United States went down with the price of coffee.

The department released figures showing United States exports to and imports from Latin-American countries for the 1922-26 period, the 1927-31 period, and 1929-30 and 1930-31 periods, respectively, as follows:

Mexico—Exports, $132,500,000; $114,700,000; $138,100,000; $85,400,000; imports: $153,000,000; $113,300,000; $101,600,000; $59,400,000.

Soldiers Accused Of Starting Fight

Two Men Are Arrested at Dance Hall on Highway in Fairfax County.

Joseph Levanda, 23, and Burton Cote, 25, soldiers stationed at Fort Myer, Va., were arrested early yesterday by Sheriff E. P. Kirby and Deputy Henry Magarity, after they allegedly started a free-for-all fight and had broken up a dance at Ilda, on the Lee-Jackson highway in Fairfax County.

According to the sheriff, the two men, accompanied by two other soldiers in uniform, got out of a taxi in front of the dance hall and started fighting bystanders. Residents began to repel the invasion with ax handles, knocking out two of the soldiers. The sheriff arrived when the fight was in full swing, and in attempting to arrest Levanda and Cote was cut about the face. The men were placed in the Fairfax County Jail.

They were charged with being drunk and disorderly and were released on $25 collateral each last evening for trial tomorrow morning.

QUIET RULES CUBA; REFORMS SPURRED

Lack of Leadership Is Main Drawback in Reported Revolt Renewal.

Havana, Aug. 23 (A.P.).—President Gerardo Machado today resumed action on the inauguration of constitutional reforms, a program interrupted by the Cuban uprising, while quiet in the provinces reinforced the government's belief the revolution had been halted.

The president had a conference with Representative Enrique Recio, of Camaguey, and instructed him to proceed immediately with the reforms.

At the same time he reiterated that his attitude toward the revolt leaders and their followers was "pardon rather than condemn," and expressed a wish to avoid further bloodshed. He again offered amnesty last night to rebels who would voluntarily lay down their arms.

The president sent a message of congratulation to Ambassador Harry F. Gugenheim on the occasion of the latter's birthday.

There was talk of further trouble as soon as the scattered rebel forces could organize, but the problem of lack of leadership was the main drawback. It was doubted that some one would be found to take the place of former President Mario G. Menocal, captured rebel leader, who is under heavy guard at Cabana Fortress, along with Col. Carlos Mendieta and other principals in the uprising.

A number of lesser figures in the revolt already have been given their freedom.

Catalizo Collazo, brother of a senator and one of the moving spirits in the revolt in Oriente Province, was arrested there last night and was being brought to Havana with three other prisoners seized by troops.

Revolutionary embers still smolder in Oriente and it was considered probable President Machado would leave a heavy force of troops there.

(Associated Press.)

The State Department was informed yesterday by Ambassador Guggenheim that quiet appeared to prevail in Cuba.

This was the first report from the American Ambassador since Friday, when he said the capture of the rebel stronghold, Gibara, by Federal forces and the loyalty of the army and navy presaged the end of the revolution.

Ambassador Ferrara was on his way to Washington late yesterday from New York, where he arrived last week after a hurried return from Europe.

(United Press.)

Cuban Ambassador Orestes Ferrara arrived here last night from Europe and New York and expressed the opinion that the Cuban revolution "is over." He announced his intention of returning to Geneva in "about ten days."

The ambassador reached here at 7:30 and was greeted at Union Station by the entire Cuban Embassy staff. His arrival passed without incident. He will return to Europe to participate in the League of Nations assembly meeting in September.

Old Methods Fatal In Cuban Rebellion

Nationalists Should Have Used Planes in Fights, Say Observers.

(United Press.)

"Nineteenth century tactics in a twentieth century revolution," was the explanation given by "insiders" here yesterday for the ineffectuality of the Cuban Nationalist armies in Cuba.

Nationalist generals, who had won remarkable successes in the guerrilla warfare against Spain in the latter part of the last century, failed to meet the military tests imposed by staff organization, fast transport and aerial combat.

It is still a mystery to foreign observers why Gen. Mario Menocal and his associate leaders did not avail themselves of airplanes, or even automobiles, to proceed to the intended fighting area in eastern Cuba, instead of waiting for contracts at sea which, even if made, would have involved great loss of time.

23 POLICEMEN DENY THIRD-DEGREE CLAIM

Precinct Heads Admit Blood on Clothing, but Fail to Explain Cause.

to see that it is run properly, I don't see why I should lead an investigation for them," he declared.

Harker has a record on file at Police Headquarters, according to police.

The young man freely admitted, according to claims made by Capt. Holmes, commander of the First Precinct, that he entered the place at 727 North Capitol street. He is alleged to have told Precinct Detective James Mostyn where he threw parts of a demolished cash register in a vacant lot, and Mostyn is said to have told his superiors that he found the cash register in the spot described by Harker.

After the alleged robbery, according to the story told by police officials, Harker went to a Pennsylvania avenue hotel, registered under an assumed name and remained there for a day.

He took part of the money to buy a suit of clothes—the one flecked with blood—and loaned a man $40 from the remainder, police officials claim. Capt. Holmes said he had two affidavits made by civilians to support these charges.

Such Evidence Unavailing.

"I can see absolutely no reason why police would want to beat a man, particularly after they had gained a confession from him. Why, it has been shown in courts, time and time again, that evidence gained in that way isn't worth a dime.

"Mostyn, Burroughs, Groomes and Laughlin, who worked on the case, had obtained confessions from Harker before the time he claims he was beaten," Capt. Holmes asserted.

Capt. Holmes said that he was at his desk most of Saturday, the day of the alleged third degree workout, and that Harker was questioned in an adjoining room, separated from his office by a thin partition.

"If that man was beaten, or if he screamed, as his sister is supposed to have claimed, I certainly would have heard it. Why I have known some of these men who made statements for years, and I know they wouldn't lie for any man. I don't see how any beating could have taken place in this station."

Clerk Denies Claim.

The station clerk on duty at the First Precinct when Harker was released, was called into Capt. Holmes' office while Inspector Stoll and a reporter were present yesterday.

"You were on duty when James Harker was released on bond, weren't you?" Inspector Stoll asked him.

"Oh, yes, sir, inspector," the station clerk asserted.

"Did you notice anything unusual about his appearance?"

"Oh, no, sir, inspector!"

"Did he have a black eye, or any noticeable bruises about his body, or blood on his clothes?"

"Oh, no, sir," the clerk answered.

Capt. Holmes said that the man had been on duty with him for a number of years and that he had proven himself a splendid officer. If he had noticed anything out of the way the station clerk would certainly have reported it, Capt. Holmes declared.

Inspector Stoll recalled that he had been in the First Precinct Station about 11 o'clock Saturday morning, and that he had sat with Capt. Holmes in that official's office. He said there was certainly no evidence of a "third degree" rumpus between 11 o'clock Saturday morning and noon.

"We are going to get at the bottom of this thing and, regardless of the outcome of the charges against Harker, if we find that any man in this department has been guilty of mistreating him, that man will certainly be dismissed from the force. However, I can't understand why Harker's lawyer should not allow me to see his client and proceed with my investigation."

Inspector Stoll said he would continue his attempts to get in touch with Harker and to have the young man point out the policemen who are alleged to have beaten him.

When the Lindberghs were sighted over Nemuro this morning they were high in the sky. The people of the city, who had been awaiting the fliers for nearly a week, rushed to the beach and watched the black monoplane drop gracefully to the surface of the harbor after circling over the bay.

A thunderous cheer of "banzai" went up as the plane came to a stop, and the Lindberghs stood up in their ship, waving their hands at the crowds on the beach.

A launch bearing city officials met the plane and took the couple aboard, then made for the shore, where Mrs. Lindbergh was presented with a bouquet by the 8-year-old daughter of the town's head man.

Following the brief ceremony, officials escorted the couple to the Nibiki Hotel, for a few minutes' rest.

Shana, Iturup Island, Aug. 23 (A.P.).—The aerial vacationists, Charles and Anne Lindbergh, appeared to have enjoyed their short stay here before their departure for Nemuro and both had a hearty laugh this morning over the amusement they caused among the Japanese, who have seen very few foreigners.

The Lindberghs breakfasted in kimonos, which are supplied by all Japanese hotels, much to the pleasant excitement of the hotel keeper, his wife and children. Their friends, hearing of the strange Americans, flocked to await a glimpse of the visitors.

The Japanese, the aged as well as the young, thought it a great joke the manner in which the visitors folded the kimonos about themselves, the colonel's draping folds in front being just reverse to the Japanese custom.

The kimono fitted Anne splendidly as they are made for small people but the best joke of all in the eyes of the Japanese, was how the kimono did not fit the tall colonel.

Personal Property Tax On Ball Players Sought

Chicago, Aug. 23 (A.P.).—If John E. Conroy, secretary of Cook County Board of Assessors, has his way the market price of major league baseball players is going to be a matter of concern to the county government.

He said yesterday that he had asked for a legal opinion on the question of whether the Chicago baseball clubs could be taxed for their players.

"Ball players," he said, "are personal property. So let's figure out how much they're worth and tax their owners."

RITES TODAY HONOR 'IRONSIDES' CAPTAIN

Acting Naval Secretary Will Attend Exercises to Be Held at Arlington.

The acting Secretary of the Navy, a company of bluejackets, a command of Marines and the Navy Band will pay a last tribute today to Capt. John Gwinn, one-time commander of the U. S. S. Constitution, when his remains, brought here from Philadelphia, are reinterred in Arlington National Cemetery at 10:30 this morning.

Ernest Lee Jahncke, acting Secretary, will attend the exercises, and Capt. Sydney K. Evans, Navy chaplain, will officiate. "Old Ironsides," under Capt. Gwinn's command, was the scene of a reception for the Pope in 1849, just fourteen days before the veteran sailor's death.

Recently a member of the Veterans of Foreign Wars discovered the leaden casket bearing his dust in Glenwood Cemetery, Philadelphia, now abandoned, where he was brought from Palmera, Sicily. Private John McArthur Post, Veterans of Foreign Wars, of the Quaker City, immediately instituted efforts to have it removed here and were successful.

Honorary pallbearers from the Navy Department will include Capts. John Downes, F. C. Martin, O. L. Cox and William G. Neill, and the Dewey Congressional Medal Man's Association also will be represented.

ALEXANDRIA ASKED TO PAY ZONE BOARD

Appeals Group Members Believe That They Should Be Compensated.

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU,
907 Prince St., Alexandria, Va.
Phone Alexandria 523.

Alexandria's zoning problem has hit another snag. The Board of Zoning Appeals, headed by J. Owen Lynch, which will meet tonight, desires compensation for its services. Mr. Lynch stated yesterday that he thought that the members should receive a reasonable to pay for their services as they probably will be required to meet several times a month.

The Board of Zoning Appeals is the State's answer to the zoning enthusiasts and persons who are desirous of erecting buildings not in conformity with the zoning ordinance may appear before the board and present their requests.

The board, consisting of Mr. Lynch, Francis H. Fannon, secretary; Charles W. King, George T. Bender and Albert A. Smoot, was appointed by Judge William P. Woolls, of the corporation court.

The cost of zoning the city has already exceeded $12,000 and the zoning ordinance was only passed after many of its features had been changed by public persuasion so that it little resembles the work of I. C. Root, who was employed as zoning engineer by the council.

Copies of the ordinance will be distributed as soon as the cuts of the zoning map are obtained from the printers.

City Manager Wallace Lawrence, asked whether the Board of Appeals will be paid, stated that the matter had not yet been decided.

GOVERNMENT DENIES ALL GANDHI CHARGES

two years the inhabitants of the village had been responsible for 44 serious crimes, including seven murders, several burglaries, kidnapings, theft and illegal possession of arms.

Another of Ghandi's charges was that certain congress volunteers who had not paid their taxes were shut up in a room with hornets until they were badly stung and then advised to sell their wives to raise tax money.

To this it was replied that an inquiry showed the charge to have no foundation, and it was described by the government as "pure fiction."

The general result of the replies to the latter class of complaints alleging oppression against the congress and its members was that many of them are entirely without foundation and that in many others the facts were misrepresented or exaggerated.

Complaints that women were stripped of their clothing, ill treated and insulted were declared to be entirely untrue.

Ahmedabad, India, Aug. 23 (A.P.). Mahatma Gandhi set out today in a third-class railway compartment, with his mattress, has spinning wheel and his can of goat's milk, on his way to Simla to confer with Viceroy Lord Willingdon concerning observance of the Delhi truce. He will again ask the viceroy to appoint an impartial tribunal to interpret the pact.

If Lord Willingdon will sanction such a tribunal to adjudicate the charges Gandhi has made that the pact has been broken, the mahatma will leave for London August 29 to attend the round-table conference.

There'd be NO NEED FOR A&P If you could deal direct with the farmer

In the "good old days" what the farmer received for the food he raised, and what the housewife paid for it, were exactly equal.

But as towns and cities grew, it became impossible for the farmer to sell direct to you and methods of handling food became complex. There grew up a clumsy, roundabout system with many unnecessary expenses and profits.

The result—The farmer received less but you paid more.

This gave A & P its opportunity—to bring food direct from food producers to you for one small profit. By cutting out numerous wastes A & P is able to charge the housewife less, and pay the farmer a larger share of the retail price.

A & P bridges the gap between the farmer and you.

THREE TOWNS SAVED FROM FOREST FIRES

Blazes Still Out of Control in Wildest Districts Hard to Reach.

Boise, Idaho, Aug. 23 (A.P.).—Struggling valiantly, fire fighters today succeeded in turning leaping forest fires aside at Pioneerville, the Golden Age Mine and Grimes Pass, all of which settlements were threatened with destruction.

Huge flames still were gaining headway tonight in the vicinity of Grimes Pass, but little fear was felt that the village would meet a fate similar to that of Quartzburg and Granite Creek, already razed.

Placerville residents, most of whom had spent two days in the open sand flats outside the city, returned to their homes this afternoon, carrying belongings that had been stacked in heaps out in the sand.

Smoke blotted a complete picture of the flames which were burning on many fronts out from Placerville, covering virtually the entire upper reaches of the Boise basin and spreading far over into the Payette basin.

Red Cross and Salvation Army workers continued to serve the wants of the several hundred refugees, but the demands decreased slightly with the twoscore Placerville families returned to their homes.

Two babies, one born during the first attack of the fire on Placerville and the other two days before, were reported doing well, being cared for by a nurse supplied by the Red Cross.

Fires continued burning out of control in the Idaho forest far to the north of Placerville.

Large crews were sent to the widely scattered blazes, both there and in the several fires in the Payette forest. No towns were in the vicinity of the flames and few if any habitations.

The fires struck what is perhaps the wildest section of Idaho where approach is impossible except by pack horse. Trucks and airplanes continued to place men as close as possible to the conflagration, and from there the men worked in to the fires.

THE Morton Cadets, of the National Capital, who won the title of "the champion military drill company of the United States" in a competitive drill against military companies from all over the country. The championship was won in Savannah, Ga., in 1896. The year before the Morton Cadets had won second place and in 1897 they again were ranked second. Then came the Spanish-American War and the national competitive drills never were resumed.

The departure of the cadets for Savannah was an event which was overshadowed by their welcome home when they returned with the national championship. The District National Guard turned out to meet them and there was a big to do. Newspapers sent reporters along with the cadets to keep the National Capital informed of their doings. Their membership included men who are widely known today. It probably has been several years since some of them heard their old nicknames, for example: "Juicy" Steward, now Luther C. Steward, president of the National Federation of Federal Employes; San Francisco Bill Schofield, Boots Brewer and others.

In the above photograph, dressed in natty uniforms of dark blue coats and white pants, are shown George H. Beuchert, Thornton B. Blandy, Paul J. Brandt, James F. Brewer, Joshua W. SOVIET RECRUITING 6,000 U.S. WORKERS

More Than 100,000 Apply for Jobs to Be Filled Before End of Year.

New York, Aug. 23 (A.P.).—From the coal mines, the steel mills, the machine shops and from the rank and file of American skilled labor, the Soviet Union is recruiting 6,000 workers to fill jobs in Russia before the end of this year.

The Amtorg Trading Corporation announced today that 2,000 already had been hired to fill new jobs created by the "rapid development of the five-year plan." More than 100,000 applications have been received from workers all over the United States, Amtorg officials said, but all except the remaining 4,000 needed to fill the quota must be rejected.

The 6,000 will supplement about 2,500 American workers, many of whom went over there as tourists, now employed in the Soviet Union.

Amtorg officials described the movement of American-trained workers into the Soviet Union as "organized immigration." They said that every worker left the United States with the guarantee of a job and a place to live in.

"In practically all cases," the announcement said, "the American workers going over on these contracts are paying their own passage, and in many cases taking their own tools, which are admitted free of duty."

It was explained the workers are going under one and two year contracts, but many of them, officials said, are taking their families with the intention of settling there permanently.

While there are a number of American-born among them, most of the emigrants came here from Europe five, ten or twenty years ago.

They include miners, machinists, carpenters, bricklayers, railroad workers, tractor and automobile repairmen, and even 25 fishermen recruited from the Pacific Coast.

The GIRL About Town

IN my mail yesterday came my invitation to Louse Brooks' coming-out party at the home of her grandmother, Mrs. Edward T. Stotesbury, in Philadelphia. Isn't it strange that it is to be a buffet luncheon, instead of a ball or a reception? What can the matter be? Of course, it is fashionable to economize, and Eva Stotesbury never makes the mistake of not keeping up with the prevailing vogue, even in the matter of debutante presentations. But, if Louise does not keep in her grandmother's good graces, her debut will end up at a dawn breakfast on the terraces at Whitemarsh Hall.

Senator and Mrs. Henry F. Ashurst have returned from Europe. I'm sure the Irish had to sharpen up their wits when Mrs. Ashurst was around, for she is a marvel, both as to wit and brogue. If she got any fine feathers in Paris, they were not plucked from birds. Both the senator and she are ardent members of the Audubon Society.

I HAD a postal card from Jean Woodson, dated Nantucket, showing her in a snappy bathing suit of sky blue. Jean's a lovely girl, and she is going to be a Christmas present to Washington society, making her debut with Santa Claus on that day of days.

Apropos of debutantes, Helen Ames Doherty stood very high in her foreign service school exams. She chats in seven different languages, sings in several of them, and is a walking encyclopedia of facts, besides being a sweet and unspoiled American girl.

Luray, Va. It will continue through tomorrow at the Battle Run Church, Rappahannock County, sixteen miles east of Lursy.

Parnell to Seek Office In Mt. Vernon District

J. B. Parnell, of Franconia, Va., yesterday announced his independent candidacy for the office of supervisor of Mount Vernon District, Fairfax County, now held by Pierce Reid.

His decision to run as an independent, he said, followed charges that district election judges in the recent primary barred from the polls voters known to be favorable to Herbert O. Blunt, who opposed Mr. Reid in the primary. Mr. Parnell, a descendant of Charles Stewart Parnell, Irish emancipator, has been a resident of the county 30 years.

VIRGINIA JOB SURVEY TO LEAD AID EFFORT

Pollard Hopes Relief Body Plans Will Be Ready by End of Week.

Richmond, Va., Aug. 23 (A.P.).—To determine as nearly as possible the exact number of unemployed persons in Virginia will be one of the first problems of Gov. Pollard's new committee on unemployment relief, which he hopes to have named by the end of this week.

From previous experience of the State commission of immigration and labor the task is expected to be a difficult one. Commissioner John Hopkins Hall said that one of the principal difficulties is that the number is daily changing. Services of his staff, however, will be available to the committee. Meanwhile Gov. Pollard is faced, first, with the selection of a chairman for the committee, and second with the question of whether a large committee, with a smaller executive group that would act in emergency matters, or a smaller group with local chairmen in the various communities, could better serve his purpose.

He is carefully considering several names for the chairman of the committee. The personnel of the committee, he said, will be determined largely by the recommendations of the chairman.

Meanwhile, mail to the executive offices is filled with suggestions as to unemployment relief, some of it complimenting the governor on the way he has handled the matter thus far, while other letters sharply criticize him for his action, especially in authorizing the loan of nearly $1,000,000 for roads designed to keep 12,000 men at work on the State highways next winter.

One of the greatest problems of the State's employment aid, the governor said, is how to provide work without an increase in taxes. His mail brings hundreds of communications urging the State to provide work, with an equal number demanding that taxes be reduced, he said.

With prospects of $1,500,000 reduction in State revenues this year, he already is looking to practically every State department and agency to curtail expenditures. Meanwhile he has been informed of a large increase in numbers of both lunatics and prisoners, which the State must care for in the next year.

Naval Reserve Oil Suit To Be Heard Nov. 23

Tucson, Ariz., Aug. 23 (A.P.).—Judge William H. Sawtelle of the Federal Circuit Court of Appeals has set November 23 for hearing in San Francisco of a United States suit seeking to cancel leases and recover approximately $10,000,000 from the Pan-American Petroletm Co. for oil taken from the Naval reserve in Kern County, Calif.

The case was started September 3, 1924. Prosecution was held in abeyance until after the original suit was decided February 27, 1927, the United States Supreme Court having affirmed the decision of the lower courts that the Pan-American Petroleum Co. must make restitution of lands and pay the Government for oils taken therefrom.

Knifed Couple Called Murder and Suicide

Port Albertni, B. C., Aug. 23 (A.P.). Firemen entered a burning house here to discover the knife-slashed bodies of Paddy O'Toole, 45, and Mrs. Mary Tomalin, 36, believed to have been from Vancouver.

Pending an inquest, police expressed the belief it was a case of murder and suicide. Mrs. Tomalin was said to have had two infant daughters in Vancouver.

tion work aggregating a half million dollars and largely financed by John D. Rockefeller, jr., was provided to give employment to local workmen.

A foundation called "More Game Birds in America" telegraphed Secretary Hyde urging that the duck-shooting season not be suspended, as it would "throw thousands of men out of work" in sporting equipment manufacturing plants.

The American Red Cross announced the shipment of fall gardening seed to tens of thousands of rural families to forestall a winter food shortage where the drought had struck.

Mr. Gifford will establish his headquarters tomorrow in the Department of Commerce Building, thereby beginning actual work on the problem four days after his appointment.

The discussions at the camp, which took place before a big open fire in the social hall of the retreat, dealt primarily with organization. Fred C. Croxton, who will be Gifford's assistant, attended the conferences and furnished material gathered by the emergency committee, which will be merged with the new organization.

The party will leave the camp for Washington early tomorrow. A steady rain kept the President and his guests indoors most of the week-end.

Telegrams from Govs. Rolph of California, Emmerson of Illinois, Gardiner of Maine and Winant of New Hampshire were received, assuring the President of their cooperation with the Gifford group.

Mr. Gifford, more than 50 members of an advisory committee, and a group of office assistants will volunteer their services. The organization will hire experts for technical studies.

The Gifford commission's work at the beginning will be financed out of available appropriations for the Government departments. A similar method paid expenses of the Woods committee last winter.

Emmerson's Message.

Gov. Emmerson said in his message:

"I am glad to see the commencement of Federal activities for cooperation with our State agencies in relief of the unemployed. I beg to advise you that the governor's commission has been reorganized for the year 1931-32 for the purpose of arranging for the care of the unemployed in Illinois. The function of that commission is purely as an organizing and coordinating body for the unemployment emergency in the State. All executive work and the raising and expenditure of relief funds in counties and communities will be done through local organizations or committees officially recognized and approved by the executive committee of the governor's commission. Am confident our people realize their responsibility and the duty they owe to their unemployed and unfortunate fellow citizens."

Gov. Winant said:

"Will be very glad to cooperate with your commission in any way possible and hope you will keep us in touch with the measures and plans which may be recommended by you."

The telegram from Gov. Gardiner read:

"The people of Maine appreciate the plans of the President for meeting the unemployment problem and will do their share in facing the situation with a spirit of self-reliance and a realization of the community responsibility involved. We will be glad to cooperate with you and your representatives."

Detroit Decides to Ask $9,000,000 Contribution

Detroit, August 23 (A.P.).—Caught between a mounting deficit and the prospect of caring for thousands of destitute families during the coming winter, the City of Detroit has decided to pass the hat for $9,000,000.

Announcement of the decision to supplement tax bills with subscription blanks came after Senator James Couzens offered yesterday to donate $1,000,000 for unemployment relief this winter, provided other citizens contribute the rest of a $10,000,000 fund estimated to be needed in addition to the regular appropriations.

Plans for the campaign to raise the money were being made today and Mayor Frank Murphy said that within a few days a committee will begin active solicitation. The money, the mayor said, will be administered by the department of public welfare, along with the $7,000,000 appropriated from tax revenues for relief work. Thus, in effect, the municipality is asking voluntary contributions to its treasury, believed here to be an unprecedented action for a major city.

Murray Is in Memphis For Aid Parley Today

Memphis, Tenn., Aug. 23 (A.P.).—Gov. W. H. (Alfalfa Bill) Murray, of Oklahoma, was in Memphis tonight laying plans for the alleviation of unemployment distress in the Mississippi Valley at a conference tomorrow.

Although expressing confidence in the outcome of his meeting, he would not indicate whether he would lay a personal plan before it.

Clarence B. Douglas, special representative of the Inland Waterways Corporation and a colonel on Gov. Murray's staff, suggested formation of an interstate employment commission, which would include governors, senators, members of Congress, mayors and the county commissioners.

Roosevelt Seeks Source For Unemployment Fund

Hyde Park, N. Y., Aug. 23 (A.P.).—Gov. Roosevelt tonight concluded a week-end search of the State's coffers and income sources for money to meet an emergency employment relief program he expects to present to the New York Legislature when it convenes in extra session this week.

The governor finds himself confronted with the fact that the State has hardly more than $10,000,000 on hand not pledged to expenditure in some channel of government. He has before him a proposal that he recommend some new form of taxation to raise additional money, possibly a levy on tobacco or automobiles. The tobacco tax, even at one cent for a package of cigarettes and a corresponding tax for bulk tobacco and cigars, would raise, it is figured, $15,000,000. An additional State tax of $5 on automobiles would bring another $10,000,000.

10,000 WILL ATTEND THIRD PARTY'S BIRTH

Government's Reorganization Is Goal of Delegates From 24 States.

Monte Ne, Ark., Aug. 23 (U.P.).—Thousands of persons, unattached to any existing political faith, will gather here Tuesday to form a new party pledged to oppose the "injustices" of the two-party system.

Upon the shoulders of the astute, aged political warrior, William H. (Coin) Harvey, Democratic leader during William Jennings Bryan's campaigns for the Presidency upon a bimetalism "16 to 1" platform, will rest the responsibility of molding the more than 10,000 expected delegates into an harmonious assembly.

Harvey retired from active participation in politics after Bryan's third defeat in 1904, but emerged from his voluntary seclusion several months ago to launch the new party movement.

To Select Presidential Candidate.

Naming of the party, writing and adoption of a platform, selection of presidential and vice presidential candidates for the 1932 campaign, in addition to the hundreds of details involved in organizing a political unit are among the tasks that will confront the convention during its four-day session.

The "New Party," as it is now called, is the climax of a life-long study of national finance and government by Harvey, who came here 30 years ago to begin work on a "pyramid to posterity" in which he hoped to store evidence of the present civilization for future generations.

"The time has arrived. The people have awakened. It is a time for which I have long waited, knowing it would come under the present financial system," said the white-haired, determined political philosopher.

"A complete reorganization of national and State governments is needed and will be advocated in our platform. All important questions of national scope should be decided by referendum."

Financial System Opposed.

That the platform will denounce the present financial system is seen in Harvey's statement that money should be circulated by Government employment of idle labor, all money to go into circulation without any interest charges.

Homer Earl, Lincoln, Nebr., has been named temporary chairman of the convention. Every attending delegate will have a voice and vote in all matters presented on the floor.

About 24 States are expected to be represented.

Miss Binford Is Bride In Disputanta Wedding

Special to The Washington Post.

Petersburg, Va., Aug. 23.—Miss Henrietta Binford, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Henry Binford, of Disputanta, Prince George County, was married at noon yesterday at Trinity Methodist Church at Disputanta to Alphens Sitman Thompson, son of Mrs. Lena Willson Thompson, of Ashland.

The bridesmaids were Miss Dorothy Watzef, of Richmond; Elizabeth Casey, of Williamsburg, Va.; Inge and Rosylyn Webb, of Disputanta. Little Connie Lee and Carroll Marine Thompson, of Jefferson City, Mo., nieces of the bridegroom, were flower girls.

BODY CLEARS ALIENS OF EXCESSIVE CRIME

the college of American citizenship." The charges of criminality now made against the Italians and the Mexicans "are not different in kind from those made earlier against the Irish," the report said.

"We should not forget that Negroes are still burned at the stake in Southern cities, where the inhabitants are old American stock," Miss Edith Abbot wrote in another section of the report.

Summarizing its analysis of more than 3,000,000 arrest reports, Miss Abbot said:

"In cities of diverse characteristics and varying size, scattered throughout the country, the police find good reason to accuse the native-born white and the Negro of crime very much more frequently than the foreign born.

"The foreign-born arrest rate, in proportion to their numbers, approaches that of the native white most nearly in crimes involving personal violence, and drops below it most decisively in crimes committed for gain."

Moreover, a study of conviction reports from large cities showed that in recent years the relative percentage of foreign-born convicted of felonies and misdemeanors alike was decreasing much more rapidly than that of the whites, which was increasing in some instances.

A special study of crimes by Mexicans was conducted, and Prof. Max S. Handman, of the University of Texas, reported that the high incidence of such crime apparently is due either to the nomadic life of most of the Mexicans here, or to the fact that the less stable Mexicans came to this country. Other phases of the Mexican survey criticized law enforcement methods used by United States peace officers.

A special community study of the crime of New Orleans was included. Its high homicide rate was analyzed to show that Negroes, making up about one-fourth the population, committed almost two-thirds of all the killings, mostly in affrays among themselves. Foreign-born whites have the lowest percentage of homicide charged to them. Italians were blamed for only four of the 543 homicides committed in the city from 1925 to 1929.

A similar study in San Francisco brought a finding that although the city is 30 per cent foreign-born, only 21 per cent of the total arrests are of foreign-born. Russians were found to have a particularly good record in proportion to their numbers, and Japanese were said to be the most law abiding of all there. A proportionately large number of Filipinos were arrested, but their number was said to be so small that the problem was not great.

A third study was conducted at Stockton, Calif.

PESTILENCE SWEEPS CHINESE FLOOD AREA

Natives Face Death Calmly as Disease Spreads to Refuge Camps.

By WILFRED LING.

Hankow, China, Aug. 23 (U.P.).—Pestilence broke out in refuge camps of the flood-devastated Yangtze River Valley today, intensifying the suffering of hundreds of thousands in the worst disaster of China's history.

Native survivors appeared to have been so completely demoralized that they were not even willing to save themselves from the flood, which has almost wiped out the thickly populate Wuhon area.

Many thousands have died of disease and drowning and a winter famine now seems inescapeable

When the United Press correspondent toured the Wuhan district in a sampan today thousands of starving and exhausted persons were sitting motionless on roofs or in shallow water, calmly awaiting death.

Convinced Death Inevitable.

I saw few signs of activity on the part of the military rescue forces and they were unable to arouse the survivors to cooperate. A majority of the 30,000,000 persons affected by the flood over an area of more than 500 miles have been firmly convinced that the disaster was due to anger of the Yangtze Dragon God, who took offense because the River Dragon Temple was demolished recently.

Frantic mothers, many clasping dead children to their thin breasts, fought for scraps of food floating on the yellow water a few days ago. Today I saw them sitting motionless, hardly willing to answer questions, convinced that the Dragon God of their ancestors intends to wipe out Hankow and that it is useless to resist.

We passed along some streets where the water was 10 and 20 feet deep. Here I saw upper floors and roofs crowded with refugees, some of them foreigners.

Express Emotions at Night.

Power plants have been inundated The entire area is in darkness at night. After nightfall the wails express their emotions, piercing the darkness with wails and cries.

But the fatalism of the natives has made futile the inadequate relief which crews of foreign gunboats have been able to extend. They say they are ready to die now, rather than starve in the cold of the coming months.

The dreaded outbreak of epidemic came just as relief officials had completed arrangements for innoculation of at least 100,000 persons against cholera. The equipment and medicine is pitifully meager.

J. E. Baker, American member of the relief commission, who made an aerial survey of the flood area today, said condition of mud flats along the edge indicated gradual recession of the water. Hundreds of men are needed to remove bodies from the mud and aid in checking pestilence, he said.

GERMANY ACCUSED BY CHINESE PARTY

Nation Supplied Chiang With Materials for War, Is Charge.

Canton, China, Aug. 23 (A.P.).—The Canton Kuomintang (People's party) called a mass meeting today to "take steps against Germany on the ground of supplying Chiang Kai-shek, president of the Nanking government, with war materials and also over 100 German advisers."

The Kuomintang said it was informed Chiang's advisers were instructing his military in the use of poison gas.

Acting upon the advice of Lin Sen, national Kuomintang supervisor and signatory of the document impeaching Chiang Kai-shek, which started the rebellion against Nanking, officials of the southern government said today the National party congress for the election of officers will not convene in Canton next October as previously planned.

The Canton government, instead, is endeavoring to secure peace and a settlement with Nanking so a party congress representing the entire country can convene October 10 in some city yet to be designated.

BAPTIST EDUCATION BODY PLANS SESSION

Twentieth Annual Meeting Will Open Wednesday in Ridgecrest, N. C.

Special to The Washington Post.

Ridgecrest, N. C., Aug. 23.—"The Place of Science in a Baptist College," will be the general topic at the twentieth annual session of the Southern Baptist Education Association which meets at the Southern Baptist Assembly Hotel here Wednesday and Thursday. President J. W. Cammack, of Averett College, Danville, Va., president of the association, has announced the program.

The opening discussion will be on "The Baptist College in the Emerging Science State." Dr. S. C. Mitchell, of the University of Richmond, will present the main paper. "The Place of Biology in a Baptist College" will be discussed by Dr. W. L. Poteat, of Wake Forest College, and Dr. J. R. Mundie, of Oklahoma Baptist University. Dr. John R. Sampey, jr., of Howard College, Birmingham, Ala., will present a paper on "The Place of Chemistry and Physics in a Baptist College." Acting President W. S. Allen, of Baylor University, Tex., and Dr. S. A. Ives, of Furman University, Greenville, S. C., will speak on "The Science Department in Relation to Preprofessional Courses." "Financing the Science Department" will be the topic of Dr. C. J. Elmore, of William Jewell College, Missouri, and Dr. B. F. Richardson, of Mercer University, Macon, Ga.

Others to Speak.

Dr. Kirby Page, of New York City, editor of The World Today; Dr. James H. Franklin, of New York, secretary of the Baptist Foreign Mission Board, and President W. J. McGlothlin, of Furman, and Dr. Rufus W. Weaver, of Washington, D. C., appointed by President Hoover on the illiteracy commission, and Dr. B. Warren Brown, of Chicago, will each deliver one or more special addresses before the association.

There will be present representatives from 112 Baptist schools and colleges and five theological seminaries and training schools in the 17 States of the South. These schools represent a property value of $41,642,122.47, and of $21,725,429 in endowment. Enrollment in these schools and colleges last year was 34,894, while in the theological seminaries were 2,078 students for the ministry. The combined faculties number 1,761 members.

Loses Valuable Member.

During the year the executive committee lost one of its most valuable members in the death of President S. P. Brooks, of Baylor University. In addition to filling this position on its executive committee, the association will also have to elect a new president owing to the fact that Dr. Cammack has served two years, the limit allowed.

In connection with this meeting will be the annual meeting of the education commission of the Southern Baptist convention. Dr. W. R. Cullom, of Wake Forest, N. C., is president of the commission, and Dr. Kelly White, of Nashville, Tenn., is secretary. The commission consists of one member from each of the seventeen States of the South. Also at the same place and time the annual session of the Southern Baptist Association of Teachers of Bible and Religious Education will be held. Of this body Dr. J. M. Price, Seminary Hill, Tex., is president and Dr. E. C. Schaible, of Hartsville, S. C., is secretary.

London Street Crowds Are Greatest Since '14

London, Aug. 23 (U.P.).—Crowds at Whitehall awaiting the outcome of the Labor government's financial crisis meetings tonight were greater than any in London since the days preceding Britain's decision to enter the World War.

Most of them were intensely interested and somewhat anxious about the outcome, standing in silence and eagerly inspecting the occupants of every automobile that drove up to No. 10 Downing street.

One man, wearing formal dress and a monocle, created a sensation strolling up to a policeman and asking:

"I say, what's it all about?"

solution of the budget deficit of about $600,000,000.

Yesterday's hectic sessions began when King George returned to London hastily from a vacation in Scotland to lend his aid toward a solution of the difficulty. He began by calling a meeting of leaders of the three major parties at the palace to obtain their views.

While the cabinet was holding its momentous session in Downing street a huge throng waited outside Buckingham Palace watching for whatever dramatic move in the crisis might develop there.

They stood nine or ten deep along the palace railing eagerly watching the great building.

Not since the days of King George's illness in 1929 have there been such crowds around the palace.

Refiner Protests Texas Troop Rule

Commander of National Guardsmen a "Dictator," Independent Says.

Dallas, Tex., Aug. 23 (A.P.).—E. Constantin, jr., Dallas independent refiner and president of the East Texas Independent Refiners Association, last night said Brig. Gen. Jacob F. Wolters had assumed "the attitude of a military dictator in a war zone" in refusing permission for a mass meeting at Tyler to protest martial law in the east Texas oil field.

"It occurs to me, as a private citizen, of the State of Texas, that this condition has never heretofore existed within the confines of this State," Constantin declared in a statement, "with the possible exception of the carpet bagger's rule and during the time of the oppressor, E. J. Davis.

"The precedent of the governor declaring martial law to attempt to cure an economic ill is certainly without the bounds of his executive authority and right-thinking citizens must be amazed at the arbitrary position taken by the governor in taking the law into his own hands, without consideration of private capital or individual rights."

CRISIS STEPS PROVE REAL POWER OF KING

Today Is Third Time in Reign George V Has Proved Pivotal Figure.

London, Aug. 23 (A.P.).—For a third time King George, who called various party leaders into conference today on the political situation, has become a pivotal figure in a national crisis.

The first occasion was immediately after the beginning of his reign, when he gave assent to the late Lord Asquith's request that, if needed, he would create sufficient peers to pass David Lloyd George's budget through the House of Lords.

It also was the king who summoned all the parties to Buckingham Palace to debate the Irish question when all other means of settling the problem appeared to have failed. That step, like all other aspects of the same problem, was submerged in the far greater crisis of the World War, which supervened.

Those who believe that under the British constitution the monarch has no power to act on his own initiative usually express surprise at times like this to find the nation turning directly toward the crown.

The truth, as seen by the best informed commentators, is that while the king has not authority to act on his own initiative under the strict letter of the constitution, in practice there is almost nothing he can not do if the emergency is sufficiently grave.

Served by an efficient secretariat and in the closest touch with national developments, whether he is in London, Windsor, Sandringham or Balmoral, the king has a fund of information and experience almost unparalleled in the country.

The nation realizes that there exists this center of information and potential leadership entirely divorced from party politics, and the worse things become, the more the country tends to cast its eyes to the monarch to take the lead, if not openly, then by the weight of his personality and prestige of his office.

Greater Demand For Oil Forecast

Volunteer Study Predicts Heavier Use of Crude Than Last Year.

(Associated Press.)

An increased demand for petroleum for the rest of the year was forecast yesterday by a volunteer economic advisory committee in a report to Chairman Wilbur, of the Oil Conservation Board.

The committee said it expected the crude oil demand for the last half of this year to be 491,315,000 barrels against 477,829,000 for the same period in 1930. Of the bigger total the committee estimated 451,915,000 barrels would come from the domestic fields and 25,600,000 from foreign wells. The remainder would be drawn from storage.

Referring to Texas, where martial law has been declared to curb the flow of crude oil into an already saturated market, the committee said: "An increase in the shipment of east Texas crudes to foreign countries may be anticipated.

Grade-Crossing Deaths Show Increase in 1931

(Associated Press.)

Reports filed by railroads with the Interstate Commerce Commission, made public yesterday, showed increases in the number of highway grade-crossing fatalities for the first five months of this year as compared with the corresponding period a year ago.

Fatalities totaled 828 in the first five months of this year, an increase of 20 over 1930. Those injured numbered 3,100, a reduction of 226 compared with the corresponding period a year ago. Highway grade-crossing accidents numbered 1,831 in 1931, against 2,009 last year.

Hungarian Gypsies' Air Pleases Walker

"Sidewalks of New York" Is Played for Mayor by Band.

Budapest, Hungary, Aug. 23 (A.P.).—Mayor James J. Walker of New York today heard the tune for which he had been listening ever since reaching Europe.

It was at St. Margarets Island, near Budapest, where gypsies struck up "The Sidewalks of New York." Although the gypsies' interpretation of it was nearer to a dirge than a popular air, the mayor gratefully acknowledged this act of attention.

Mayor Walker had a busy Sunday in the Hungarian capital. He attended mass with his secretary, George S. Collins, at St. Stephen's Cathedral. Then he inspected the famous thermal baths and sampled Hungarian goulash at noon, after which he laid wreaths at the grave of Hungary's unknown soldier and at the foot of the Washington Monument here.

WOMAN LEADS HUGE AIR FLEET TO RACES

Long String of Planes Off at Santa Monica for Cleveland Events.

Santa Monica, Calif., Aug. 23 (A.P.). Led by Jean La Rene, woman aviator of Dallas, Tex., a long string of airplanes began taking the air at minute intervals from Clover Field at 5:31 p. m. (Eastern standard time) today on the first leg of the handicap sweepstake air derby to the national air race at Cleveland, Ohio.

Their first objective is Calexico, Calif., where they will spend the night.

Men and women are competing in the race on terms decided by the engine power of their airplanes. Their route takes them over dangerous flying terrain—1,000 miles of desert and mountain—before they reach Oklahoma. Success depends largely on ability to follow straight courses.

Second in the air was Gadys O'Donnell, of Long Beach.

Other Women Take Off.

Other women who took off thereafter were Phoebe Omlie, Memphis, Tenn.; Deble Stanford, Houston, Tex.; Mae Hazlipp, St. Louis; Ruth Stewart, St. Louis; Joan Shankle, Fort Sill, Okla.; Winifred Spencer, Leicestershire, England; Louise Thaden, Pittsburgh, Pa.; Florence Barnes, San Marino, Calif.; Mildred Morgan, Beverly Hills, Calif.; Martie Bowman, Los Angeles; Clema Granger, Santa Monica; Mary Charles, Santa Monica; Blanche Noyes, Cleveland, and Edith Foltz, Portland, Oreg.

M. King, of Santa Monica, the first man contestant to leave, was flagged into the air at 5:46 p. m., Eastern standard time.

Other Men Fliers.

Other men fliers who took the air in turn were Eldon Cessna, Wichita, Kans.; Earl Rowland, Wichita; Tony Little, Chicago; C. E. Beaucamp, Santa Monica; Walter Carr, Detroit; Lester Glasscock, Dunedin, Fla.; George Shealy, Atlanta, Ga.; Eddie Schneider, New York; Leonard Flo, Detroit; W. 196 Miles Distant.

The distance to Calexico is 196 miles. Other stages of the aerial trek are:

Phoenix, Ariz., 206 miles, lunch; Tucson, Ariz., 106 miles, overnight stop; Douglas, Ariz., 103 miles, noon stop; El Paso, Tex., 183 miles overnight stop; Rosell, N. Mex., 160 miles, noon stop; Amarillo, Tex., 198 miles, overnight stop; Enid, Okla., 235 miles, noon stop; Bartlesville, Okla., 108 miles, overnight stop; Jefferson City, Mo., 244 miles, noon stop; East St. Louis, Ill., 110 miles, overnight stop; Terre Haute, Ind., 159 miles, noonstop; Dayton, Ohio, 173 miles, overnight stop; Akron, Ohio, 167 miles, noonstop; Cleveland, 30 miles.

Each plane in the derby was flown by United States Army pilots to test its top speed, on which the handicaps were based. The fastest speed was shown by Gladys O'Donnel's ship, 171.43 miles an hour.

Cash and other awards totaling $25,000 will be shared by the pilots.

German Transatlantic Fliers Are Unreported

Berlin, Aug. 23 (A.P.).—The whereabouts of the plane in which Willy Rody and Christian Johannsen, German airmen, started early yesterday on the first leg of a proposed transatlantic flight remained a mystery late tonight so far as Germany was concerned.

Authorities in Tempelhoff Airdrome were without news of the fliers and their passenger, Fernando Costa Veiga, Portuguese sportsman, nor had the Humburg Maritime weather bureau received any word. The latter station said no arrangements had been made with the plane for service.

HEAD OF DRY GROUP ATTACKS ROOSEVELT

Holds Tammany Rift Is Not Sufficient to Apease the Southern Democrats.

(Associated Press.)

Opposition to Gov. Roosevelt of New York as a Democratic presidential candidate because of his stand against the prohibition amendment was voiced in a public statement issued here yesterday by the Rev. Arthur J. Barton, of Wilmington, N. C., the chairman of the executive committee of the Anti-Saloon League of America.

"No break between Gov. Roosevelt and Tammany Hall," said Mr. Barton's statement, "whether real or affected, will serve to rally the dry Democrats of the Nation to his support.

"If Gov. Roosevelt recants and publicly pledges himself to the fullest possible enforcement and support of national prohibition and promises that he will not misuse the presidential power if he should be elected to aid in any way in modification, weakening or repeal of the national prohibition laws, such a statement would do more for him among the dry Democrats of the South and West than any slap on the wrist which he might administer to Tammany."

The Rev. Mr. Barton has been called to appear here this week in the Senate's inquiry into the use of funds by Bishop James Cannon of the Methodist Episcopal Church South in the Southern campaign of 1928 against Alfred E. Smith.

NOWADAYS you read and hear every kind of thing about cigarettes. But when you try to square some of it with your own common-sense and experience, a lot of it just doesn't "square"!

What smokers want to know about a cigarette is, "How good is it?"

And when it comes to that, cigarettes are just as good and just as pure as the materials from which they're made.

In making Chesterfield, we use only riper, milder, sweeter-tasting tobaccos—the best that money can buy—and pure cigarette paper—the purest that can be made. Our chemists rigidly test for cleanliness and purity all materials used in the manufacture of Chesterfield. In our factories even the air is washed, and changed every 4½ minutes.

Everything that goes into Chesterfield is the best that money can buy or that science knows about.

"Good . . . they've got to be good," we say about CHESTERFIELD—and we mean it! And that's something you can square with everything you've ever read, or heard—or know—about this good cigarette!

REACHING FOR DISASTER.

Democrats who are clamoring for repeal of the Smoot-Hawley tariff apparently have paid no attention whatever to the trend of American foreign trade. Closing their eyes to the realities which stand as a warning against any tinkering with the American protective policy, they move in a nebulous realm of theory which has no application to the actual conditions that are confronting the country. Fortunately, the people are not easily influenced by high-sounding sophistry when their bread and butter hang in the balance.

The most significant fact in connection with either the tariff or foreign commerce is that America's favorable balance of trade is rapidly disappearing. In July exports fell to the lowest level in recent years, amounting to only $183,000,000, while imports showed an increase of $1,327,000, bringing the total to $175,000,000. The same tendency may be noted over a longer period. During the second quarter of 1931 imports showed a seasonal decline, but exports fell 7 per cent below what would have been a normal seasonal recession. Exports for the same period were 20 per cent below the 1930 record; imports were only 16 per cent less.

Antiprotectionists must face the fact that the export curve is still pointing downward, while the import curve is pointing definitely upward. If this tendency continues for only a short time, the United States will be buying more goods from other countries than it sells to them. The reason for this condition is not obscure. Purchasing power in the United States has held up much better than in most other countries. They are unable to buy American exports to the same extent as formerly, while the American demand for many imports continues to be fair.

Price changes are also working to the disadvantage of American foreign trade. The prices of commodities that are imported have declined much more rapidly than have prices of export goods. Hence, large quantities of foreign goods are attracted to the American market and the higher-priced exports do not sell readily abroad. The result is that American producers, with the exception of the farmer, do not enjoy as great a degree of protection against foreign competition as they did before the tariff act of 1930 became effective.

What is the Democratic remedy for this situation? If Senator Robinson and Senator McKellar can speak for their party, the Democrats propose to open the flood gates and allow the whole world to pour its surplus products upon the American market. What advantages would the United States gain in foreign markets as a result of this concession? It is the height of absurdity to suppose that any country would reduce its duties to please the United States at a time when the world market is glutted with products of almost every kind. Even if foreign tariffs were removed, American exporters could not hope for much improvement in their trade because of the reduced purchasing power of other countries. But foreign tariffs will not be altered during this economic crisis, unless they are boosted higher. Indications are that even the traditional free-trade policy of Great Britain will be swept away before an equilibrium is restored.

For the United States to encourage a deluge of foreign goods at a time when domestic industry is running at about half its capacity would be suicide. It is unthinkable that Congress could be so devoid of reason as to consider tinkering with the tariff. Democrats who are looking forward to an invasion of the domestic market by foreign goods will have to be content with the knowledge that imports are increasing in spite of the tariff.

FARM BOARD LOSSES.

The active operations of the Farm Board cover a period of nearly two years. Perfecting its organization during the summer of 1929, the Farm Board, early in the fall, began advancing funds to wheat and cotton cooperatives. Prices of both these commodities fell following the great stock market break in October, and with cotton at 16 cents a pound the board entered the market to support the price at that figure. The board continued to buy cotton during the 1929-30 crop year, accumulating the bulk of its 1,300,000 bales at a price of 16 cents, or $80 a bale, the total cost being figured at about $117,000,000.

At an estimated value of about $35 a bale the Farm Board's cotton holdings are now worth only $45,500,000, indicating a loss of $71,500,000. Yearly carrying charges of this cotton are upward of $10,000,000, which, added to the depreciation in price, make this venture the Farm Board's most costly single mistake. With the current price of cotton under 7 cents, or less than half that at which Farm Board's purchases were made, it is evident that its stabilization program was far from sufficient to prop up the market.

The wheat purchases of the board, between October, 1929, and June, 1931, ran to a total of approximately 235,000,000 bushels. The wheat was purchased during two periods of activity. Up to July 1930, some 70,000,000 bushels were purchased in the belief that orderly marketing would maintain the early price of $1.25 a bushel. This first commitment of the board was completed at an average cost of $1.18 a bushel. The present loss on this wheat totals about $65,000,000.

Following retirement from the market for six months the board resumed wheat buying last November "to prevent further unwarranted declines in domestic prices." Purchases were made on a sliding scale at 73 to 85 cents. By June, 1931, a total of 165,000,000 bushels had been accumulated at an average price of about 82 cents a bushel, or more than 30 cents above world market prices. Since the board's operations stopped, the last of May, the only prices to be realized were those of the open market.

During the second period the board spent a total of $135,300,000 for wheat. Adding carrying charges and adjusting the returns from sale of 35,000,000 bushels, the total cost is shown as $146,850,000 for wheat having a present value of $85,000,000, or a net loss of $61,850,000. These two attempts to stabilize the wheat market have cost the board $246,950,000. The present value of all its wheat is about $120,000,000, leaving a loss of $126,950,000. The grand totals for both wheat and cotton are: Total costs, $363,950,000; current value, $165,500,000; net loss, $198,450,000.

It is now generally recognized that the board indulged in a costly and reckless experiment with taxpayers' money. Even with $500,000,000 at its command, it could not thwart economic law. The futility and expensiveness of trying to hold prices above their economic level has been so well demonstrated that the United States should never need another lesson.

CHURCH PROPERTY IN SPAIN.

One of the anomalies of Catholic Latin countries, when government is assumed by liberal elements, is the immediate disposition to restrict the authority and curb the power of the church. Such action has been particularly noticeable in Latin America. The present movement in Spain indicates that the new republican government will not be content with earlier decrees, establishing freedom of worship and withdrawing state contributions to the church, but will proceed to the confiscation of church property.

In Mexico, following the accession of President Juarez and adoption of the constitution of 1857, which declared all church property should pass to the possession of the nation, it was discovered that much of it was already in the hands of private parties. That the terms, or tacit understandings in such cases, where supposedly faithful adherents were to hold the property for the benefit of the church, were forgotten and the property used to form the basis of private fortunes, caused no little scandal.

Forestalling such action on the part of the church to protect its vast holdings, Spain begins by issuing a decree that ecclesiastical holdings, "movable, immovable, royal concessions and benefits, of Catholic Church orders, institutes and establishments, can not be transferred, sold or alienated." In addition to this prohibition notaries are barred from registering such sales.

The Catholic Church refuses to recognize the new Spanish decrees. A pastoral letter has been issued by the deported Primate Cardinal Segura, declaring that the government was "returning to brutalized paganism with giant strides" and demanding the right to retain and administer all classes of temporal property. A bitter controversy undoubtedly will result from this situation. In the end, however, the government probably will take possession of Catholic property, confiscating valuable income estates, but permitting the use of church edifices for religious services. The question of the future status of the monastic orders may be expected to precipitate additional dissensions as bitter as those over property rights.

THE BRITISH CRISIS.

Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald announced at the beginning of important cabinet and interparty sessions to consider the urgent necessity of reducing government expenditures and increasing revenue, that the government program would be based on "equal sacrifice for all." But he is finding it very difficult to convince any party, even his own, that equality may be arrived at through his proposals. Further conferences seem only to accentuate the differences between the three major parties and the factions of the Labor party. King George's hurried return to London adds strength to the belief that a crisis is at hand.

Indications are that Premier MacDonald has brought forth several alternate plans to overcome the deficit of $600,000,000 without being able to secure agreement on any one of them. Labor party leaders and the powerful Trades Union Congress, with its 6,000,000 members, offered strenuous objections to the proposal that a large slice be cut from unemployment doles. Tentative proposals for the substitution of a 10 per cent tariff brought similar opposition from many who oppose such a radical departure from England's traditional free trade policy. As was expected, Philip Snowden, chancellor of the exchequer, led this fight. Adoption of a tariff would probably lead to his immediate withdrawal from the Labor cabinet. But support of the Conservatives for the tariff plan might be counted upon, since that party has long favored such a measure and has announced that a customs revenue act would be its first move upon return to power.

That the situation is considered increasingly serious is shown by the feverish activity of the cabinet, which has been in session almost constantly during the week, and by the continual participating of opposition leaders in urgent sessions with government representatives. Stanley Baldwin, Tory leader, has hurried back to London for the second time in a week to participate in these sessions that are taking place at all hours of day and night in an effort to work out acceptable compromises.

It is curious that in this tense situation no opposition party is particularly anxious to wrest the burden of responsibility from the MacDonald government. Complications are becoming so thick that the prime minister might be forced to resign, but all parties desire to avoid the necessity of a general election at this time. If a change of government should be forced by circumstances, Mr. Baldwin would be called upon to form a cabinet. That would mean a tariff and probably considerable modification of the Labor party's proposed changes in taxes on fixed incomes from securities as well as contemplated new burdens for renters. Prime Minister MacDonald has pulled out of many tight boxes in the past, and help from the opposition, for once more inclined to assist than to take over all responsibility in the present crisis, may enable him to do so again.

Gifford Pinchot proclaims that Pennsylvania is a backward pauper State. What does his partner, Joe Grundy, say to that?

If China should buy American wheat the Farm Board doubtless will send the stuff over in British ships, in order to relieve unemployment in Britain.

REALITY VS. ROMANCE

From the Boston Transcript.

Now that it has been established beyond doubt that there is vegetation on the planet Mars, along with "a thin atmosphere containing water-vapor and oxygen," interest in "worlds beyond ours" and in the possibility of visiting them has advanced by leaps and bounds. Societies for the promotion of "interplanetary navigation" have come into existence, and all sorts of schemes are being devised, radio and telepathy included, for getting into communication with intelligences believed to exist in the planets far afield. Nor are such ambitions by any means new, for as early as 1891 Mme. Guzman bequeathed to the Institute of France a prize of 100,000 francs "for the person, no matter of what nationality, who shall discover within ten years from the present time a means of communicating with a star or planet and receiving a reply." Ten years later the bequest was accepted by the French Academy of Sciences with an application of it to the planet Mars and a provision that should the prize not be won the money left would be devoted to work for general progress in astronomy.

Long before this certain literary men had taken up the theme as one of the most prolific sources of their inspiration, and they neglected not to indicate how the interplanetary navigation problem could be solved. Voltaire seems to have led off with the fictions embodied in his "Voyages of the Inhabitants of the Star Sirius to the Planets Saturn and the Earth," his hero being "Micromegas," who "now by the aid of solar ray, and now by the convenience of a comet, went from globe to globe—he and his—as the bird leaps from branch to branch." In 1827 this sort of romance took a scientific turn with Joseph Atterley's "Voyage to the Moon" in a vehicle which, carrying a substance called "lunarium," was repelled from the earth, enabling the traveler to give "some account of the manners, science and philosophy of the people of Morosophia and other lunarians." In 1880 Percy Greg described how, with the aid of "apergy" instead of "lunarium," he crossed the Zodiac and reached Mars. Latest of all came H. G. Wells with his story of those "First Men in the Moon" who succeeded in reaching the queen of night by the manipulation of blinds made of "cavorite."

But earlier than Wells the really scientific method of doing the trick was forecast by Jules Verne, who, rejecting "lunarium," "apergy" and "cavorite" as impossibilities, called in propulsive force, telling how his three voyagers were inclosed in a projectile and shot to the moon from a huge gun; some 400,000 pounds of nitroglycerin were used to explode the charge, and the concussion is said to have been so great that 5,000,000 spectators who had gathered to witness the take-off were hurled to the ground. Since then attempts have been made to send radio messages to the moon, alternating with efforts on the part of mediums to get into contact with its supposed inhabitants. The latest plan is that of "rocketing" into space by the explosive method suggested in the Verne novel, though even that leaves unsettled the issue as to how far we are justified in assuming the existence on other planets of life like that on our own. Prof. Harlow Shapley, of the Harvard Observatory, recently asserted that "even if one star in a thousand eventually develops a family system, it is probable that only rarely would one of the planets be ideal for our kind of life." Those rocketing experiments are sure to go on, and may even function as a means of settling the issue. Yet, granting all the needed possibilities, it will be a long time before an earth dweller can say to a moon dweller or a Mars dweller: "Hail, fellow, well met!"

You Can't Win High-Class Patrons If Your Place Is Filled With Sorry Loafers

By ROBERT QUILLEN

No man enjoys confessing ignorance.

Such a confession, since it commonly invites ridicule, requires moral courage, a high degree of honor, and matter-of-fact intelligence.

And people who lack these qualities, being required to choose between certain ridicule and improbable exposure, almost invariably lay claim to knowledge they don't possess.

It does not follow, however, that all people who fail to confess their ignorance are dishonest.

If a stupid man sees tadpoles fall from a rain cloud, and never has seen frog eggs in a pool, no testimony can convince him that frogs are hatched elsewhere than in the skies; or if he hears one side of a story, that to him seems plausible, no eloquence or logic can convince him that any other side exists.

So people of his class and mental caliber, having conceived some simple explanation of a mystery that puzzles wiser men, stoutly defend their opinion in the face of all opposition.

Far from concealing their ignorance, they bravely shout it from the housetops.

These are the people who know everything and therefore can learn nothing—who are doomed to ignorance because they know so many things that aren't true.

You can tell them nothing, for the simple reason that a bowl filled with mush has no room for milk.

If you join a group in which there are no scientists or serious students and venture a question concerning any problem that now disturbs the public mind—Prohibiton, for example, or the situation in Russia, or the cause of the depression, or the origin of man—every member of the group will have a ready answer.

A few, having read some popular critic's opinion, will quote it as a message from Sinai and go no further; others, having no authority except their own prejudice, will speak with the air of prophets whose word needs no support of evidence or reason.

One, perhaps, will be wise enough to say: "I do not know."

And he alone may hope to learn the truth.

Pretense of knowledge is fatal to learning.

Do you say that Russia's plan is better or worse than America's? How do you know? Have you been in Russia? What authorities have you read? How trustworthy were they? Strip your evidence of prejudice, imagination and rumor and see whether it will stand in court.

The truth makes men free—free from ignorance, error, superstition.

But your mind can't absorb truth if you are content to fill it with unsupported conjecture.

Who Will Be Speaker?

Houston Post-Dispatch.

Ever since the congressional election in 1930, speculation has been rife over which party would organize the House in the new session of Congress opening next December. It has been generally assumed that if the Democrats secured control, John N. Garner, of Texas, would be named Speaker. As the situation has developed since Congress adjourned, the probability that Garner would win the speakership has grown.

Last year the Republicans elected 218, the Democrats 216 and the Farm-Laborites 1. Since the election there have been eleven vacancies occasioned by death. Three of the vacancies have been filled by election of members of the same party as the decedents. Eight vacancies remain to be filled, four of them formerly filled by Republicans and four by Democrats. In order to be elected, Mr. Garner must hold all the 216 Democrats and pick up two more votes. In order for a Republican to be elected Speaker, he must hold every Republican vote.

As Governor of New York, Franklin D. Roosevelt, is in favor of building the ship canal connecting the Great Lakes with the Atlantic by the "All-American" route through that State.

As candidate for President, Gov. Roosevelt is in favor of completing the St. Lawrence seaway.

According to a staff correspondent of the New York Times who accompanied the governor on a tour of the State canals, "he painted a bright picture of the future of inland waterways in general, as he headed up the Mohawk Valley portion of the Barge Canal." Here is the picture:

"The governor expressed confidence that the Mohawk cities would see the day when passage of 20,000-ton vessels on an all-American canal route would be commonplace, and added that a similar picture could be drawn for the St. Lawrence-Great Lakes route. He said that he was not committed to either one alone."

In other words, says the governor-candidate, "Build 'em both!" Which ought to satisfy New York and the Middle West and everybody else, besides affording him a nice, easy way out of a difficult dilemma.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Writer Asks if Prohibition Is Responsible for Increase of Crime in Great Britain.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: An Associated Press item from London, August 11, follows: "A serious increase in crime in London in 1930, as compared with 1929, was announced in the annual report of Lord Byng, chief commissioner of police, made public yesterday.

"There were 21 murders in 1930, compared with 10 in 1929. Indictable offenses rose from 17,664 in 1929 to 20,553 in 1930."

This is saddening news which raises the question, "What is the matter with London?", Do you suppose they lay it on our eighteenth amendment?

In July the Associated Press quoted Lord Justice McCardie, in opening the Assizes at Birmingham, England, as saying, "Great Britain's crime problem is more serious than at any other time during the past 60 years." He also emphasized the fact that more youths are found among criminals than formerly.

These statements should give no surprise. Progress is the universal order of nature and sophistication is no exception to the rule either in the young or the old. Sophisticated people become more so as the years pass, and are found more "ingenious and astute" in the prosecution of crime, when they have criminal impulses.

Evil is not new, nor are evil doers recent arrivals. They have been in evidence in all the history of the human race since the days of Cain. The real question is, "What are you going to do about it?"

It is truly reassuring to know that there is an innumerable army working in relays night and day, struggling with all their might to check evil-doers and encourage well-doers. This way lies our hope.

Would Give Diplomatic Cars Right of Way to Avoid Accidents.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Why does the Government require that automobiles of foreign legations and embassies bear license plates issued by the District of Columbia? Are the drivers of the cars belonging to the foreign legations or embassies entirely immune when they drive through the streets and kill or cripple people walking or driving?

It seems that foreign attaches, if they so desire, load themselves up with wine and whisky, and while under the influence of these liquors drive their cars through our streets with a haughty disregard for the rights of the American citizen. Pedestrians are in grave danger of serious accidents and drivers of cars must be exceptionally alert or death results, due to carelessness of these foreign drivers.

In case of an accident in which a foreign attache is involved, whether under the influence of liquor or not, and whether the attache is at fault or not, the officer of the law after looking over the credentials, is compelled to allow the man to go free, and, in the same condition, repeat the same offense.

A suggestion is offered for the protection for the American citizen: Allow all foreign cars to remove the license plates, and in their place have illuminated letters so placed that the pedestrian or driver of another car can see what is coming and get out of the way, the same as in case of the fire apparatus or the hospital emergency cars.

Empress Eugenie Is Pictured by Admirer as a Beautiful and Dignified Woman.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I notice that practically all the newspapers dedicated a few lines to the new hats designed under what they call the Empress Eugenie style.

Not being very interested in women's clothes, I would not trouble you with this letter had not my attention been attracted by a United Press story referring to the new mode, and making statements regarding the empress, which as a Spaniard and a great admirer of Eugenie de Montijo, I feel I should not leave unanswered.

It would be out of place, I suppose, to answer here the historical remarks of the United Press correspondent, as anybody who takes the trouble of reading the history of the Second Empire can not help admiring the always dignified behavior of Napoleon's wife. As for her life in Spain, when she was just the Countess of Teba, the correspondent has certainly not read Prosper Merimee's "Letters and Memoirs," referring to Eugenie since she was a child. I mention the opinion of a Frenchman who could not dream then that some day that beautiful little girl was to become his empress.

I wonder what is the ideal type of a lady for this correspondent. Maybe a woman of Chicago who brays through her nose, chews gum, drinks amoco gas and necks with the first volunteer who passes by.

Citizen Fears That Congress, in Extra Session, Might Relieve the Unemployment as It Did the Farmer.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: We beg of you, in the interest of humanity, to use the influence of your great paper against the calling of an extra session of Congress to deal with the unemployment situation. If Congress should relieve the unemployed as it did the American farmer, we would never be the same again. In fact, we would probably never be able to accept employment should it be offered. A little relief will be acceptable, but we don't want to be as thoroughly relieved as the farmers have been. Perhaps you could find something for Gov. Pinchot to do to keep him still until spring. Suggest to him that he take another cruise around the world and give the rest of us a chance.

LEGION OF VIRGINIA OPENS CONVENTION

Prohibition Question Faces Meeting as It Buckles Down to Business.

Clifton Forge, Va., Aug. 23 (A.P.).—Facing the assertion by R. A. Ware, local post commander, that he will force the prohibition question before them, and an enthusiastically contested three-cornered race for State commander, Virginia legionnaires went into their annual three-day convention here today.

Commander Ware has said in a public statement that he intends to bring the matter of prohibition before the Virginia Legion for an expression of opinion, even over the protest of State officers.

The campaign for the office of State commander, as successor to Roby C. Thompson, of Abingdon, who is retiring, has been waged among Sam Heller, of Norfolk; M. E. Bristow, of Richmond, and Charles H. McKinney, of Harrisonburg.

Among the distinguished guests who have been invited to the convention are Gov. Pollard, Maj. Gen. John A. Lejeune, superintendent of V. M. I.; Brig. Gen. Samuel Gardner Waller, State adjutant general; Col. Leroy Hodges, managing director of the Virginia State Chamber of Commerce; Col. Julian Hill, of Richmond; Col. George E. Ijams, director of the United States Veterans' Bureau; Col. E. W. Jordan, regional manager of the United States Veterans' Bureau, Richmond; Watson B. Miller, chairman of the national rehabilitation committee; Robert Tolson, assistant chairman of the national rehabilitation committee; Louis A. Johnson, commander of the West Virginia department, and local officials.

The program today includes registration, dedication of a legion hut, dinner with the 40 and 8, special church services, and a special show at the Masonic Theater.

Following the opening ceremonies tomorrow there will be addresses of welcome by Commander Ware, Mayor F. H. Wheeler, and Eugene Mathews, president of the Chamber of Commerce. Mrs. B. M. Roszel, auxiliary department president, will extend greetings, and the response will be made by State Commander Thompson. Business and addresses will take the remainder of Monday morning. In the afternoon the convention will caucus by districts to nominate the executive committee, and delegates and alternates to the national convention. After the legion and firemen's festival and dinner will come the department commander's ball.

Business and speeches will be in order Tuesday morning. After other addresses in the afternoon, the convention parade will be held. Tuesday evening will be taken over by the 40 and 8, with a banquet, grand march, "grand wreck," and the day will close with the grand military auxiliary ball.

The convention will be concluded Wednesday with the election of department officers as the principal business.

MARYLAND BANDITS LOSE IN GUNFIGHT

Cumberland Policeman Is Saved From Bullets in Fall Over Embankment.

Special to The Washington Post.

Cumberland, Md., Aug. 23.—Four bandits were driven off by police at the plant of the Cumberland Baking Co., Inc., early this morning after they had forced a window.

Robert Hast, an employe, who happened along, saw men acting suspiciously and ran to a police alarm box nearby. Before the officers responded Hast came back to the plant by another route and was confronted by two men with revolvers and told to move on.

When Officers Frank A. Young, Clem D. Davis and James E. Van arrived, Young was about to enter the building, thinking the robbers were inside. They had hidden in the weeds nearby and, upon being discovered by Young, who used his flashlight, opened fire. As Young replied with two shots, he accidentally fell over an embankment, and this evidently saved him as the quartet fired about 30 shots with their automatics as they retreated. Young emptied his gun, reloaded and returned fire. The building bears many bullet marks. One bullet crashed into the bathroom of J. Vincent Yarnall, Columbia avenue, striking the mirror. A member of the family had just left the room.

This gang is believed to have been the same that early yesterday morning blew the safe at the plant of the Independent Oil Co.

Jefferson Group Fights Dropping Farm Agent

Special to The Washington Post.

Winchester, Va., Aug. 25.—The Jefferson County Farm Bureau has announced itself as being so "greviously displeased" with the action of the county court in declining to contribute to the salary of the county farm agent the coming year that it has decided to test the State law bearing on the case.

A writ of mandamus also has been obtained from Judge Rodgers in circuit court requiring the county court to show cause for not appropriating the necessary funds for the county's share of an agent's salary. A hearing on the writ is to be held at Martinsburg April 28.

RECENT RAINS FAIL TO DAMAGE ROADS

Several Highways Flooded in Virginia for Short Time; Work Is Delayed.

Richmond, Va., Aug. 23 (A.P.).—Department of Highways announcements today said that recent heavy rains over the entire State, which were most severe in the Richmond vicinity, caused high water on several roads for a short while, and in some places traffic was held up for 30 minutes, but no serious damage resulted, and all highways were reported open.

Sections of resurfacing and construction were muddy, but with one or two exceptions where traffic was being helped through, all were passable.

On the Richmond-Danville road through Amelia, Burkeville, Keysville and Halifax, resurfacing was under way on about ten miles west of Richmond, and for several miles between Appomattox River and Amelia. These sections were muddy in places and rough, but passable. To avoid this work, the announcement said the best route was by Farmville, over route 13 from Richmond, or by Petersburg and South Hill. Both roads were in good condition.

Some Widening Work.

The only construction on U. S. route 1 from Richmond to Washington was widening work between Richmond and Ashland. Traffic was cautioned to drive carefully on the widening just north of Richmond. Richmond to Petersburg and to the North Carolina line U. S. route 1 was clear of construction.

On U. S. Route 11, through the Shenandoah Valley, widening construction was under way south of Woodstock and south of New Market. From Staunton to Lexington, Natural Bridge and Roanoke, all the road was paved and good. The only construction between Roanoke and Bristol is at a bridge just west of Wytheville, two railroad crossings near Marion and widening near Bristol.

United States Route 15, from Maryland State line to the North Carolina State line, was hard surfaced and in good condition all the way, except about a mile of new soil road at Palmyra, which was a little soft and slippery.

The pavement on route 17, the Spottswood Trail between Gordonsville and Harrisonburg, was expected to be completed and open within the next few weeks, but at the present traffic is using several miles of the old soil road.

Doing Surfacing Work.

The section of route 17 just north of Goshen, on the road from Staunton to Hot Springs, was being surfaced with loose shale and was slippery and disagreeable to travel for several miles, but passable.

Between Wytheville and Bluefield, on United States route 21, resurfacing was going on, preparatory to oiling and the road was soft and muddy in places.

The construction on both routes 18 and U. S. 29, south of Lynchburg was completed.

Route 30 between Central Garage and King William Courthouse had been resurfaced for oiling and was rough and muddy in places. Traffic from Richmond to West Point could avoid this work by going through Bottoms Bridge and New Kent over route 415, which was in good condition all the way.

On route 39 from Richmond to Ashland, Louisa, Charlottesville, Waynesboro, the road was generally good, with widening underway north of Richmond.

All Routes Open.

All roads from Richmond to Norfolk and Virginia Beach were open and in good condition.

The construction between Virginia Beach and Ocean View on United States route 60 had been opened and the detour aandoned. From Newport News to Richmond the road is good. From Richmond to Farmville, resurfacing and oiling was under way just west of Richmond and east of Amelia. Richmond-Farmville traffic was using routes 13 and 310 through Cumberland and Powhatan.

The road from Farmville to Lynchburg, Natural Bridge, Lexington and Covington to the West Virginia line was good, except for several short, slippery places where the new and old roads cross on construction, just out of Lynchurg.

Mrs. Morgan Will Visit at Bloom Home

Former Member of State Department Set to Arrive Today.

Right in the midst of the summer lull comes Mrs. Stokeley Morgan, late of New York and Paris, to liven things up a bit. She will arrrive in Washington today, to be the guest of Representative and Mrs. Sol Bloom and their daughter, Miss Vera Bloom, at their summer residence, Hemlock Hedge, in Edgemoor, which they leased early in the season from the former Postmaster General and Mrs. Harry S. New. Mrs. Morgan plans to be here about a week.

Mr. Morgan remained in New York, where he is associated with an investment company which, shortly after his resignation from the foreign service, sent him to Paris as European representative, and last winter sent him to South America. With Mrs. Morgan, he expects to return to the French capital to continue his work. In the meantime, Washington has seen very little of the Morgans, who are so affectionately remembered here.

Mr. Morgan was for several years chief of the Latin-American division in the State Department, and he and his wife, the former Ann Kupche, of Riga, Latvia, were among the most popular members of the younger State Department circle. Mrs. Morgan, a finished pianist, shared laurels with her husband, whose wit and clever repartee made him a sought-after guest.

When they returned to Washington from Mexico, where Mr. Morgan had served as counsel of embassy, Mr. Morgan tendered his resignation to accept the offer which took him to Paris. There the Morgan's maintained an enchanting ultra-modernist apartment on the Avenue Wagram. It is known as the Villa Berthier and stands on the site of old Marshal Berthier's home, which was presented to him by Napoleon.

Designed by the architect who executed the interior of the S. S Isle de France, the color scheme, following the dictates of modernism, is black and silver, effectively offset by indirect lighting.

The Japanese Ambassador, M. Katsuji Debuchi, has returned to Buena Vista Springs after spending a short time in Washington. Mme. Debuchi and their family have been in the mountains since early summer, the ambassador coming to Washington for brief visits each week during the season. The ambassador and his family will return from Pennsylvania the middle of next month for a short stay before going to San Francisco preparatory to sailing for their native country.

Turkish Ambassador To Greet Nonstop Fliers.

The Ambassador of Turkey, Mr. Ahmet Muhtar, will leave Washington today for Boston, where he will attend the celebration in honor of Mr. Russell Boardman and Mr. John Polando, who were the first to make a nonstop flight from the United States to Turkey. The Ambassador will spend four or five days in Massachusetts.

The Ambassador of Germany, Herr Friedrich W. Von Prittwitz und Gaffron, will be joined in Washington the end of next month by Frau Von Prittwitz und Gaffron and their little daughter Marisa, who remained in Germany after the return of the ambassador to Washington last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Williams Visit Ambassador at Le Touquet.

Mr. John W. Williams, of Baltimore, who sailed recently for France, has joined his wife and their three children at Le Touquet, where they are guests of the United States Ambassador to France and Mrs. Walter Evans Edge. Mrs. Williams is a sister of Mrs. Edge.

Mrs. Louis Lehr, wife of Dr. Lehr, and Miss Mary Elkins Reed, of Baltimore, who are spending the summer in Europe, visited Corsica recently and before returning to this country in the fall they will spend some time in Paris.

Mrs. Fahnestock to Judge Sand Modeling Contest.

Special to The Washington Post.

Newport, R. I., Aug. 23.—Mrs. Woodbury Blair, Mrs. Henry P. Fletcher, Gen. and Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt, Mrs. Gibson Fahnestock and Rear Admiral and Mrs. Harris Laning, members of the summer colony, are among the patrons and patronesses for the annual recital which Miss Alice Louise Williams will give at the Historical Society rooms on Thursday.

Luigi Notarbartolo di Villarosa, attache of the Italian Embassy, was a guest at The Viking during the week while visiting the Naval War College.

Mrs. Gibson Fahnestock, of Washington, will serve as one of the judges for the sand modeling contest which will be the feature at Bailey's Beach next Saturday afternoon. The contest, in which the children of the colonists participate in large numbers, is always an outstanding event each season at the beach and several hundred are expected to witness the event following the usual tennis competition at the Casino.

Mrs. Herbert Shipman, of Washington and New York, gave a large dinner party last evening at her estate, Seaview Terrace, on Ochre Point in honor of Miss Beatrice de Menocal, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel A. de Menocal, of Boston, who will be formally presented to society this winter. A dinner was also given by Dr. and Mrs. Truman Laurance Saunders in honor of their debutante daughter, Miss Elizabeth Saunders, at Edna Villa. Mrs. Augustine L. Humes had a dance at her villa to introduce her daughter, Miss Valarie Graham.

Providing a fitting climax to the golden jubilee tennis tournament, the subscription dance held this evening by members of the younger set at the Casino clubhouse was attended by a large gathering of the cottagers in addition to the players who had competed in the court event. Prior to the dance Mrs. Tuckerman Draper had a dinner with music for her daughter, Miss Diana Draper, 30 guests in attendance. Brig. Gen. and Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt, who are occupying Beaulieu, their estate on Bellevue avenue, and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Betts Hillhouse were also among those entertaining.

Friday afternoon Mrs. Frederick F. Rogers gave a luncheon at her villa on Kay street in honor of Miss Peggy Howe, daughter of Commander and Mrs. William Bingham Howe, whose engagement to Ensign Henry S. Wygant, U. S. Navy, was recently announced.

Owing to the dance at the Casino the annual tennis ball which Mr. and Mrs. Stuart Duncan have given in recent years at Bonniecrest was abandoned, but another entertainment, which was largely attended, was given by Mr. and Mrs. George Eustis Paine at Shady Lawn, one of the most attractive estates in the colony. The electrical display was the most elaborate for an entertainment during the current season and guests from numerous dinner parties were among those in attendance.

Next Wednesday Mrs. Herbert Shipman, who has extensively entertained at Seaview Terrace, the estate of her father, Edson Bradley, of Washington, will have a fashion show as a benefit for the Rocky Farm camp for crippled children, and much interest is being evidenced in the event by members of the colony.

Princess Miguel de Braganza was the donor of the prizes offered this afternoon for the weekly tombstone golf competition at the Country Club and, as usual, there was a large field of entries. The prizes for the ringer tournament which has been in progress at the links for some time have been offered by Mr. and Mrs. Richard Van Nest Gambrill, while Mrs. Wilber A. Blobdgood will donate the prizes for the tombstone event during the coming week-end.

Mme. Charlambos J. Simopoulos, wife of the Greek Minister, who has been among the active entertainers in the colony for several seasons, is a patroness for the operetta, "Maritana," which will be given by the Swanhurst Choral Club, August 31. Mrs. Harris Laning and Mrs. Gibson Fahnestock are also among the patronesses for the event.

The Public and Business Have a Mutual Interest in Advertising

Advertising is an important factor in the business life of America. It is no less important to you, as a member of the public, than it is to advertisers themselves.

Advertising properly and accurately prepared serves as a source of information on merchandise and services, and enables you, as a member of the public, to satisfy your desires and needs with the least possible effort.

Advertising is news — style news — value news—when, where and what-to-buy news. It tells the story of new appliances, new materials, new conveniences and how to use them. It tells of the service of financial institutions and service organizations. It is helpful with suggestions.

Because of its great service to the public and to business, it simply must be kept believable.

Truthful, straightforward advertising is a great and constructive force. Reputable advertisers and advertising media are cooperating with the Better Business Bureau in an effort to keep advertising truthful. The public can help by reporting instances where advertising has been found to be misleading, false, inaccurate or deceptive.

The appearance of this advertisement in these columns is evidence that this newspaper cooperates with and supports the Better Business Bureau for your protection.

DIAL FLASHES

By ROBERT D. HEINL

AN address by Vice President Charles Curtis on the opening night of the forty-third international convention of the Loyal Order of Moose, at Atlantic City, N. J., will be broadcast tonight (WMAL, 8:45 p. m.).

The Vice President, who will talk on "Child Welfare," will be introduced by Senator James J. Davis, of Pennsylvania.

The welcome to Russell Boardman and John Polando on their return from their record long-distance flight to Istanbul, Turkey, will be broadcast locally by WMAL this morning. The fliers will be greeted first by Acting Mayor Joseph V. McKee then escorted to a luncheon in their honor given by the New York Advertising Club.

With the association of Station WFBR, with the WEAF network, Baltimore now has full network coverage for the first time. WBAL synchronizes with WJZ part of each day and takes additional programs when it is operating on its own wave length. Local reception difficulties prevented Baltimore listeners from tuning-in network transmissions from other cities with any degree of success.

Daily reports by radio of the activities of the League of Nations and its various committees will be made by William Hard who is being sent by the NBC to Geneva, for that purpose. Mr. Hard expects to reach Switzerland on September 1. Efforts will be made to have the first broadcast a day or two thereafter.

This will mark Mr. Hard's second visit to Europe as a representative of the NBC. In 1930, he attended the London Naval Conference, broadcasting reports of the activities of this meeting.

THE launching and flight of the Navy's dirigible Akron from her Ohio hangar is one of the next special events scheduled for broadcasting. The exact date of the trial flight has not been set, but NBC has completed arrangements for a Nation-wide description as she rides out for the first time.

The forthcoming thirty-fifth annual National Amateur Golf Championship will be discussed by H. H. Ramsay, president of the U. S. Golf Association, when he is interviewed by Ted Husing this afternoon (WMAL, 4:30 p. m.). The tournament is scheduled to be played at the Beverly Country Club, in Chicago, beginning Monday, August 31.

Daily high points of the early rounds and hole-by-hole descriptions of the final play will be given by both major networks.

A new weekly series, "Thrillers," dramatizing the adventures of D. Thomas Curtin, roving correspondent, who was described by Lord Northcliffe as "the man who saw more of the war than any other newspaperman," will begin tomorrow night (WRC, 8 p. m.).

During hostilities he slipped into Germany and tramped more than a thousand miles in search of "copy" for the London Daily Mail and the London Times. He saw fighting on many fronts with the Germans, Austrians, Serbians, Russians, Belgians, French, British and Americans.

The first episode, "When Stakes Ran High," will be a dramatization of a blockade-running adventure in the Baltic during the early part of the war. He will be assisted by a group of actors, including Charles Warburton and William Shelley.

Another new dramatic series will be known as "Danger Lines of History" (WJZ network, tomorrow night, 8:30 p. m.).

REPORTS that the Ford Motor Co. would launch a big radio campaign this fall were heard in New York this week, according to Editor and Publisher.

"While it was understood that final decision has not yet been reached," the notice read, "it was expected that the broadcasts will consist of village sketches, with the scenes laid in Henry Ford's reproduction of an early American town at Dearborn. It was reported that Marc Connelly, producer of 'The Green Pastures,' would be called in to advise on the productions."

Lum and Abner, hillbillies from Arkansas, who took the place of Gene and Glenn during their vacation, will return to the air in their own program over the WJZ network, today, 2 p. m.

Some of Schubert's most popular operatic writing, and the finale from one of his lesser known symphonies, will make up the program to be conducted by Howard Barlow tomorrow night (WMAL, 7:45 p. m.).

A description of "The Press Gallery at Work" will be given by Bascom N. Timmons, veteran newspaperman and secretary of the National Press Club, during "Bill Schudt's Going to Press" period on Wednesday, 5 p. m.

AN added attraction on Columbia's late evening dance band schedules will be Bing Crosby and orchestra. His opening date will be announced shortly.

Crosby has enjoyed great popularity as a recording star and has been busy lately on the Hollywood movie lots.

Dare Interprets the Mode

Black crepe de chine frock, with tiny white dots, whose interesting collar, vest and girdle effect are of white crepe de chine with tiny green dots. (Courtesy of Bruyere, Paris).

New York, August 23.

SQUARE your shoulders and join in the great autumn fashion parade that has formed in Paris and is trickling quickly and steadily into our smart shops! Square your shoulders, my deahs, and give 'em a look of proud satisfaction if they are broad and well carried. Because, with frocks in all the latest collections giving great stress to odd shoulders and shoulder yokes and things of that sort, it's up to us to display them to advantage.

Just when the sleeves get plain after a riotous summer, the shoulders become odd and original, perhaps to make up for the restrained sleeves! Shoulder yokes of embroidery, drawn work, a contrasting material, or beading, are seen on daytime frocks and suits of both wool and silk fabrics, and these yokes extend from the collar line to a point midway between elbow and shoulder in the conservative version, and all the way to the elbow in slightly more spectacular versions. Frocks otherwise plain concentrate their trimming at the shoulders and the result is delightful indeed.

This type of frock is very becoming to the woman whose hips are large in proportion to the upper half of her figure, because it does broaden the shoulders and minimize the breadth of the rest of the figure. It adds a look of youth and health and an erect carriage quite in keeping with the more strenuous activities of autumn.

Frocks in vivid colors have self-color yokes and embroideries, and back and neutral shades use white incrustations and gay embroideries and beading. Mamzell writes that she saw a very chic emerald green canton frock in the collections a week or so ago, perfectly slim and straight in line, and with an odd drawnwork yoke giving the trim, broad-shouldered effect. Volla!

* * * *

Teeny little dots, soft fabrics, soft lines, and an odd and lovely way to attain the so-fashionable diagonal line! These are some of the reasons for the loveliness of the informal afternoon frock from Bruyere, which is illustrated today. The frock itself is of black crepe de chine with wee, widely separated white dots, and the collar and vestee, which extends in a point below the girdle, is of white crepe de chine with small green dots. 'N' the loose, one-sided bolero effect of the dress is very smart and graceful!

Have you a frock of this sort in your own wardrobe? If not, why not? You'd have millions of uses for it—and the happy knowledge that you'd always be attractive in it.

'N' speaking of little dots, varicolored, tiny wooden beads are all strung together to form a perfectly fascinating scarf and six-sided bag with a wooden handle!

* * * *

Little drops of water, little grains of sand—the beautiful blue ocean and the shining yellow shores! A tiny package of dye, a few snips with knowing scissors—and the result? A smart autumn wardrobe, and lots of time to wear and enjoy it! And the point of the whole thing is that you can start these little-by-littles right now if you only know how! And you can find out how by sending your stamped, self-addressed envelope right away to the Dare Department of The Washington Post for this week's illustrated leaflet, in which your own Dah-ray tells all about Making Ready and Over for Autumn.

* * * *

And then there's Dare's weekly fashion letter. Watch for it in The Sunday Post.

Au revoir.

CULBERTSON ON CONTRACT

By ELY CULBERTSON

World's Champion Player and Greatest Card Analyst

FORCING BRIDGE.

Forcing Opening bids have furnished a fruitful topic for impassioned discussion wherever Contract players meet.

The principle of the Force is easy to state and made an immediate appeal to almost all Contract players. Perhaps, in a slight degre, it fed the inferiority complexes of the more timid, as to be in a position to require that your Partner, who might be a much stronger player, do some particular thing by your direction, was a very arresting thought.

I regard Opening bids of two as a necessary evil. They should be made only on hands so strong that you fear that unless you open with a bid which compels a response from partner, his hand may be so weak that he would be compelled to pass. However, if you are to compel your partner to respond, even although he holds a trickless hand, your holding of honor-tricks and your strength in playing-tricks must be such as to guarantee the partnership against serious loss.

Opening Forcing bids made with inadequate strength have a habit of ending disastrously and players who are inclined to shade the requirements for such bids soon find, to their dismay, that the hope for games does not materialize. The reason is self-evident. The hand did not justify a bid compelling a response from partner.

Take this example:

Spades	A K 5 4 3
Hearts	A K 6
Diamonds	A 8 5
Clubs	9 4

The hand, it is true, contains 5 honor-tricks, but it must find very material support in partner's hand to make game probable. The number of honor-tricks and the number of playing-tricks are practically the same. A low-card-trick may be developed in the spade suit or even if partner holds adequate support for the spades, 2 low-card-tricks might be brought home in that suit, but if partner's hand is otherwise worthless, that would give a total of only 7 tricks and if this hand was opened with a bid of two, compelling partner to continue to respond until a game contract was reached, then the resultant penalty with a trickless hand opposite would be considerable, even although its holder was not vulnerable. If vulnerable, the loss could easily be 1,000 points.

There are two reasons why this hand should not be opened with a bid of two. The first is its distribution, which makes impractical the development of low-card tricks, and the second is lack of sufficient honor-tricks to compel a response from partner.

This hand is of the type known to those who make a study of the structure of hands, as notrump distribution because there are so few of the small cards in it which can, by any possibility, be developed into winners. Hands of the notrump type must be stronger in honors to justify opening with a Forcing bid.

Thus, with the hand given above, the safe and wise opening bid is one spade because it is not strong enough to warrant any hope of game unless partner has the strength to give either a free Raise or make a free Take-out.

A free Raise is one justified by the cards held and not made in response to a Force.

A free Takeout is of the same type, ly that it offers an alternative bid and implies a lack of adequate trump support for the suit bid by partner.

Opposite this hand, if partner can bid freely without the compulsion of a Force, a game is a reasonable possibility. If he has been compelled to respond and holds neither honor-tricks nor playing-tricks in support of partner's bid, then the Declarer may just as well expect the worst and be prepared for a very considerable loss.

Therefore, in the Culbertson System, the following are the minimum requirements for opening with Forcing bids of two in a suit:

If holding at least 5½ honor-tricks in three suits: With any biddable four or five card suit.

Example:

Spades	A K Q 4
Hearts	A K J 9 8
Diamonds	A 2
Clubs	K 3

If holding 5 honor-tricks in three suits: With a strong six-card suit or a two-suiter.

Example:

Spades	A K Q 5 4 2
Hearts	A K 6 3
Clubs	2

If holding 4½ honor-trick in three suits: With long solid trump suit or a freak two-suiter.

Example:

Spades	A K Q J 5 4
Hearts	3
Diamonds	A K 9
Clubs	Q J 9 or
Spades	A K Q 7 6
Hearts	A K 10 6 5
Diamonds	K 3
Clubs	5

In the first case partner's 5½ honor-tricks fairly adequately safeguard the partnership, even although the Responding Hand is trickless, as game can probably be developed at notrump.

In the second instance, the length and strength of the spade suit as well as the favorable distribution are insurance against loss and provide assurance of a game if a fit in the combined hands can be found.

The last two examples show hands in which distributional values are so great that the honor-trick requirements may be reduced to the absolute minimum.

Adherence to these rules and an understanding of the principles underlying them, will probably reduce greatly the number of Opening bids of two that you find in the hands dealt you at the Contract table, but they will also tremendously increase the number of game contracts based upon an Opeing bid of two that you find it possible to make, even although partner holds the desired bust.

TODAY'S POINTER.

Value of the Hand in Defense.

Against an opponent's trump bid low-card tricks in side suits cease to exist, and the ruffing value of short suits becomes quite remote. There remain but trumps and honors in side suits.

The sum of trump tricks and taking honors give the measure of strength against opponents' trump bids.

(Copyright, 1931.)

Indoor—Outdoor Gardens

LAWNS AND DANDELIONS.

WE want the lawn but not the dandelions. The first is a bit hard to get, at least it takes time and some labor to establish a velvety lawn and the dandelions arrive without an invitation and are hard to get rid of.

The first requisite of a good lawn is a sharp mower. Cutting with a dull mower does more harm than good, as it breaks or pinches off the spears of the grass, and as a result the sod takes on a blackened appearance. Early in the season you should observe at which height your grass looks best, then set the knives of your mower so that they cut one-half inch below this height. Always allow the clippings to remain on the lawn as they act as a mulch.

During a drought cease all mowing and only water your grass once or twice a week, but when you do give it water, give it plenty. Never sprinkle grass about seven times a week.

About August 20 the knives of the mower should be raised one-half inch above the usual cutting height. As fall approaches cuttings should be less frequent. The last time you mow the grass for this season should be about two weeks before the grass ceases growing. Grass should go into winter just short of falling over. In such a condition it should winter well and come up 100 per cent alive in April.

To rid your lawn of dandelions without uprooting them, spray the weeds with a solution of iron sulphate. This solution is made by dissolving 1 pound of iron sulphate in each gallon of water. This quantity should cover 150 square feet of lawn. Several applications of this preparation will be necessary to kill the dandelions. Make the applications four weeks apart. You must be sure that the liquid covers all the foliage. The lawn may take on a blackened appearance after each application, but this will soon pass off.

Never use lime on your lawn if you have dandelions. As a rule a lawn that is growing vigorously has few if any weeds.

Police Order Longer Skirts for Waitresses

Mishima, Japan (U.P.).—Police inspected the legs of more than 150 waitresses of this city and decided that knees must be covered. An order was published that girls must wear skirts at least 4 inches below the knee cap.

In line with the tendency of Japan to go Occidental, waitresses in all so-called "foreign-style" eating and drinking places were dressed some years ago in a Japanese conception of a French maid's uniform, with a tiny skirt exposing the crooked legs of the girls. Nearly all Japanese women have bad legs because of their habit of sitting on the floor.

What Today Means to You

"VIRGO"

IF August 24 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 8:30 a. m. to 9:30 a. m., from 2 p. m. to 3:45 p. m. and from 7 p. m. to 10 p. m. The danger hours are from 10:30 a. m. to noon, and from 5 p. m. to 6:30 p. m.

Events on August 24 may change conditions of your present life, and play an important part in the shaping of your future. The Fates, however, are guarding your security and happiness. All accustomed routine will be upset or forgotten.

The child born on this August 24 will have a proud, an intelligent and unfathomable nature. It will be a willing worker at its studies, and will exhibit a pronounced talent for some particular line of endeavor. It will have very deep affections.

Born on August 24, you have a stubborn, restricted, steady, pragmatic, silent and reliable nature. You do not exhibit any outward enthusiasms, and your personality is unsparkling. You assume a serious attitude toward life, and you do not expect to draw dividends from it without having first made investments. Having a constructive brain, you should be allied to the business world. You are most practical, and are able to make the most of conditions.

You are intellectually arrogant, and are lacking in tact. You are inclined to think that your way of doing things is the only right way, and you are a severe critic of other methods. You are too domineering with subordinates, and thereby often lose their loyalty. It might be said that you are a driver, and not a leader. You are fairly accurate in your judgments, especially as to character analysis.

You should fight against a melancholy tendency and the giving way to worry and anxiety. You have strong leanings to everything pertaining to the home life and family affairs. If a man, you are a generous provider, and a benevolent ruler within the home. You are too silent, and diffident to be a popular scoial figure, but you know how to be a good companion with those whom you know and love.

West Virginia County Seeks Names for Babies

New Cumberland, W. Va. (U.P.).—Selection of names for babies in Hancock County has swerved from the more popular names of John and Mary to the unusual.

The monthly report of the State health department showed that of the 51 babies born, only one was named Mary, two John, two Nicholas and four Betty. Many parents sought the unusual for their offspring.

CAUTION DOMINATES AUTUMN'S BUSINESS

Hopes of Early Price Gains Disappear as Trade Plans Recovery.

New York, Aug. 23 (A.P.).—Business has drifted close to the end of the vacation season, with preparations for the autumn trade season going forward with a considerable degree of caution. The lack of more tangible signs of the seasonal upswing has been deplored by some observers, although sudden changes infrequently appear at this season, and were not apparent a year ago at this time.

No such sanguine hopes of a sudden revival of prosperity as were held a year ago now stands in the way of dealing with the serious problems of the depression, such as unemployment and international debts. A considerable fog has, therefore, been lifted and the dangers of blind, false starts largely removed.

The most encouraging development of the past week has been the spectacular stemming of the frenzied and immeasurably wasteful production of crude oil from the east Texas field.

The wheat market has been steadied by reports of deterioration of the Canadian crop, and unfavorable weather in Europe. News that the Farm Board had arranged to trade 25,000,000 bushels of its holdings, or roughly 10 per cent, for Brazilian coffee, was received with mixed feelings.

Cotton was under considerable pressure, and again recorded new low levels for several years. The drastic decline in this commodity has had an unsettling influence on cotton textiles, but the wool market remained active, and woolen mills continue to operate at the best levels in some time. The shoe makers are also maintaining their high rate of activity, but the leather market has been adversely affected by price uncertainties arising from a decline in prices in Argentina.

Retail trade, as the summer wears to its close, is still dominated by clearance sales. Such fall showings of merchandise as have been made are reported as having attracted a fair degree of interest. Wholesalers still complain of spotty business and buyers' caution in laying in stocks.

The steel industry continues, as it has in recent weeks, to fluctuate between 30 and 32 per cent of capacity, coming back to the higher level this week. A little better inquiry from the automobile makers has appeared during the week, and heavy construction projects remain a sustaining factor.

The weekly freight car loadings figures disclosed the substantial decline of more than 20,000 cars, in contrast to a tendency to turn upward at this period in previous years.

ABOUT THE SHOWSHOPS

With DON B. REED

THROUGH a rapid exchange of wires between this office and backstage at the Earle, an exchange which will increase the telegraph company's next dividend, this column is permitted this morning to reveal the "scoop" of the century. Joe Penner hasn't any duck.

I know, because he told me so himself. So those in Washington who hear him say to Fred Clark, "Wanna buy a duck?" during the remainder of the week, please don't yell out "Yes." It will be very embarrassing, because, in Joe's own words, "it's too late. I just sold it."

Seriously speaking, however, if that may be done with Joe Penner as the subject of conversation, this inimitable comedian seems to grow in Capital favor with each appearance. Joe, it seems, developed his "wanna buy a duck" when he was sent to Pittsburgh some years ago to rescue a stage unit which was passing out on its feet for want of comedy. Unable to reach the Smoky City in time for rehearsal, Joe just wandered out on the stage as the master of ceremonies was making his first announcement and with the expression of an amiable half-wit inquired, "Wanna buy a duck?" They laughed at this youngster in suit a couple of sizes too big, and they have been laughing at him ever since. With all the success that has come with his work on the stage and in short motion picture subjects, Joe has retained his inherent modesty and he'd rather talk about anything than Joe Penner.

While on the subject of the Earle program, my first impression Saturday night when Charles Kemper walked out in Harry Delmar's revue, was that Jim Lundy, the Loew press agent had succumbed to the lure of the footlights. A second glance informed me that Kemper is slightly heavier than Jim but there is a marked resemblance and both of them are decidedly funny.

A number of District firemen and policemen, who have been rewarded recently for meritorious service in line of duty, have been forwarded passes for themselves and their families, to attend "The Public Defender" now showing at RKO-Keith's. Manager Meakin felt the policemen and firemen were public defenders and would appreciate the efforts of Richard Dix in the picture.

The response to the Fox Theater's call for boys and girls between 7 and 18 years of age to form the Fox Military Band, was all that could have been desired. When noses were counted Saturday morning, 128 youngsters were present. Because of the large group Capt. J. B. Mackenzie, who will drill the band, divided it into two sections. The first will include those who have instruments and have had previous instruction while the second will be made up of beginners. The learning class will meet hereafter on Saturday mornings at 8:45 o'clock in the dancing school hall while the senior group will rehearse at 10 o'clock in the same place.

Although "The Smiling Lieutenant" at the Columbia is very amusing, smart and all told, a very excellent picture, I was among those somewhat disappointed that Miriam Hopkins and Claudette Colbert did not put on a ten-round bout. Early publicity on the feature indicated that the girls had fought so hard while the cameras were grinding that it almost ruined a lovely friendship, but when the film appeared Saturday all the pair did was take one slap and then burst into tears. However, the lack of pugilistic episodes is hardly noticed in the wealth of sarcasm tossed at royalty by the director and author. Probably the funniest scene is where the chancellor of something or other, after a minute inspection of the chamber by two of the court staff, taps three times on the floor and declares the room "a royal bed chamber." But you have to see it to appreciate the dig behind it.

Mr. W. A. Whitney, who represented this department at the preview of "Bad Girl" yesterday noon at the Fox, has just dropped upon this desk three or four typewritten pages full of high-sounding adjectives which seem to indicate that he thinks "Bad Girl" is pretty swell entertainment. Rather than use all Mr. Whitney's excellent phraseology, thereby robbing him in case he has to review the film some again, I'll just give some brief quotations from his afterthoughts. "'Bad Girl' is a great picture—a slice right out of human endeavor. Sally Eilers gives a characterization that beats anything she has assayed. James Dunn is self-assured and pleasingly domineering. Even though Frank Borzage had made no name for himself as one of the screen's most thoughtful and intelligent directors, this picture has certainly put him there."

And so on far into the night, but for those who are really anxious to get a first peek at "Bad Girl," the Fox is putting on a special show Thursday night beginning at 11:30 o'clock and at the usual prices. It opens regularly at the theater Friday.

Now if we could only get a little shower to settle all this dust.

RAIL BONDS DECLINE IS MARKET FEATURE

Ten Leading Issues Drop to New Low Levels; Other Loans in Slump.

New York, Aug. 23 (A.P.).—The persistent decline in railway issues was the most significant development of the bond market last week.

The average price of ten leading issues declined successively to new low levels for the year or longer, and a large number of rail bonds closed the week at the lowest prices in years. The underlying causes of this movement are not hard to find. The unsatisfactory earnings of the railroads have been recognized for months. The threat of this factor extends to the standing of rail issues as legal investments for savings banks, a consideration which tends to keep rail bonds steady or firm in prosperous times.

As the margin of earnings over fixed charges decreases the time approaches when the bonds lose their legal investment standing and no longer are eligible for institutional buying.

Consequently there is the prospect of an important market for these issues being lost. Some of the current weakness may be ascribed to anticipation of this condition on the part of other holders. Some of the losses are ascribed to liquidation on the part of commercial banks. It is impossible to measure the exact influence of such factors, but is easy to understand how they operate on the market trend.

Another consideration is the outcome of the carriers' petition for a 15 per cent increase in freight rates. The approval of the petition would at least encourage the hope of early increases in revenues, but recent hearings before the Interstate Commerce Commission have indicated that powerful groups of shippers of the country are strongly opposed to increased rates.

Corporate bonds generally were lower, although the decline in the rest of the list was not so marked as in the rails. The average price of 30 leading bonds, composed of ten issues each of rail, public utility and industrial issues reached a record low level for the movement, nevertheless. Poor corporate earnings have exerted and are still exerting their influence.

The result of the offering of Treasury securities on or about August 31, announced in a preliminary way on Saturday by the Federal Reserve Banks, will furnish further evidence of this aspect of the market.

NATS DEFEAT TIGERS, 6-5, ON CRONIN'S HOMER

This MORNING with SHIRLEY L. POVICH

THE most intriguing bit of news printed over the late week-end, lamented by all but the ducks, was the report, seemingly well founded, that the National Boxing Association has recanted and will take the naughty wrestlers back into the parental fold.

The big wigs of the N. B. A. will foregather some time before September 18 when the new administration goes into office—and the old will go out—and fashion plans for extending a new welcome to the performing pachyderms in all of the 27 States in which it controls boxing, the upshot of the matter to be a new tournament that will decide which of the several champions and pretenders to the world heavyweight throne is to be officially recognized as the title holder with the full recognition and sanction of the N. B. A.

The current N. B. A. administration which turned the rascals—pardon, wrestlers—out in 1929, admitting its failure to cope with the 'smart maneuverings of the wrestlers' managers, will itself be cast out in the coming election and the N. B. A. will take the game over, now that it has become a paying proposition again. That is the story as this column understands it, but there is a bit more and therein lies the intrigue.

Ah! An Idea

According to Joe Turner, impresario of the local mats, the left wing of the N. B. A. which is to come into power, already has selected as the participants in the champeenship tournament five hand-picked pachyderms. These are Jeem Londos, Ray Steele, Henri De Glane, Don George and Martin Pesek, in the order of their crowd-pulling proclivities.

Where is Gus Sonnenberg? Where is Strangler Lewis? Ah! An idea steals into the emptiness of this column's idea container. Can it be that the fine Italian hand of Monsieur Jack Curley is making itself felt? It can be, and it probably is.

Whereupon, if the left wing of the N. B. A. is successful and the current administration is cast out, and the wrestlers taken in, and the tournament held as scheduled and a winner declared, whoever he may be, we will have witnessed the greatest piece of championship larceny ever spread upon the sports records. It will be the story of M. Curley's latest and greatest wrestling stroke.

Curley Thinks Aloud

Picture M. Curley sitting in the palatial study of his Long Island home, the house that the pachyderms built, his oversized pantry billowing comfortably into his lap and the big shot of wrestling in New York and environs in the midst of his machinations aimed at an iron-clad monopoly on all the mat attractions. M. Curley thinks aloud:

"That gripes me, those Boston fellers drawin' 30,000 with Sonnenberg and De Glane the other week. Those muggs couldn't make a nickel in New York. 'Course, my boys Londos and Steele and Shikat and the rest of 'em are doin' right well in our territory but they don't go over in Boston, somehow. And out there on the Coast Strangler Lewis and this Don George guy are packin' 'em in. That's where we oughta muscle in, too.

"We got the best wrestlers, ain't we? We put on the best shows. It ain't right, thassall. There oughta be a law against those muggs. The commission oughta do somethin' about it. If this here N. B. A. had any spunk it would recognize my boy Londos as the only champion. They got workin' agreements with the Massachusetts and California fellers, ain't they? The N. B. A. oughta regulate this rasslin' game.

Well, Well, Well

"Those other guys would make more money workin' for me than for them people up there in Boston or out there on the Coast, if they only knew it. Lookit Londos and the rest of my boys. They're getting rich. We oughta be recognized as champions in Massachusetts and on the Coast. Everywhere. The N. B. A. has workin' agreements in 27 States, aint they? That's what we need, a tournament for the N. B. A. Championship. The winner will be recognized in 27 States including the big towns in Massachusetts and California. Mm-m-m. Well, well, well why not? that's what we need, a N. B. A. tournament. Well, well, well.

"We'll put Londos in it, and Steele. Let 'em invite De Glane, the champion of the Boston crowd. De Glane won't go in unless they invite Sonnenberg, and they won't invite Sonnenberg. Let 'em invite Don George. That guy won't go in the tournament unless they invite Strangler Lewis, but we'll see to that, too. The N. B. A. needs dough and we got that. We'll invite this guy Pesek, the outlaw. He wants to work for me anyway.

"If De Glane does go in, he'll have to work for me. So will George. I'll send Londos and Steele in there. Whoever wins will be my man. He'll be the N. B. A. champion. He'll be recognized in 27 States including Massachussetts and California. My Gawd, we'll be world champion. Well, well, well.

And so, patient reader, as the good fairy said to litle Goldenlocks, never fear, Papa Curley will take care of everything.

Jennings Net Victor Over Mitchell

District Star Beaten as Foe Wins 5th Set by 11-9.

Capital Doubles Pair Also Bows in Park Tennis Finals.

Special to The Washington Post.

DETROIT, Mich., Aug. 23.—George Jennings, of Chicago, remains the big star in the Municipal Parks constellation of tennis world. Jennings became singles champion for the fourth consecutive year here today when he defeated Dennison L. (Dooly) Mitchell, of Georgetown University and Washington, D. C., at Gladwin Park this afternoon after five sets, 6—4, 5—7, 6—1, 2—6, 11—9.

Mitchell had 68 earned points to 38 for Jennings, but his errors cost him dearly, especially in the final set, when he threw away a chance to lead, and possibly the match. It was 9—9 on Mitchell's service and 40—0 in his favor, but two placements at the net by Jennings and three errors by Mitchell took away the Washington player's grand chance.

Jennings Tied With Most Muny Titles.

Jennings now is tied with Theodore Drewes, of St. Louis, in the numben of consecutive titles won. Drewes was the winner in 1924, 1925, 1926 and 1927.

And in defeating Mitchell today, Jennings repeated his success of 1930, when the two met in the final at Washington. Jennings came through today in spite of a shaky service, several doubtful line decisions against him, and the pressure Mitchell exerted throughout the five sets.

Chicago, represented by Jennings and George Braudt, landed the doubles by defeating the Washington team of Mitchell and Thomas Markey, 6—2, 6—4, 13—11. Washington played listlessly in the first set, but the second was close and the third a see-saw affair, with Chicago winning out by superior service and smashing.

Washington's pair concentrated effort on Gordon Braudt who, instead of breaking under the rain of shots, smashed at the net for important points and put away vital tallies by sharp volleys Washington could not return. Mitchell and Jennings, both tired from their singles match, were both off form but Braudt carried the burden for Chicago better than did Markey of Washington.

Another set would have been impossible to play as darkness was falling rapidly when the match ended. Markey made the fatal error of playing back instead of taking the net, an oversight that really cost Washington the decision.

Mitchell Rallies to Win Second Set.

Though the first set of the Jennings-Mitchell match games went with service until Jennings led, 4—3, Mitchell ran into four consecutive errors to lose the eighth. Mitchell then took Jennings' delivery to make the call 5—4. Mitchell served again and lost tenth game and set, 6—4, when Jennings scored three placements after a Mitchell error gave him the first point.

Jennings led in the second set, 6—3, but the tally went to 4—4 when Mitchell's cross-court drives brought him three points along with a Jennings error. They exchanged games on service. Jennings, serving the eleventh, had three double faults and points from these errors, together with a Mitchell placement, brought the lead to Washington, 6—5. Each ran into a string of errors in the twelfth game until Mitchell led, 40—30. Mitchell slapped through a service ace to take the game and win the set, 7—5.

Jennings stepped through the third

Tribe Rallies in Ninth To Beat Red Sox, 4-3

Cleveland, Ohio, Aug. 23 (A.P.).—Singles by Falk, Myatt and Montague in the last of the ninth scored the winning run in Cleveland's 4 to 3 victory over Boston in the first of a three-game series today.

Danny MacFayden and George Connally pitched the entire game and the former had the edge on hits granted until the ninth. Each allowed nine blows. Webb's home run with one on the third, gave the Red Sox a lead which held until Cleveland scored two runs in the sixth.

Helen Wills Moody Requires 34 Minutes To Annex Her 7th National Tennis Crown

Mrs. Whittingstall Is Beaten, 6-4, 6-1, in Final Match.

By GAYLE TALBOT.

FOREST HILLS, N. Y., Aug. 23 (A. P.).—Mrs. Helen Wills Moody, still the impassive, perfect tennis player, came back today to claim her rightful place atop the women's tennis world by defeating Mrs. Eileen Bennett Whittingstall, of England, in straight sets in the finals of the forty-fourth national women's tournament at Forest Hills.

The scores of 6—4, 6—1, indicate the ease and dispatch with which Queen Helen turned back the last of 63 players who questioned her right to the throne she relinquished a year ago. It took her 24 minutes to subdue her slighter opponent in the opening set, but she ran through the second in 10 minutes with the loss of only 14 points.

Mrs. Moody Too Steady For Rival.

Mrs. Whittingstall, who on two preceding days had blasted aside Helen Jacobs, America's second greatest player, and Betty Nuthall, England's No. 1 star and defending champion, could not cope today with the steady stroking of Mrs. Moody. Her dashing net attack was spiked from the start, she couldn't keep her shots in the court and she was, in fact, no match for the San Francisco player. She wilted after carrying the score to four-all in the opening set.

The victory gave Mrs. Moody her seventh national title since she first came East, her hair in a "pigtail," at the start of the last decade. She won her first championship in 1923, repeated in 1924 and 1925 and then, who added stars to her crown as queen of tennis yesterday by defeating Mrs. Eileen Bennett Whittingstall, of England, 6—4, 6—1, in the finals of the forty-fourth annual National Women's Tournament at Forest Hills. The victory marked the seventh time that the California girl has annexed the title.

U. S. DOUBLES TO START TODAY

Doeg-Lott to Defend Honors; 32 Teams to Compete.

BROOKLINE, Mass., Aug. 23 (A. P.).—With the Newport Casino finalists, Johnny Doeg and George Lott, defending champions, and their conquerors, Ellsworth Vines and Keith Gledhill, of California, seeded first and second, the golden jubilee national doubles tennis championship play will get under way tomorrow on Longwood's historic courts.

For the first time in years the foreign element in this classic will be limited to a single team, Frederick J. Perry and G. Patrick Hughes, British Davis Cup players. They have been quarter of the draw, which was made given the choice spot in the fourth with 32 teams.

Johnny Van Ryn and Wilmer Allison, runners-up last year, were seeded third, and the other teams ranked 4, Gregory Mangin and Berkeley Bell; 5, Sidney Wood and Frank Shields; 6, Jack Tidball and Lester Stoeffem, of Los Angeles; 7, Wilbur F. Coen, Sanlas City, and Eddie Jacobs, Baltimore; 8, Clifford Sutter, New Orleans, and Bruce Barnes, Austin, Tex.

Other Competitions Scheduled.

Three other natoinal doubles competitions will also be run off during the coming week, the mixed, veterans and father and son. Although entries for the mixed play will not close until Tuesday, an impressive list of players already has been attracted, including most of the women stars who played in last week's national tourney, and the Wightman Cup international matches.

The draw for the national veteams, with the defending chamerans' play was limited to sixteen pions, S. Jarvis Adams and Henry S. Bassford, of New York, seeded first. J. D. E. and Arnold Jones, of Providence, R. I., who have won the father and son championships five times in eight years, were top-seeded in a draw of 20 family teams.

Women Open Western Golf Title Play Today

Chicago, Aug. 23 (A.P.).—The front rank of Middle Western and Western women golfers, with sprinkling from the South and East, will open the quest for the women's Western title tomorrow over the exacting Exmoor Country Club course. The field, which will go 18 holes tomorrow seeking places in the select match play group, will be headed by Mrs. George W. Tyson, of Kansas City, the defending champion, who will meet the attacks of four former titleholders.

Her most serious rivals are Virginia Van Wie, of Chicago; Mrs. O. S. Hill, of Kansas City, who won the title in 1929; Peggy Wattles, of Buffalo, N. Y.; Bernice Wall, Oshkosh, Wis.; Mrs. Leona Pressler, of Los Angeles, the 1927 and 1928 champion; Mrs. Austin Pardue, of Chicago; Mrs. S. L. Reinhardt, of Chicago; Helen Lawson, another Los Angeles star, and Mrs. Charles Dennehy, the former Virginia Wilson, of Chicago.

Mrs. Reinhardt, the former Elaine Rosenthal, won the championship in 1915 and 1918, and came back again in 1925 to win it for the third time. Mrs. Melvin Jones, of Chicago, winner in 1926, also is entered and is expected to be a strong contender.

CARDS TWICE WIN OVER BRAVES

Hafey Drives in Nine Runs; Bottomley's Homer Wins 2nd.

BOSTON, Aug. 23 (A.P.).—The league-leading Cardinals took a double-header from the Braves today, winning the first game in a rout, 16 to 1, and taking the measure of Ed Brandt, 1 to 0, in the 11-inning nightcap. A crowd of 35,000 saw the games.

Chick Hafey was the big noise in the one-sided opener. He drove in nine runs and made five hits, two of them home runs. The first circuit clout came in the third with the bases loaded.

The second game was a duel between Derringer and Brandt, there being no score until the eleventh when Jim Bottomley dropped a home run into the bleachers.

Cow Pasture Pool Stars Should Learn Cow Talk, Radio Interview Shows

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

NEW YORK, Aug. 23.—The radio interview.

THE CAST: A Famous Athlete. A Pal of His.

Time: About half past eight.

The boys were being very breezy and informal. After all, it is only a natural little chat, and spontaneity is the principal charm of the act, which is receiving $800.

THE ATHLETE'S PAL: Eddie, I have just been perusing the pages of memory's book, and I am reminded of several experiences of a, to me, highly amusing character which your many, if I may say so, admirers of the radio audience will, no doubt be pleased to have you discuss for them this evening. In particular, I was thinking of the time in the 1915 annual north-south-east-west open invitation golf tournament when you found yourself unfortunately stymied behind a cow.

BOTH: Ha-ha-ha!

THE ATHLETE: Yes, Joe, the incident of which you remind me comes readily back to me, and it certainly was, as you say, an episode of a highly amusing character. In fact, Joe, though I may live to a very ripe old age—I might say that even if my life score should mount up into the high nineties—

JOE: Ha-ha-ha! Well, at any rate, as healthy as you are, it appears to me that your life score and your golf score ought to meet some time, say around 82. I mean that you seem to me likely to live to the age of 82 and that you ought to be able to shoot an 82 on your birthday. I certainly hope so, anyway, Eddie.

EDDIE: That is very pleasant indeed of you, Joe, and I am going to be even more generous to you. As your score, up to the present time, seems unlikely ever to fall below 110, I am going to wish you life until your years are equal to your card.

BOTH: Ha-ha-ha!

JOE: But, come, Eddie, you were, I believe, about to give your impres-

Macks Handed First Shutout of Season by Coffman.

A's Held to 3 Hits; Hoyt Blanks Browns in Second, 10-0.

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 23 (A.P.).—Robert Moses Grove will have to be content with being a joint holder of the American League record for consecutive pitching victories for the present, at least, instead of owning the record outright.

Already a joint holder of the record of sixteen straight games, established in 1912 by Smoky Joe Wood, of the Boston Red Sox, and equalled the same year by Walter Johnson, of the Washington Senators, Grove attempted to better it today at the expense of the St. Louis Browns, but ran up against a three-hit pitching performance by Dick Coffman, who shut out the A's 1-to-0 in the first game of a double-header. The Athletics won the nightcap, 10-0, behind Waite Hoyt's airtight hurling.

Grove, as usual, was good today, but Coffman was a little better.

Browns Find Star For 7 Hits.

The Browns touched the southpaw fireball artist for seven hits, compared to three allowed by Coffman. Grove fanned six, two more than Coffman. The only base on balls was issued by Coffman. Grove made a wild pitch.

The Browns put over the only run in the third inning on a single by Schulte and a double, which Moore misjudged, by Melillo after two were out.

Grove equalled the league record for consecutive victories when he defeated the Chicago White Sox last Wednesday. His record for the season now is 25 triumphs, against only 3 defeats.

Hoyt limited the Browns to four hits in the second game, while the Athletics were pounding Stewart, Stiles and Kimsey for seventeen.

STEELE AND ROEBUCK OPPONENTS TONIGHT IN MAT FEATURE

Giant Indian Gets Chance At Star

Shikat and Kwariani Also on Program at Ball Park.

Wilson, Pojello and White Feather to Exhibit Wares.

FEATURING Ray Steele, rassling crown prince from California, whom Jim Londos opines will be his successor (the date is a deep, dark secret), Promoter Joe Turner tonight will unload another show of hug and haul in the ring of Griffith Stadium. This is the presentation due for delivery last Friday night, but which rain delayed.

Steele's opponent is Tiny Roebuck, Washington's own, and inasmuch as Rassler Ray has yet to join the idol class here, the local entry may receive the mob's plaudits for one night. It has been Tiny's misfortune heretofore to have done little things on the mat that struck a discordant note with the customers, who, totally ignoring the fact that a local product was performing, sent salvo after salvo of razzberries into his ears.

Tonight the possibility that the crown prince may take a trimming should awaken some sympathy for the big Indian, who, after all, is not as hateful as many of the scowlers that have appeared under Mr. Turner's auspices. Of course, one must not forget to add that it is only a possibility, existing in Tiny's favor, for the royalty in rassling as well as story books must not be humbled.

Washington fans caught a glimpse of Steele in action some few weeks back when the Californian met Frank Spears, erstwhile Georgia Tech football hero, at the auditorium. Steele on that occasion was in a hurry and took just six minutes to deposit young Spears on the flat of his back. Tonight, if main-bout custom is adhered to, Steele should hang around for about an hour.

In support of the feature attraction Turner has secured Dick Shikat, former champion, to grapple with Kola Kwariani, Russian importation, in the semifinal. Shikat is a favorite here, but his foeman is disliked, chiefly because he staged a boresome exhibition recently with Toots Mondt. This bout was so awfully slow that the principals were invited to an early shower.

Wilson Takes On Sock.

The handsome Ralph Wilson, who mixes rassling with the study of dentistry, returns for a match with the more or less unknown Vick Sock, who has a name if not a reputation to uphold. The wily Wilson, capable of better mat work than many to twosome you could select, should furnish his adversary plenty of excitement.

Old Chief White Feather will brave the boos in a tussle with Tigah Nelson, also unpopular, while in the other preliminaries Carl Pojello will meet Mike Romano and Dutch Green will engage George Romanoff.

Rain Mars Net Card In Capital City Play

Only four singles matches were played in the inaugural of the second annual Capital City Tennis League tournament on the Friends School courts yesterday. The inclement weather forced the remainder of the field of 38 contestants to idle until today, when play will be resumed.

In yesterday's matches, Latona defeated Yeatmen, 6—0, 6—1; Krause turned back Mathews, 6—0, and 6—1; Staubly downed Lord, 6—3, 6—1, and Deck eliminated Drechsler, 6—3, 6—1. None of the winners was greatly extended, as the scores indicate. The Deck Trophy, won by Eddie Yeomans last season, who is not competing this year, will go to the winner.

The singles will be continued today on the Friends School courts beginning at 3 o'clock with the doubles following Tuesday on the same courts. Contestants are requested to call Mr. Deck at National 3500 tomorrow if the weather is bad for playing instructions. Today's pairings are as follows:

3 p. m., Hill vs. Heiskell, Hermann vs. Glassie; 4 p. m., Johnson vs. Spencer, Grant vs. Martinez, Sellowes vs. Forsythe, O'Neill vs. Hoffecker, Root vs. Davies, Marlette vs. Garnett, Goldsmith vs. Lowe, Gardes vs. Evans, Shore vs. Ritzenberg, Jacobs vs. Roberts, Hunt vs. Yeomans, Considine vs. Packer.

Local Boys in Movies With 'Big Bill' Tilden

Two local boys, Dick and Jerry Drown, sons of Mrs. Mary A. W. Drown, of 6323 Meadow lane, appear in their favorite role of tennis ball boys on the screen at Loew's Columbia this week, where Big Bill Tilden is portraying his first tennis lesson for the silver screen.

The two Drown boys traveled with the Tilden Tennis Tours from New York to the Pacific Coast, where Tilden made a series of instructive tennis shorts.

STRANGE AS IT SEEMS —By John Hix

STRANGE as it seems, the record for the fastest time around the world does not belong to Post and Gatty, and stranger still the real record was made 22 years ago and not by plane or dirigible, but on foot.

On April 6, 1909, when Peary reached the North Pole, he decided to settle then and for all time the record for circling the globe. Retreating a step from the pole the explorer described a small circle, crossing the meridians of Washington, Greenwich, Moscow, Peking and San Francisco, and reaching his starting point in the brief period of five seconds.

So far there has been no logical explanation for the flat hailstones that fell recently on the Island of Cyprus. Many of the stones melted in the center, giving them the appearance of icy doughnuts.

* * * *

In America the wool on a sheep was sheared and made into a tailor-measured suit in 6 hours and 4 minutes. Recently in England a Yorkshire manufacturer and a Leeds tailor set out to break this record. Starting with the shearing of the sheep the wool was woven into a finished garment in 3 hours and 4 minutes.

—Lincoln Fields Selectoins—

By J. B. SNODGRASS.

LINCOLN FIELDS, Chicago, Aug. 23.—The Lincoln Fields course has been readied to play host to King Horse for a period of 31 days, which completes the Chicago season. The feature event on the card tomorrow, the Olympia Fields Purse, has attracted a list of seven leading sprinters to contest the $1,600 purse, which will be decided at 6 furlongs under allowance conditions.

W. E. Reichert's MY DANDY, which showed exceptional form in recent efforts, appears well suited by the conditions in the main attraction and figures to lead home NO MORE and five other starters. The latter has trained briskly and coupled with CHEERS, the Davison entry, is favored to gain the place. CAMP PRINCE and LADY CAPULET will battle it out for the minor award.

FIRST RACE — The opening dash for juveniles attracted a large field. At the 5½-furlong route, BAND TIME is selected to gain the honors. BACKSTRAP has shown consistent form and although the colt would favor a heavy track, should account for the place. SHARP THOUGHTS is nicely suited and may prove troublesome.

SECOND RACE — A select field of sprinters will match strides in the six furlongs of the second, with SUPREME SWEET, from the Superior Stable, on his recent splendid effort, favored to annex the purse. INFINITY showed remarkable speed over a route last start, and at the shorter distance will furnish keen opposition. DOUBLE HEART dissappointed in his last start, but is capable of a better performance.

THIRD RACE — Only seven have been entered in the five and a half furlongs of the third for juveniles. In this allowance affair, NEWGRO, which has raced with topnotch 2-year-olds and in this class, should romp to victory. UNENCUMBERED is the contender, with PORTER'S DREAM as the show selection.

FIFTH RACE — STREET SINGER turned in a creditable performance last start and off that effort figures best of his opposition in the mile and a sixteenth of the fifth. MUCKER will furnish stern opposition with SHASTA BROOM as the show selection.

SIXTH RACE—Another large group of routers will perform in the sixth, which is fashioned for the older platers at the mile and a sixteenth distance. MADCAP MARVIN, from the Valley Lake Stable, has turned in some fair efforts recently and is the ont to beat. GOTOIT has trained well and on his best form would prove a serious threat. COPPERFIELD is the show choice.

SEVENTH RACE — In the final event, a limit field of 3-year-olds and up, will be dispatched over the mile and a sixteenth route, with TISHYBO favored to gain the honors. RIFF RAFF has shown a return to form and in this case should last to gain the place, with GORMOND and NURSERY RHYMES closely matched for the minor award.

FORE MEANS NOTHING TO COWS

Golfers Show Know Cow Language, Says Farmer.

sions of the incident of the cow, to which I referred.

EDDIE: To be sure I was, and, by the way, of all the many quaint and amusing experiences which, in the course of my competitive career, have befallen me, that is the one which, though I may live to a very ripe old age, I shall always recall with the utmost amusement, not entirely unmixed with a certain inward feeling of, I might say, chagrin. The incident occurred, you may remember, Joe, on the seventeenth green of, I think, the semifinal round—

JOE: Yes, Eddie, I recall it perfectly. It was, as you say, the semifinal round.

EDDIE: Thank you, Joe. That was my impression, too. And I was, to the best of my recollection, three under 4s when the cow to which you refer walked out and stymied me, as you have said. It was a big, funny old brown cow, as I remember—

JOE: That's right, Eddie. The cow to which I had reference was, as you recall, a brown cow with, however, if you will recall, some white spots on her west side.

EDDIE: Well, east side or west side, I know that I wished that that cow was on the sidewalks of New York and not on the seventeenth green of the golf course in the semifinal round of the 1915 tournament.

I came up there going, as we say, like a house afire, and with the exception of one trap to the left of the fourth green down in the hollow near the brook, if you will recall——

JOE: To be sure I do. That was where I slipped on the bank and fell in.

BOTH: Ha-ha-ha!

EDDIE: Well, with the exception of that one trap, from which I played a very fortunate recovery with my putter to sink the ball for a par 4, I had contrived to avoid trouble up to the moment of my experience with the cow.

JOE: It was a magnificent round.

EDDIE: Yes, but do not neglect the fact that I just happened to be on my game and had excellent luck up to the seventeenth. And there, when I approached my ball I found myself completely stymied by this cow which had wandered on the course. Of course, I could not, as you, of course, are aware, play through the cow, and she did not understand when I called "Fore." I appealed to the officials to move her, but they consulted the rules and replied that it was not permitted to move any obstruction which was alive and growing. Well, that cow certainly was alive and, of course, we should have been compelled to wait there for a considerable period of time to determine whether or not she was still growing. My predicament, as you were keenly aware at the time, Joe, was quite uncomfortable and——

JOE: Ha-ha-ha! I can see you yet, EDDIE: And after I had yelled "Fore!" several times the farmer appeared and said in a dialect which I can but imperfectly imitate, "Well, naow, why don't you-all learn somethin' abaout cow-talk if you want to play pasture pool? Caows don't understand what 'Fore' means no-how, but if you-all was to say 'So-boss,' she'd move fer ye." So the farmer said "So-boss," and the cow moved away, and I sank my putt from there, as you will do doubt recall.

Schaaf and Campolo Clash In Week's Fistic Feature

Heavyweights Hold Spotligt With Retzlaff and Dempsey Seeing Action; Mandell and Kaplan in Lightweight Battle.

NEW YORK, Aug. 23 (A.P.).—Heavyweights, ranging from Charley Retzlaff of Duluth, latest sensation among the big fellows, to Jack Dempsey hold the center of the fistic stage this week. Retzlaff is scheduled to give New York another exhibition of his wares while Dempsey has a couple of exhibition bouts against unimportant or unnamed opponents on his program of workouts.

A couple of heavyweights rated somewhere in between these two extremes of the "comer" and the ex-champion are hooked up for the week's biggest bout. They are Ernie Schaaf, of Boston, who has been making good progress through the heavyweight ranks recently under the tutelage of Jack Sharkey and Victorio Campolo, the huge Argentinan who has raised and lowered the hopes of his backers several times.

Schaaf Favored Over Campolo.

Schaaf and Campolo are due to meet over the 12-round route under the promotorial guidance of Jimmy Johnston at Ebbets Field, Brooklyn, Wednesday night. The winner is promised a bout with the survivor of the later battle between Sharkey and Primo Carnera. Schaaf, whose claim to fame for some time was that he served as model for the Tunney-Muldoon heavyweight championship trophy, has met with marked success in his recent battles and is a slight favorite to "take" the towering Campolo.

Retzlaff, the slugging sensation of the Midwest tackles Joe Sekyra of Dayton, Ohio, at the Queensboro Stadium in a ten-round scrap Tuesday. The two exhibition appearances of ex-Champion Dempsey are scheduled for Monday at Portland, Oreg., against Big Bill Hartwell, 210-pound Boston Negro, and perhaps a few other opponents, and for Wednesday at Seattle against one or more opponents as yet unnamed.

The leading battle among the lighter boxers brings together Sammy Mandell, former lightweight champion, and Louis "Kid" Kaplan, of Meriden, Conn. They meet over the ten-round route at Hartford, Conn. Monday.

Bouts on the week's national schedule include:

MONDAY—At Hartford, Conn.: Sammy Mandell, Rockford, Ill., vs. Louis (Kid) Kaplan, Meriden, Conn., lightweights, 10. At Chicago, White City: Tuffy Griffiths, Sioux City, Iowa, vs. Con O'Kelley, Boston, heavyweights, 10. At Columbus, Ohio: Jack O'Dowd, Detroit, vs. Chet Sandell, Akron, Ohio, heavyweights, 10. At Cincinnati: Lew Paluso, Salt Lake City, vs. Freddy Miller, Cincinnati, lightweights, 10; At St. Louis: Davey Abad, Panama, vs. Joe Ohnouly, St. Louis, featherweights, 10; Johnny "Peewee" Kaiser, St. Louis, vs. Raoul "Gyp" Zafro, Oklahoma, featherweights, 10; Cyclone Williams, Los Angeles, vs. Allen Matthews, St. Louis, welterweights, 10.

TUESDAY—At New York, Queensboro Stadium: Charley Retzlaff, Duluth, vs. Joe Sekyra, Dayton, Ohio, heavyweights, 10. At Indianapolis: Happy Atherton, Indianapolis, vs. Midget Wolgast, Philadelphia, flyweights, 10.

WEDNESDAY—At New York, Ebbets Field, Ernie Schaaf, Boston, vs. Victorio Campolo, Argentina, heavyweights, 12; Steve Hamas, Passaic, N. J., vs. Mike Desanto, heavyweights, 8; Ernest Guhring, Germany, vs. Pat Redmond, Ireland, heavyweights, 8. At Cleveland: Walter Cobb, New York, vs. Frank Simms, Cleveland, heavyweights, 10.

THURSDAY—At Boston Arena: Babe Hunt, Oklahoma City, vs. Stanley Poreda, Newark, N. J., heavyweights, 10.

FRIDAY—At San Francisco: Jimmy Hannah, Pocatello, Idaho, vs. Harry Smith, New York, Negro, middleweights, 10. At Los Angeles, David Velasco, Mexico City, vs. Tommy Herman, Chicago, welterweights, 10; Luis Arizona, Mexico City, vs. Earl Whitehead, Ocean Park, Calif., lightweights, 10.

Argentine Poloists Routed by U. S. Team

Port Washington, N. Y., Aug. 23 (A.P.).—Minus the services of their ten-goal ace, Lewis Lacey, the Argentine polo team from the Hurlingham Club of Buenos Aires, was no match whatever today for the Hurricanes, open champions of the United States.

With Stephen (Laddie) Sanford at No. 1, playing one of the most spectacular games of his career in front of the sharpshooting high-goal stars, Winston Guest and Capt. "Pat" Roark, the Hurricanes put the South Americans to rout. The final score was 18 to 4. The open champions outscored their opponents in every period.

Sanford contributed eight goals to the free-scoring party, put on for the benefit of about 2,500 spectators.

Without their renowned ace, Lacey, to bolster the defense, the Hurlingham team not only lacked its customary strength, but showed no punch up forward when scoring opportunities presented themselves.

YANKEES DENY DEAL.

Denial of reports that the New York Yankees are contemplating buying the Dallas club as a farm has been made by Edward G. Barrow, business manager of the New York Yankees. Stories had been circulated around the circuit that such a move was under consideration. The denial was contained in a letter from Barrow to J. Alvin Gardiner, league president.

RAIN PREVENTS PLAY IN FOUR CAPITAL CITY TITLE SERIES

Play Delayed Until Next Sunday

Schwartz - Stewart Clash Prevented by Wet Grounds.

Others, Listed in Afternoon, Delayed by Downpour.

THE gala carnival of games involving championships of the Post's Capital City League scheduled on the Ellipse diamonds yesterday was postponed because of rain. Although no rain fell until early in the afternoon, it was impossible to play the midget game, scheduled for 11 a. m., because of the condition of the diamond. The entire card will be presented next Sunday on the same field.

The inclement weather means a prolongment of the mental agony which the Stewart's Pharmacy and Schwartz Jewelry Co. teams have endured during the last week, for the final game of their series for the junior championship was to have been played yesterday. Both teams were in fine fettle and anxious to get the all-important game disposed of.

Players on Field for Junior Game.

The players were even on the field prepared to make an attempt to get in nine innings before the descent of the rain. The weatherman evidently figured the farmers needed his help more than the sandlotters, however, so the boys will have to wait another week to settle their argument.

The Saks and Takoma clubs were another pair of opponents anxious to get into action, Takoma in hopes of capturing the unlimited title in two straight and Saks just as hopeful of drawing up on even terms with their opponents with a victory. With football weather prevailing, the managers of both teams were well satisfied with the accompanying rain, for it takes warm weather to produce a brand of play worthy of title contenders. On top of this, had they started and the rain stopped the proceedings half way through the fray, the team on the short end would never be reconciled to the fact that it lost to a better team.

Senior, Midget Contenders Not Worried.

The only teams that were not worried over not being able to play were the senior and midget contenders, who were scheduled to open three-game series for their respective crowns. The Wonder Bread midgets figured next Sunday will do just as well for scalping the Spengler nine, and the Olmsted Grill nine feels the same way toward their Miller-Roamer senior opponents. Any day will do, so why rush matters? Of course Spengler and the Roamers are just as contented to bide their time until the hour comes to upset their highly touted opponents.

So the members of the hot stove league will have another week of blissful debating over the relative merits of their respective favorites until the time comes to support their arguments with something more substantial, cash for instance after a year's absence, swept them all aside in 1927, 1928 and 1929. She did not compete last year, the title going to Betty Nuthall when she defeated Mrs. Lawrence Harper, of America, in the finals.

MRS. MOODY WINS 7TH U. S. CROWN

Only Mrs. Molla Mallory, who captured the crown eight times, now holds a better record than Mrs. Moody in that respect. Mrs. Moody's last defeat, incidentally, was at the hands of Mrs. Mallory, who beat her at Westchester-Biltmore in 1926. She has lost only one set since, and the form she displayed today makes it doubtful if she will drop another in the near future.

Mrs. Whittingstall Kept Away From Net.

It was evident from the start, when Queen Helen ran off the first three games, that Mrs. Whittingstall was in for a tough afternoon. Repeatedly she tried to close in for her favorite game at the net, but it was no go. Mrs. Moody either sent the ball whizzing past her opponent for a placement or put it at such an angle Mrs. Whittingstall could not get it back over the net. Occasionally the blonde Briton did get in to score sharp placements before the first set was out, but not often enough to save her.

Mrs. Whittingstall enjoyed a few brief moments of glory in the initial set, when she came back to break through Mrs. Moody's service once to tie the count at three-all and then at four-all in games, but it was her final gesture. Mrs. Moody quickly took the two games she needed for the set and then raced through the second with the loss of one game. Mrs. Whittingstall won it on her own service. Only one of the last five games went to deuce.

A recapitulation disclosed that Mrs. Moody won 59 points to her opponent's 40 in the two sets, served 5 aces to her rival's 2, scored 13 placements to Mrs. Whittingstall's 7, made only 14 outs to the Englishwoman's 24, and was guilty of 2 double faults to the loser's 5.

The point score:

First set:

Moody	4	4	6	0	1	1	4	2	4	5—6
Whittingstall	1	1	1	4	4	4	4	0	4	1 3—4

Second set:

Moody	4	3	4	5	4	4	4	4	—6
Whittingstall	1	5	1	3	1	2	1	1	—1

The doubles final was scheduled tomorrow, with the English team of Mrs. Whittingstall and Betty Nuthall meeting the Anglo-American combination of Helen Jacobs and Dorothy Round, of England.

As an added attraction on today's program, the mixed doubles team of Betty Nuthall and Peck Griffin, of San Francisco, defeated Helen Jacobs and Manuel Alonso, of Spain, 6—4, 6—2, 1—6.

SAM KAPLAN DIES; STAR ON GRID

Central Ace of 1916 Also Played at C. U. and Lehigh.

SAM KAPLAN, well-known for his football prowess here a decade ago, died early yesterday morning at his home, 5017 Eighth street northwest, following an illness of pneumonia. Kaplan, who was 32, played his way to all-high fame on the Central High School elevens of 1916 and 1917 and was one of a number of stars developed by Coach C. A. Metzler.

Following his graduation from the Mount Pleasant School, Kaplan played end for Lehigh, and later attended the Catholic University, where he was a member of the regular team. At Lehigh he was a lieutenant in the Reserve Officers' training camp.

Kaplan also was affiliated with local independent elevens. He made his last appearance in a football uniform with the Washington team against "Red" Grange and his Chicago Bears here.

He is survived by his mother, Mrs. Ida Kaplan, and five brothers and two sisters. Funeral services will be held at the late home this morning.

Front Royals Down Silver Spring Giants

Special to The Washington Post.

Front Royal, Va., Aug. 23.—The Silver Spring Giants were nosed out here this afternoon by the Front Royal All-Stars by the score of 1 to 0. Borden, pitching for the locals, allowed ten well scattered hits, his teammates bunching a double and a single in the first inning for the only score.

British University Boys Revive Art of Falconry

Salisbury, England, Aug. 22 (A.P.).—Falconry, the sport which delighted the kings and nobles of bygone days, is being revived in England by the smart sets at leading British universities.

Salisbury Plain, scene of the big "hawking" tournaments of generations ago, is being used over weekends now by young sportsmen training their birds for pigeon, partridge and rabbit hunting.

To replace the Old English Hawking club, which was abandoned in 1927 after several hundred years' existence, the British Falconers' Club was formed two years ago to keep up the interest in the sport.

SWAP PITCHERS.

Wichita Falls, of the Texas League, and Milwaukee made an exchange of pitchers last week, the Brewers sending Marvin Ferrell to the Southern club and receiving Howard Taylor in return. Both are young right-handers.

KNOTT LEFT BEHIND.

Pitcher Jack Knott, of the Milwaukee Club, was scheduled to remain at home for a rest when the Brewers started on their last swing around the circuit, August 3. A twisted ankle put him on the shelf.

SANDLOTTER TO BE AIDED BY GAME

Star Teams to Play at Park to Help Cinotti, Ill.

FRIENDS of Frank Cinotti, manager of the St. Joseph's A. C., who was stricken with appendicitis last week, will rally to his support with a benefit game, to be staged at Griffith Stadium the latter part of this week. Staging the game at the stadium will be made possible through the generosity of Clark Griffith, president of the local club, and Secretary Edward B. Eynon, Jr., who have donated the use of the park free of charge for the occasion.

A committee of two, Harry Hall and Bill Fiester, are lining up two teams which will play. Fiester has lined up an all-star team which will oppose the hard-hitting Pullman Club of last season, termed by many the greatest sandlot team to ever perform in this city.

Fiester Picks His Players.

Fiester's team will line up as follows: Doffiemeyer, catcher; "Brother" Harding, first base; Latin, second base; Jack Mattingly, third base; Ritnour or Singman, shortstop; Snyder, left field; Clark, center field; Freddy Noone, right field, and Bob Lyons and Larry Boerner, pitchers. Hall will have Ed Radtke, first base; Booker, shortstop; "Huck" Stahl, third base; Chaconas, left field "Lefty" Tripp, center field; Watt, right field; Cauliflower and Clapper, pitchers; "Fee" Collier, catcher, and Harry himself at second.

Admission will be 50 cents, and tickets will be placed on sale at the French's and Vic's Sports Shops late today.

MISS TAUBE FIFTH IN SWIM

D. C. Mermaids Trail in A. A. U. Jr. Long-Distance Swim.

Special to The Washington Post.

BALTIMORE, Md., Aug. 23.—Wind, rain, choppy waves and other adverse conditions failed to dampen the courage of nine mermaids who participated in the National Amateur Athletic Union Junior Long-Distance Swimming championships at Bay Shore this afternoon. The Bay Shore Swimming Club made a clean sweep in both the individual and team scoring.

Grace Warner, of the Host Club, crawled her way to first place in 52 minutes along a gruelling course of a little over a mile and a half through water beset by unkindly tides. She was followed two minutes later by her teammate, Genevieve Wilford, while another Bay Shore natator, Louise Calligan, trailed after a wait of three and a third minutes.

This trio constituted the Bay Shore Club Team which defeated the Washington Swimming Club for first honors.

These were the only two organizations represented in the nine starters, all of whom finished. Bay Shore took the first five and seventh places, while the Washington girls finished sixth, eighth and ninth.

Leonora Taube, who finished fifth, showed the way to the Washington field, with Maria Hood and Betty O'Malley trailing the procession. They crossed the finish line eighth and ninth.

Evelyn Fogler, New York aspirant, who was counted on as a strong favorite, failed to appear.

The entrants were heavily greased as if preparing for a channel swim. Clad in little and thin tank suits, they did not seem to mind the elements as, at the starting gun, they plunged into the icy depths without a tremor.

The order of finish:

1—Grace Warner, Bay Shore Swimming Club, 52 minutes.
2—Genevieve Wilford, Bay Shore Swimming Club, 54 minutes.
3—Louise Calligan, Bay Shore Swimming Club, 57 minutes 20 seconds.
4—Winifred Stanton, Bay Shore Swimming Club, 58 minutes 10 seconds.
5—Virginia Kerns, Bay Shore Swimming Club, 59 minutes 7 seconds.
6—Leonora Taube, Washington Swimming Club, 1 hour 6 minutes 30 seconds.
7—Evelyn Leonard, Bay Shore Swimming Club, 1 hour 8 minutes 17 seconds.
8—Maria Hood, Washington Swimming Club, 1 hour 12 minutes.
9—Betty O'Malley, Washington Swimming Club, 1 hour 12 minutes 30 seconds.

G. P. O. and Naval Hospital To Open Title Series Today

First of Three-Game eSt for Government League Crown Listed on West Ellipse; Lyons, Crews to Hurl.

GOVERNMENT PRINTING OFFICE and Naval Hospital are scheduled to open a three-game series for the championship of the Government League today at 5:15 p. m. on the West Ellipse, but unless the weather-man releases the sandlotters from the strangle-hold he has held on them in the last four days it is doubtful whether the game will be played.

The forecast for today is warm and cloudy, but the diamond will need a good sun bath if it is to be in any condition for the game.

Bob Lyons will hurl for the Printers, with "Rebel" Crews opposing him. Lew Hollis, Ben Schneider and Ray Homan, three players who helped the Washington Printers' team win the Typo championship at Hamilton, Canada, last week, are expected to be in the G. P. O. line-up today.

The Government loop is the last of the week-day circuits to select its representative in the annual Weekday League championship games which will get under way a week from today on the Ellipse Field.

Controversy Is Seen In 1931 Grid Rules

Seattle, Aug. 22 (A.P.).—In the codification of the 1931 football rules loopholes were left for two possible sources of disagreement, in the opinion of George Varnell, Coast Conference referee.

Requiring the umpire to pass judgment on the need of a player to have a hand taped, under rule 5, section 3, is one obscure point, Varnell believes.

The second which he thinks may provoke controversy is rule 7, section 5, which declares ineligible for receiving a forward pass any player who is more than a foot and less than a yard behind the scrimmage line when the ball is snapped.

He contends this virtually will bar quarter backs from receiving forward passes, unless the rules committee clarifies the interpretation.

DALLAS SIGNS PAIR.

Dallas has signed two Palmetto League players—Bill Atwood, catcher, and Bill Goodson, infielder. Both played with Augusta before the loop disbanded.

Santa Paula Polo Four Easy Winner

Woodmere, N. Y., Aug. 23 (A.P.).—The Santa Paula Polo Team from Argentina extended its brilliant series of triumphs in the East today by trouncing a 23-goal side that carried the name of Whippany River, 13 to 8.

Santa Paula played without its star back, Manuel Andranda, who was kept out by a wrist injury. Andres Gazzotti filled ineffectively at the defense post.

The Whippany Team was made up of Seymour Knox, Jimmy Mills, J. B. Richards and Billy Post.

League and Semipro Elevens at Brookland

The Mohawks and Apaches had better look to their laurels, for the Brookland A. C. is forming an eleven for the express purpose of supplying the District fans with a new champion. Brookland will also sponsor an unlimited team in The Post's Capital City League. Bill Gates has signed a number of former college stars to perform on the first-mentioned team, while the second will be composed chiefly of players who have been with the club for the last two years. Roy Woodruff will handle the latter team.

Another group of pigskin toters will get down to work Tuesday when the Petworth Pennants gather on the Iowa Avenue Playground at 7:30 p. m. The team will compete in the 150-pound division of The Post's Capital City League this season.

Oklahoma StudentTakes Furman Athletic Award

Greenville, S. C., Aug. 22 (A.P.).—Bill Wells, of Eufaula, Okla., was selected to receive the Sam Howard athletic prize for the best scholastic work of any member of the Furman University Football Team last season.

Wells, who plays end in football and forward in basketball, made a total of 138 in quality credits, or 11 A's, 7 B's and 1 C.

D. MITCHELL BEATEN BY JENNINGS

Washington Defeated in Doubles by Chicago Pair.

set until he had a 5—0 margin. A service ace, two placements and two Jennings' errors brought Mitchell the sixth game after the call was made deuce. Another deuce game turned up in the seventh, with Jennings serving. Mitchell made the game deuce and then advantage on the two placements, but then let three get away from him, to give Jennings the game and the set at 6—1.

Rest Brings New Lease on Life To Mitchell.

Mitchell returned from the rest period full of ambition. He kept Jennings away from net, served advantageously, and his sideline and his crosscourt drive and fore and backhand, had Jennings hitting wild. Mitchell took the lead at 4—1. Jennings' service gave him the sixth. Mitchell won his delivery to make the count 5—2. Then he broke through Jennings to take game and win the set, 6—2.

Good, bad and brilliant playing signalized the fifth set. Each broke the other's service twice in the first four games. Jennings also landed the fifth and sixth when Mitchell ran into a streak of wildness. Mitchell served two aces in winning the seventh and took Jennings again to make the call, 4—4. Games then went with service until the seventeenth. Mitchell broke and Jennings went to the front.

In turn, Jennings, anxious to win, went to pieces and Mitchell squared the game score at 9—9. Mitchell's grand opportunity turned up in the nineteenth when he led 40—0 on his service. But Jennings, threw himself at one shot to score a placement, hitting the ball while prone on the court. Mitchell's wildness and another placement sent Jennings to the front, 10—9.

Mitchell never had a chance in the twentieth game. The spurt of Jennings, with all the odds in Mitchell's favor, seemed to shake the Washington player's poise. Jennings ran the point score to 40—0 on his service. A double fault and an error left the call 40—30. Jennings next pasted a hard one down the sideline. Mitchell's weak return hit the net, the match was over, and Jennings champion for the fourth time.

COLITIS DIETS.

DR. J. A. BARGEN and Sister M. Victor give the following as the diets on which persons with colitis are started off:

Breakfast—One serving of a bland cereal, ½ cup cream, 2 strips bacon, 1 egg, 1 slice toast, 2 squares of butter, coffee, with sugar if desired, and brewer's yeast.

Dinner—One serving meat soup without vegetables, 1 serving meat (three times a week this meat is liver), 1 medium-sized potato, gravy, 1 slice bread, 2 squares of butter, 1 serving of a bland dessert, such as a custard or pudding (no fruit), 2 tablespoons of cream, tea, with sugar if desired, yeast.

Supper—1 serving steamed rice, 1 serving meat or fish or 2 eggs, 1 slice bread, 2 squares of butter, 1 serving bland dessert (no fruit), 2 tablespoons cream, tea, with sugar if desired, yeast.

This is not a well-balanced diet and is not to be long continued—that is, as the only food eaten. They call it the foundation diet because it is the starting point of the dietetic treatment. To it additions are made as rapidly as judgment dictates. The first addition is one very ripe banana. The other additions follow in the order in which they are added. After the first, no addition is made until the preceding addition has proved harmless and helpful.

One-quarter glass orange juice.

Two tablespoons vegetable puree.

Milk in the form of cream soup or milk toast.

Two glasses whole milk.

Two glasses cream. (This is added to the milk and results in a daily allowance of four glasses of half and half.)

Bland fruit, such as canned or cooked peaches, apricots, pears, strained apple sauce, baked apple without the skin. (In each case one serving.)

One-half glass tomato juice.

And, finally, two servings whole-cooked vegetables such as young, tender carrots, beets, spinach, squash, string beans, asparagus, green lettuce, cut very fine, with mayonnaise or cooked dressing.

In these diets milk is given because it is rich in lime and phosphorus, it has a goodly number of calories, and its protein is valuable for purposes of repair. However, it is not given until late in the course of dieting, because of Alvarez's opinion that it gives a bulky residue. Vegetables and fruits are rich in iron and chlorophyll, but they are not given at first because of their fiber. They are begun in the the form of purees. When the whole vegetable or fruit is given it should be well ripened. The peel, seed and coarse fiber should not be eaten. The leafy vegetables are especially rich in iron and chlorophyll; peaches and apricots are valuable in making hemoglobin; meat, liver and eggs supply iron; yeast is rich in vitamin B complex; banana, orange juice and tomato juice are rich in vitamin C; milk, butter and green vegetables contain vitamins A and D.

PROBABLY NO DANGER.

Mrs. R. writes: Is there danger of a person who is on a diet for diabetes eating too many tomatoes? My husband sometimes eats two large-sized cans a day.

REPLY.

I don't think there is.

WHAT VITAMIN E IS.

Mrs. C. C. writes:

1. What is vitamin E?

2. Are there any foods which contain this vitamin? If so, what are they?

REPLY.

1. The vitamin having to do with reproduction. Not all physicians accept vitamin E as proved.

2. Among them are yeast, wheat germ, yellow of eggs and, possibly, sprouted grain.

WILL DO NO HARM.

G. R. writes: My niece wants to have a permanent wave. She has a tumor on the brain and I am anxious to know whether the extreme heat will have a tendency to develop it more.

REPLY.

Having a permanent wave will not make the tumor grow more rapidly, nor cause any other harm.

Fifth Avenue Fashions

Black Crepe satin enlivened with white crepe satin is popular choice for midseason wear. It is an advanced fall idea.

This fascinating model gives the impression of a fitted hip yoke, while in reality the bodice cuts all in one until it joins the skirt. It's so simple to put it together, you'll be amazed.

Style No. 973 is designed for sizes 14, 16, 18, 20 years, 36, 38 and 40-inches bust. Size 36 requires 3¼ yards of 39-inch material with ¾-yard of 35-inch contrasting.

Wine red canton crepe is another ideal suggestion.

National Advisory Loan Committee Disbanded

(Associated Press.)

The national advisory loan committee, appointed last spring to supervise the loaning of emergency drought funds to members of agricultural credit corporations and live stock loan companies, has disbanded after approving $1,327,440 in loans to 48 companies in 21 States.

Secretary Hyde said these funds will enable those organizations to borrow from $10,000,000 to $12,000,000 for the use of farmers and stockmen in their localities by rediscounts through intermediate credit banks.

FLOWERS TO LIVING URGED BY MINISTER, RECALLING LINCOLN

Dr. Edgar DeWitt Jones, From Detroit, Is Guest in Local Puplit.

CIVIL WAR PRESIDENT AND WILSON ARE CITED

Both Suffered During Life Only to Be Praised After Death, He Asserts.

Taking for his text the incident of Mary of Bethany, who gave her gift to Jesus while He was alive, and Joseph of Arimathea, who rendered his service to the Christ after His death on the cross, Dr. Edgar DeWitt Jones, pastor of Central Woodward Christian Church, Detroit, Mich., preached yesterday morning at the First Congregational Church.

Applying the theme of his sermon to the present-day attitude of rendering praise to a man after his death, while in his life he was only criticized, Dr. Jones said: "I have been attending Lincoln celebrations for many years and am accustomed to hear the great Kentuckian eulogized and praised to the skies. Such homage is due one of the supreme figures of all times, yet when I hear eloquent speakers lavish eulogies on Abraham Lincoln I recall how few roses he had in his lifetime. He was never a popular hero in the days of his flesh.

"I recall that when 'the bronzed, lank man, prairie lawyer, master of us all,' was bearing the colossal burden of State a partisan arose in Congress and said, 'You might search hell over and find no more miserable wretch than Abraham Lincoln!' Would that the 'captain of the mighty heart' might have had a little of the praise during his lifetime that was heaped upon his memory, now that he has gone from among us."

Wilson's Case Called Similar.

Referring to Woodrow Wilson and applying the same thought, Dr. Jones went on: "During the World War an American President dreamed a great dream of the world leagued together to further the cause of peace on earth and good will toward men. In ardent sincerity this man, when there seemed no other solution, led us into a war to end war, ever keeping in mind the idea of an international agreement for world peace. The aftermath of the world conflict involved him in controversy, broke him physically and brought upon his head an avalanche of detraction and bitter criticism such as happened to no other American President save Lincoln. He went to his death a victim of the war as truly as any soldier who fell on Flanders Field. After his death eulogies fell from the lips of those who had bitterly assailed him in his life. Editorials praised him to the skies and the Nation wept at his coffin. Would that he had had some of these roses when the days were long and the way was bitter; would that some of this praise might have been spoken when Woodrow Wilson was alive bearing his herculean burden of state, engulfed by all the hates released by disillusionment and the war-weariness that folowed the armistice."

Dr. Jones pointed out how belated kindnesses and postponed offices of sympathy often haunt us because we have not performed them at the appropriate time. "It costs so little to be kind," he said, "means so much to be considerate and is so Christlike to forgive."

Pluckers of Thistle.

Making a religious application of the same idea, Dr. Jones said that we should follow the example set by Christ who magnified life and minimized death. He said that too often we reverse this order and are strangely forgetful in the midst of life and when death and disaster come to those about us we seek to offset our sins of omission by opulent offerings brought too late to accomplish any great good.

"Abraham Lincoln never wrote anything more revealing and more practical," Dr. Jones said, "than the sentiment he set down in his letter to his dear friend Joshua Speed, in which he said: 'Speed, die when I may, I want it said of me by those who knew me best that I always plucked a thistle and planted a flower where a flower would grow.'"

In conclusion, Dr. Jones said: "Already there are too many organizations, orders, fraternities, and the like in this modern world of ours, but I am minded to suggest one more, namely, Pluckers of Thistle and Planters of Roses—Roses of Bethany."

VETERANS TO WEIGH JOB STUDY PROGRAM

Disabled Men Will Meet at District Board Room September 2.

A national check on the number of disabled veterans of the World War out of work is being conducted by the Department of Labor and the United States Veterans' Bureau, in cooperation with the Disabled American Veterans of the World War, it was learned last night.

Progress in the survey will be discussed by E. Claude Babcock, national commander of the organization, and assistant secretary of the Civil Service Commission, at a mass meeting for disabled veterans of the District September 2 at 8 p. m. in the board room of the District Building.

All ex-service men, without regard to rank and affiliation, are invited to attend, Melvin Brotman, Federal Chapter, No. 6, chairman of the arrangements committee, announced last night. Other matters of interest to members of the order will be taken up, he said.

Servant Is Robbed As Burglary Fails

Men Greet Caretaker at Door With Guns; Take $104 in Valuables.

Edward Murphy, colored, 26 years old, caretaker at the home of Lieut. Lyman S. Berry, 4413 Klingle street northwest, told police that when he returned home early yesterday morning he was met at the basement door by two unidentified white men.

Both flourished guns, he said, and demanded to know the location of the family jewelry. Upon being told that the family had taken it away with them the burglars entered Murphy's room in the basement and robbed it of clothing and valuables valued at $104. After the robbery they left in an old sedan.

Murphy said that both of the robbers were short, one of slender build and the other heavy.

Indians to Provide Swimming Exhibit

Event to Be Staged Under Auspices of District Boy Scouts.

A dozen Mohawk Indans, led by Chief Larry Williams, will demonstrate to District of Columbia Boy Scouts how the first Americans swim, tomorrow morning at the McKinley Pool, First street between S and T streets northeast.

Worth Shoults, scoutmaster of Troop 20, is staging "a morning of watercraft fun" at the pool beginning at 10 a. m. He has invited the redmen, multi-feathered headdress, and all, to put on an exhibition.

Under the direction of Ira Lee Law, directing instructor of the District Chapter of the American Red Cross, the special life-saving corps of the chapter will give a demonstration of "Modern Red Cross Life-Saving Methods" at 10:45. Contests in fancy diving and racing will follow.

Sneak Thief Gets Radio Set.

Car Count Taken In Terminal Case

Virginia Agencies Making Pennsylvania Avenue Trolly Tally.

J. W. Rich, traffic expert, was employed Saturday by Virginia agencies to make a traffic count of the number of street cars which cross Pennsylvania avenue at Fourteenth street between the hours of 7 and 9 a. m. and 3:30 and 6 p. m. tomorrow and Tuesday.

This was announced Saturday by A. K. Shipe, of the Washington Board of Trade, who is also counsel for the Arlington and Fairfax line. Both the number of cars in both directions and the number of passengers will be recorded.

In addition, today only passengers on the two nearby Virginia railways will be given questionnaires intended to ascertain how many expect to travel north of Pennsylvania avenue, how many are District and Federal employes, at what hour they travel, and other information. The data is intended to be used in another effort to persuade the Public Utilities Commission to alter its ban on a terminal north of the Avenue for the lines to Virginia.

SIXTH MARINES SAIL TO TWO-WEEK CAMP

Capital's Reserve Brigade to Arrive Tonight at Virginia Beach.

The Sixth Brigade, Washington's Marine Corps Reserve unit, under command of Lieut. Col. J. J. Staley, and comprising 1,500 men embarked for two weeks active training at Virginia Beach, yesterday. The brigade boarded the steamer Northland for the trip to Norfolk, from where it will proceed by train to its destination, reaching Camp Pollard late tonight.

When the brigade assembled at its armory on John Marshall place northwest, Maj. Gen. Benjamin H. Fuller, commandant of the Marine Corps, presented colors to Col. Staley. Gen. Fuller also presented commissions to Second Lieuts. Winslow H. Randolph, jr., William E. Combs, William Shepherd and Justin Shook, elevating them to the rank of first lieutenants.

A large gathering of relatives, friends and others attracted by the troop movement, which is the largest of a single branch of the military service out of Washington since the World War, lined streets near the wharf and cheered as the Northland swung into the channel to the strains of "Auld Lang Syne," played by the brigade band.

Included in the brigade are five members of Congress: Maj. Melvin J. Maas, of Minnesota, who will serve as chief of staff, Capt. David S. Hopkins, of Missouri; Capt. Andrew L. Sommers, of New York and Capt. Vincent Carter, of Wyoming.

Grounds to Be Improved At Alice Deal School

Improvement of the grounds of the Alice Deal Junior High School so as to provide a sidewalk to Fessenden street will be started today, Maj. H. L. Robb, assistant engineer commissioner, said Saturday. The school, built at a cost of $475,000, is scheduled to open next month. Because of its position off any thoroughfare, the school has been a problem in accessibility to District authorities. Plans are under way, however, to extend Nebraska avenue so as to provide a better approach.

The National Capital Park and Planning Commission also expects to start work early next month on razing acquired property so that a portion of the proposed Fort drive, which will run adjacent to the school, may be partially constructed.

Policeman Hurt in Arrest Of Occoquan Fugitive

Hayden, 24 years old, of 4812 Fifth street northwest, a policeman attached to the Ninth Precinct, while attempting to arrest William Edmonds, colored, 27 years old, of 50 G street northwest, a fugitive from Occoquan Workhouse, received contusions of the left knee and a sprained left wrist when Edmonds jumped upon him from a shed located in an alley in the rear of 721 Sixth street northeast.

Hayden walked to Casualty Hospital and received treatment for injuries after arresting Edmonds at Union Station after a chase.

THE ONCE OVER

By H. I. PHILLIPS

THOSE EUGENIE MODES.

MILADY looks just a bit blotto—
Her hat's worn far over one ear;
"Eugenie for me!" is her motto;
The empress, she thinks, was a dear.

Her bonnet is rakishly tilted
Far over one side of her head;
It gives her a look rather wilted
And brings back an ear quite dead.

It's set at an angle disturbing—
It gives her a look all askew;
You'd fancy she'd not been observing
The law Mister Volstead put through.

"You seem hotsy-totsy," I tell her,
"In such an off-center old hat;
She answers, "Say, lissen, young feller—
An empress once wore 'em like that!"

One question no more asks my dearie,
I haven't once heard it of late;
It's this—the old time-honored query,
"My hat . . . have I got it on straight?"

MILADY wears skirts that are sweeping
The sidewalk, the street and the floor;
Methinks all the stores have been keeping
The dresses that grandmother wore.

They're stylish, they tell me, and maybe
They are, and excessively chic,
But still it's my judgment, oh baby,
They make you seem rather antique.

Milday is deaf to all reason,
She wants her Parisian modes hot;
She'll be promenading next season
With bustles, believe it or not!

A bustle! Oh, say, have a heart, dear;
Use prudence, I pray, lady fair;
I'm certain you won't look the part, dear!
With all that upholstery there!

A bustle? Declare it's not so, sweet,
Abstain from this fashion, my dear;
Resolve all this style to forego, dead,
And please be yourself, front and rear.

It pains me to see you all playing
The Eugenie modes, hat to boot,
However, I can not help saying
In honesty, girls, you look cute!

1,313 GIVEN OUTINGS AT DISTRICT CAMPS

Two Vacation Places Will Be Closed Today and Tomorrow.

With a record of 1,313 children and mothers given free two weeks' vacations in the country since July 1, Camp Good Will in Rock Creek Park and Camp Pleasant at Blue Plains, D. C., will close today and tomorrow after sending their final parties home. This was announced in a statement Saturday by John Joy Edson, chairman of the summer outings committee of the Associated Charities, which conducts these camps financed by the Community Chest. Of this number 702 were entertained at Camp Good Will, 611 at Camp Pleasant.

Mr. Edson personally inspected both camps last week and expressed himself as highly pleased with the way in which they were managed. He found that even during the spell of cool and rainy weather the campers had been contented and happy, with games supervised by the councilors. He praised the work of Miss Rachel Haviland, superintendent of Camp Good Will, and E. P. Lovette, superintendent of Camp Pleasant, and their staff.

At Camp Pleasant Friday evening the children staged a final program of music and recitations with help of the councilors. Special guests included Judge James A. Cobb, Dr. Emmett J. Scott, secrtary-treasurer of Howard University; Mr. and Mrs. Douglass Whitlock, Mrs. Carrie L. Fearing, Miss Theresa White, Edwin S. Potter and a number of social workers. The entertainment was directed by Mrs. Lovette, assistant superintendent.

Arlington Leader Denies Ely Charge

Republican Holds Absurd Tale of Irregularity at Convention.

L. C. McNemar, of Clarendon, who presided as permanent chairman over the recent Arlington County Republican convention, in a statement yesterday characterized as "grossly absurd" reports there were irregularities in the convention.

The reports were circulated as result of announcement yesterday by M. G. Ely, who was defeated at the convention for the nomination for trial justice, that he would be an independent candidate for the office at the November election.

"As the chairman of that convention, I welcome any one who can prove to me that anything at that convention was not proper," Mr. McNemar declared. "We can not be concerned over any reports that may come from the political camp of a defeated candidate who thinks he can win by leaving the ranks."

STONE PLEDGED AID TO SHIPPING BEFORE BARTER

Said He'd Use Influence for American Vessels in Foreign Sales.

'DIDN'T THINK OF IT' 10 DAYS AFTERWARD

Two Members of Congress Criticize 'Blunder'; Ship Men Ask Hoover Aid.

By EDWARD T. FOLLIARD.

Ten days before the United States and Brazil consummated their big wheat-and-coffee barter, James C. Stone, chairman of the Federal Farm Board, promised that he would do all that he could to have American ships used to haul whatever products the Farm Board might sell to foreign countries.

The promise was contained in a letter written by Chairman Stone on August 11, a copy of which was obtained by The Washington Post yesterday.

The letter, written to Hardin B. Arledge, special representative of the Middle West foreign trade committee, concluded with the following words:

"The board, of course, favors the use of ships flying the American flag, and if any foreign sales are made we will do what we can to have their service used."

British Likely to Get Job.

Nevertheless, when the wheat-coffee trade was announced by Chairman Stone last Friday, ten days later, it was discovered that American ships had been entirely overlooked and that Brazil was to decree what ships would be used in hauling the 25,000,000 bushels of wheat southward and the 1,050,000 bags of coffee northward.

American steamship men are afraid that foreign steamship firms, most likely British, will get the big transportation job, or at least a big part of it. Consequently they are now urging President Hoover to have the deal reopened.

It is estimated that the freight charges on the wheat and coffee will be in excess of $2,000,000.

The Brazilian government has a subsidized steamship line, the Lloyd Brazileiro Line, but, according to American steamship men, this could not haul half of the wheat and coffee.

"Never Thought of It."

Edwin H. Duff, attorney here for the American Steamship Owners Association, which represents the owners of 90 per cent of the merchant ships under the American flag, went to see Chairman Stone after the wheat-coffee deal had been closed. Mr. Duff says that when he asked Chairman Stone why American ships had not been considered, the Farm Board head made the following reply:

"We never thought of that."

In view of this, the correspondence between Chairman Stone and Mr. Arledge is especially interesting. As has been stated, it took place ten days before the wheat and coffee deal went through. At that time negotiations were on for the sale of a quantity of surplus cotton to Germany.

Mr. Arledge's Letter.

On August 10 Mr. Arledge addressed the following letter to Chairman Stone:

"Hon. James C. Stone,
"Chairman Federal Farm Board,
"Washington, D. C.

"My dear Mr. Chairman: May we respectfully urge that if the board sells any of its commodities in Germany or other countries the board specify routing via American-flag ships, and if sales are made by the cooperatives or other private interests the board exercise its good offices to have the shipments made via American-flag ships.

"We know you favor the use of American-flag ships wherever possible and this is simply submitted as a reminder in case any sales are made.

"With kindest regards, I am
"Very truly yours,
"HARDIN B. ARLEDGE."

Chairman Stone Replies.

The next day, Chairman Stone replied as follows:

Mr. Hardin B. Arledge,
Special Representative, Middle West Foreign Trade Committee,
920 Munsey Building,
Washington, D. C.

Dear Mr. Arledge: I have your letter of August 10, in which you urge that if the board sells any of its commodities to Germany or other foreign countries they be routed via American flag ships, and if sales are made by cooperatives the board use its good offices to have the shipments made via American flag ships.

The board, of course, favors the use of ships flying the American flag, and if any foreign sales are made, we will do what we can to have their service used. With kind regards, I am, yours very truly,

JAMES C. STONE,
Chairman.

Reichelderfer Orders Third Degree Inquiry

Pratt Told to Investigate Harker Charges of Police Beating.

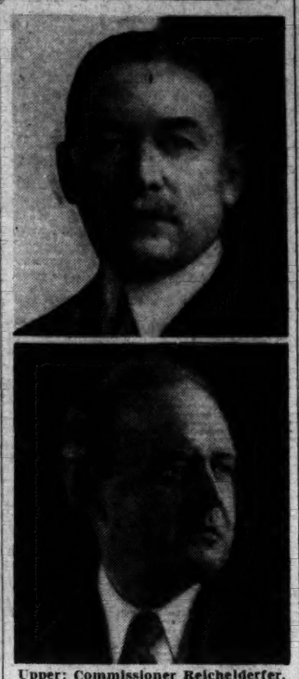
Three separate investigations of the beating First Precinct police are alleged to have administered to James Henry Harker, 24 years old, of 701 North Capitol street, were under way or in prospect yesterday shortly after Judge Robert E. Mattingly, in police court, ordered Harker held for the grand jury on a housebreaking charge.

In view of the Wickersham report on police methods, the District grand jury doubtless will make a complete investigation of the "third degree" accusations, Judge Mattingly declared. He felt, the judge said, that the preliminary hearing was not the proper place to air such charges.

He held that the matter before him was simply a determination that a prima facie case of housebreaking had been made against Harker by the police and that he could not go into matters of defense, which should be heard by a petit jury.

Meantime, Dr. Luther H. Reichelderfer, chairman of the Board of District Commissioners, had instructed Maj. Henry G. Pratt, superintendent of police, to make a most thorough investigation into charges that Harker had been beaten by police.

"We are going to the bottom of this matter at once," he said, pending a report from the police chief. "We certainly have no desire to cover up anybody. If the charges are sustained, there will be several policemen out of jobs very soon."



Upper: Commissioner Reichelderfer. Lower: William W. Bride, Corporation Counsel.

Corporation Counsel William W. Bride also conferred with Maj. Pratt, on instructions from the District Commissioner, regarding Harker's complaint. Mr. Bride impressed Maj. Pratt with the seriousness with which the Commissioners regard the charges

40,000 DEMAND END OF NEW YORK GANGS

Mass Meeting Shouts for Drastic Steps; Legion Leader Menaced.

New York, Aug. 24 (A.P.).—A community shocked by repeated gang killings of innocent citizens roared and stamped its demand for a cessation of lawlessness in a dramatic mass meeting tonight in Madison Square Garden.

While speakers berated prohibition, criticized city officials and called for quick and drastic police activity against gangsters and racketeers before 20,000 persons within the hall another multitude even larger pressed against lines of police who barred them from an already overcrowded forum.

More than 250 policemen were detailed from other duty to control the clamoring crowd in three thoroughfares around the hall. The citizenry had responded to the call to attend the protest meeting in a degree that would have taxed the Central Park area originally designated for the assemblage.

The scheduled speakers were Bainbridge Colby, former United States Secretary of State; United States Senator Robert F. Wagner, Police Commissioner Edward Mulrooney and Charles Francis Coe, a criminologist. However, it was Edward J. Neary, State commissioner of the American Legion, who sprang the sensation of the session when he announced from the platform that an hour before he left for the meeting his life had been threatened by an anonymous person if he went to the Garden.

Neary, leading a group of legion members, most of them in uniform mounted the platform and said:

"Just before I left home a man giving the name of 'Mr. Ely' called me on the telephone. He said, in a threatening voice:

"'Stay away from that rally tonight if you know when you are well off. If you go there you will get yours—you'll be bumped off.'"

"That," shouted Neary, "is a sample of the kind of people you've got to deal with at this meeting."

While his followers rose and stood at attention Neary then formally placed at the disposal of the law enforcement authorities the services of

NYE BODY TO REOPEN BISHOP CASE TODAY

Inquiry Into Campaign Fund Use Will Begin With Slemp on Stand.

(Associated Press.)

The Senate campaign funds committee will resume today its inquiry into the use of anti-Smith funds by Bishop James Cannon in 1928. The hearings were advanced a day to permit examination of C. Bascom Slemp, Republican national committeeman for Virginia and former secretary to President Coolidge. Mr. Slemp plans to sail on Wednesday for France.

The committee is investigating the complaint of Representative Tinkham (Republican), of Massachusetts, that Bishop Cannon failed to account to Congress for all of the $65,300 entrusted to him as chairman of the anti-Smith drive in Virginia, in 1928, by E. C. Jameson, New York capitalist.

On Wednesday the committee will begin questioning half a dozen bank officials in an effort to locate Bishop Cannon's bank deposits during the 1928 campaign.

It was announced that H. G. Luhring, treasurer of the Greater Norfolk Anti-Smith Democratic Club, has been subpenaed, and also that Clarence True Wilson, head of the Board of Temperance and Morals of the Methodist Episcopal Church, was sought. Dr. Wilson sent word that he was detained on the Pacific Coast and he suggested that the committee call his associate, Deets Pickett.

London, Aug. 24 (A.P.).—Bishop James Cannon, jr., of the Methodist Church South, in Europe on business in connection with missionary work in the Congo, said today he had no objection to investigation of his activities in the last presidential campaign by a properly constituted court. That he does not agree, however, that a Senate committee operating under no restrictions has a right to conduct an investigation concerning definite complaints of criminal conduct.

Justice Holmes Stricken At Massachusetts Home

Beverly Farms, Mass., Aug. 24 (U. P.).—Oliver Wendell Holmes, veteran member of the United States Supreme Court, has been ill at his residence here for the last two days, it was learned tonight.

The 90-year-old jurist, one of the most distinguished lawyers in the Nation, was stricken with exhaustion Saturday.

Man Steals Plane to Kidnap His 2 Children From Wife

Independence, Calif., Aug. 24 (U. P.).—A house painter driven to desperation by marital troubles set out on a wild flight from Bishop in a stolen airplane today, taking with him the two children a court had intrusted to his estranged wife. The man, Henry Billingsley, 49, of Lone Pine, abducted the children from their mother's home while she was at work.

Tonight, after many hours of search, the red and silver plane Billingsley took from an airport at Bishop, was found abandoned 2 miles south of Lone Pine. Lone Pine is 16 miles south of Independence. The landing gear was wrecked.

Billingsley took up aviation two months ago as a means of getting the children away from his wife.

There was no indication of the direction taken by Billingsley and the children, Jean, 8, and Harry, 5.

"We are sending out a party to start a ground search," it was announced at the sheriff's office here. "Up to now, we didn't have any idea where Billingsley was going. Now we know what to do."

Billingsley asked his flying instructor at Bishop to give the children an airplane ride today. Then he went to the home of his estranged wife, Mrs. Rachel Billingsley. She was at work at the Interstate Telegraph Co.

Billingsley persuaded the children to leave their play and join him. He took them to the airport and told Pilot Shoemaker that they were ready to start. The father and the children climbed into the cabin of the ship. Shoemaker turned the propeller and as the engine began to roar Billingsley shouted:

"Get out of the way! We're going alone!"

Terrified, Shoemaker stood on the field and saw the plane careen wildly as it moved down the runway and finally rose.

GIFFORD PLANS DRIVE FOR CASH BY LOCAL UNITS

Stimulation Expected to Avoid Necessity for Federal Relief.

EFFORT TO BE MADE TO AROUSE COUNTRY

National Funds Campaigns to Be Synchronized and Date Set Later.

(United Press.)

The Federal program for relief of distress next winter will be "a national drive to raise local funds," Walter S. Gifford, named by President Hoover to direct relief work, announced yesterday.

In brief, the plan is to stimulate private sources of relief and to intensify a spirit of responsibility among local, county and State governments, in hope that Federal aid will not be needed.

By means of a concerted national campaign, by personal contacts with relief organizations and by speeches over national radio networks, in addition to direct statements to newspapers, Gifford said he hoped the country would be stirred to a pitch where it would meet the unemployment relief situation adequately. The time for the national drive will be announced later.

Federal Aid Is Avoided.

But he left the way wide open for Federal funds if they are needed. Forty newspaper correspondents questioned him, at his first press conference, as to what would happen if local, county and State organizations, working under his direction, failed to raise the money necessary for adequate relief. Each time he replied:

"We'll cross that bridge when we come to it."

Gifford had just returned from a week-end with the President at Rapidan Camp, along with Arthur Croxton, head of the President's emergency committee, when he opened up his new office at the Department of Commerce and called a press conference.

The first surprise was at Gifford's office. He is president of the American Telephone and Telegraph Co., one of the greatest industrial organizations of all history. Popular imagination pictured him in an office of movie proportions. But he was found standing at a little desk, jammed by a window against the end of a slightly larger conference table.

No Promises or Predictions.

There were no jade fountain pen sets or rugs or Russian samovars. On one wall was a drab business map of the country. As squad after squad of newspaper men, anxious to see the head of the newest presidential commission, jammed into the room Gifford said in some surprise:

"We'd better go into the secretary's office, I suppose."

The gist of a 40-minute question-and-answer talk that followed was that Gifford believes the non-federal resources of the country can handle the relief situation; that he doesn't plan to make any promises or predictions; but that he will devote all the time necessary from his great business to do his best to make the relief campaign a success.

Gifford, short, slim, baldish, with clipped light brown mustache and keen light grey eyes, held a black cigar in a somewhat nervous left hand as he started his conference. In his right he held a prepared statement, copies of which had been distributed in advance. This was his own summary of his plans.

It revealed first that this newest presidential commission is to be

Mrs. McCormick Sued Over Campaign Radio

Chicago, Aug. 24 (A.P.).—An echo of Mrs. Ruth Hanna McCormick's radio speeches during her unsuccessful campaign last November for the United States Senate was heard today when suit for $200 was filed against her by the German radio hour of Station WCFL, Chicago. The suit charged that she contracted to use $300 worth of time on the air, paid $100, and neglected to pay the rest.

Scores Enter Boats As Vessel Grounds

Several Yachts Flounder, Struck by Steamer in Marthas Vineyard.

Vineyard Haven, Mass., Aug. 24. (U.P.).—Nearly three score of persons, including 28 passengers, took to lifeboats late tonight when the steamship Naushon, plying between New Bedford and islands in Marthas Vineyard, ran aground during a squall.

The passengers and crew of the Naushon—a small steam vessel piloted by Capt. Webster Gifford—were brought ashore and carried from the boats by Coast Guardsmen from several stations.

The 200-foot coastal schooner Alice Wentworth was damaged considerably when the Naushon ripped into her. The 60-foot pleasure yacht Selkade, owned by Calvin G. Child, of New York, was overturned as the Naushon drifted helplessly toward the mainland. Several small pleasure boats foundered when hit by the steamer.

M'DONALD, FACING PARTY IR SEEKS COOPERATIVE CABINE AS LABOR GOVERNMENT QUI'S

Collapse Was 'Dictated' by U. S. Reserve Bank, London Paper Says.

DOLE CUT INSISTED ON AS CREDIT CONDITION

Acceptance of 'Ultimatum' Held Blow to Prestige and Patriotism.

London (Tuesday), Aug. 25 (A.P.). The London Daily Herald, Great Britain's chief labor organ, today gives the most prominent place to a story in which it charges that the fall of the MacDonald government and the establishment of a new national administration was "dictated" by United States bankers.

The story says that the $250,000,000 credit recently acquired by the Bank of England was now nearly exhausted and that in seeking new money from the United States the Bank of England was informed by the Federal Reserve Bank that fresh credit could only be granted if drastic economies were made in the "dole."

"Virtual Ultimatum."

"The late government," the paper says, "was informed by the Federal Reserve Bank that credits would only be granted provided specific and considerable economies were made at once in the administration, or in the actual benefit paid under the unemployment insurance scheme.

"This virtual ultimatum from New York bankers played a vital part in dividing the late cabinet on the issue of a 10 per cent reduction in unemployment benefits."

"The insistence by the Bank of England on the need for credits—even on these terms—," the paper added, "heightened the existing clash within the cabinet. It has been made absolutely clear that the credit will not be forthcoming unless and until measures which the United States bankers consider satisfactory are put into operation by the new cabinet."

Called Blow to Prestige.

In an editorial in this morning's issue the Herald said:

"Where is the patriotism, we may ask, in allowing the Federal Reserve Bank of New York to dictate, as a condition for further credit to the Bank of England, the policies to be pursued in relation to the unemployment benefit?

"This isn't patriotism, but acceptance of a dictatorship, not even of a British bank, but of international finance. It is a blow to British prestige equaled only by the terms of the Versailles Treaty."

Gifford Unhurt in Crash Of White House Auto

(Associated Press.)

The White House automobile which brought Walter S. Gifford back to Washington yesterday after his week-end at the President's Rapidan camp was involved in a collision at Fairfax, Va. No one was hurt.

The car, carrying Gifford and Henry M. Robinson, of California, old friend of the President and Mrs. Hoover, collided with a light automobile driven by William Squear, of Warrenton, Va., at a street intersection. The damage was slight and the White House machine overtook the others before they reached Washington.

Plea Sent Hoover For Parley on Coal

Miners' Officers and Ohio Business Men Join in Request.

Gloucester, Ohio, Aug 24 (A.P.).—In a telegram addressed today to President Hoover, officers of the United Mine Workers asked him to call a national conference of coal operators and union representatives in an effort to bring stability to the industry.

The telegram was sent after Gloucester business and professional men met with Percy Tetlow, Lee Hall and David Watkin, officials of the miners' union. The telegram read:

"A meeting of miners, business men, professional men and other citizens of Gloucester, Ohio, was held here and a resolution was unanimously adopted petitioning you to call a national conference of coal operators and representatives of the United Mine Workers of America to make an effort to bring stability to the distressed bituminous coal industry. The misery and poverty now existing among the miners and in mining communities demands at least a supreme effort to bring relief at the earliest possible moment."

Baldwin Holds Union Guarantee to World

Coalition No Sacrifice of Party Principles Considering Gravity of Task, Says Conservative Leader, Foreseeing Election Later.

London, Aug. 24 (A.P.)—Stanley Baldwin, Conservative leader, issued a statement late tonight giving the reasons why the Conservatives consented to enter the national government.

"The formation of a national government, containing members of the three parties in the state," the statement said, "is a guarantee to all concerned, at home and abroad, that the gravity of the situation is realized by those to whom the facts have been made known and that they are resolved at once to take the measures necessary to put the finances of the country in order.

"We are face to face with a grave national crisis, which, if it were not taken in hand with courage and firmness, would be fraught with serious consequences to every man, woman and child throughout the country.

"But our country always gives proof of its greatness in times of national emergency and I have sufficient confidence in our people to know that this occasion will be no exception to the rule. The crisis with which we are faced demands prompt and immediate measures and dissolution of Parliament at this stage, followed by a general election, would be disastrous. This fact dominates the situation at the moment.

"The only means by which the national emergency can be met is close cooperation between all the parties. For this purpose we Conservatives have considered, for a limited period of time, to enter a national government which will be formed for the express purpose of carrying out such measures as are required to balance the budget and restore confidence in our national credit, and there is no question of any permanent coalition.

"The national government has been allotted a definite task, and on its completion it is understood that Parliament be dissolved as soon as circumstances permit and that each of the parties be left free to place its own policy before the electors for approval.

"By this means no party will be called upon to sacrifice any principle in which it believes. But the gravity of the crisis is such that it is the bounden duty of everyone who studies the welfare of our country to put aside party differences for the time being and cooperate in the national interests. In that task we Conservatives will play our part boldly and courageously."

ROSTER IS EXPECTED TO BE FILLED TODAY

Leaders in Conference Set September 8 Tentatively as Parliament Date.

London, Aug. 24 (A.P.).—Ramsay MacDonald's Socialist-Labor government passed into history today with the resignation of the prime minister and his cabinet.

Almost immediately after the cabinet resigned, King George V instructed MacDonald with the formation of a new national government composed of the leaders of all of the three major parties, whose business for the moment would be burying politics and extricating Great Britain from her economic and financial difficulties.

Tonight MacDonald, Stanley Baldwin and Sir Herbert Samuel, representing the Labor party, the Conservatives and the Liberals, were in close conference going over the possibilities of the personnel of the new government.

It was thought that at least by tomorrow or the next day a full cabinet roster can be presented to the king and sworn in.

Not the Usual Coalition.

An official statement issued from 10 Downing street tonight explained:

"The specific object for which the new government is being formed is to deal with the national emergency that now exists. It is not to be a coalition government in the usual sense of the term, but a government of cooperation for this one purpose. When that purpose is achieved the political parties will resume their respective positions."

The statement went on:

"In order to correct without delay the excess of national expenditure over revenue, it is anticipated that Parliament will be summoned September 8, when proposals will be submitted to the house for a very large reduction in expenditure and for provision, on an equitable basis, of the further funds which will be required to balance the budget.

"As the commerce and well-being not only of the British nation but of a large part of the civilized world has been built up and rests upon well-founded confidence in the pound sterling, the new government will take whatever steps may be deemed by them necessary to justify the maintenance of that confidence unimpaired."

MacDonald's Position Critical.

There were those here tonight who believed that the result of today's dramatic events might be political suicide for MacDonald and the Labor ministers whose lot was cast with his. It was generally agreed that the Labor party was split and it might be unable to function as an entity for some time to come. The belief also existed that today's events may mean the expulsion of MacDonald and his supporters from the Labor party.

Both praise and censure were heaped upon the gray head of the wiry Scotchman tonight. In some labor quarters he was denounced as a traitor to the party, while in others he was termed the hero of the hour, who by putting his personal ambitions aside is risking his political life for the good of the nation.

The new national government is expected to contain about twelve ministers, as compared to the twenty in an ordinary British administration. Among those who, it was believed, possibly would fill posts in the new government besides MacDonald are Stanley Baldwin, former premier and leader of the Conservatives; Lord Irwin, former Viceroy of India, who has been mentioned as a possible new foreign secretary; Sir Samuel Hoare, Sir Austin Chamberlain, Neville Chamberlain, former premier Lloyd George (if his health permits), Lord Reading, Sir Herbert Samuel, Sir Donald MacLean, Philip Snowden and J. H. Thomas.

Court Bulletin Tells Story.

Tonight's brief court circular from Buckingham Palace told the story of the day's events.

"The Right Hon. Ramsay MacDonald," it said, "had an audience with the king this afternoon and tendered his resignation as prime minister and first lord of the treas-

FLOOD REFUGEES DIE IN CHINESE TYPHOON

Tempest in Yangtze Valley Perils Relief Workers; Cities Menaced.

Hankow, Tuesday, Aug. 25 (U.P.).—A typhoon-like storm today swept the desolate Yangtze Valley region, where countless thousands of dead and dying were left in the wake of China's most disastrous flood.

Hundreds of refugees who had barely escaped the flood's ravages were drowned as the tempest struck the devastated region. Descending with terrific force, the storm demolished thousands of houses and hundreds of sampans, tore down fences and high walls, uprooted trees and sent a new wave of terror through the acutely-suffering region.

The storm had not diminished in intensity at 10 a. m.

The vast flooded area resembled a storm-tossed sea. Ships bearing refugees and relief workers through the once populous valley were imperiled.

Typhoon signals were flying along the river from Shanghai to Shansi, and heavy rains threatened to increase the suffering.

Hankow, Aug. 24 (A.P.).—Apprehensive residents today felt a storm would complete the doom of the three cities, Hanyand, Wuchang, and Hankow, by blowing such volumes of water against them that undermined foundations would be certain to collapse.

More than 400,000 refugees are clinging to a precarious existence on the islanded crests of two hills behind Wuchang. Forced to drink the polluted waters of the swollen streams, the refugees, crowded together like sheep, are ravaged by fever and dysentery.

In the native section of this city, hunger crazed refugees quartered in

FRANCE ACTS ALONE ON PACT WITH ITALY

New Memorandum Withheld From Britain and U. S. Until Next Week.

Paris, Aug. 24 (U.P.).—The government sent a new memorandum to Italy today in connection with resumption of negotiations for a naval limitations agreement, which will be on a strictly bilateral basis.

The manner in which the new negotiations were started shows that France wants other countries to stay out of the discussions. British representatives aided in three-party negotiations which were supposed to have settled the Franco-Italian controversy last spring, but which later collapsed.

The new memorandum will form the basis for resuming conversations between French and Italian statesmen at Geneva during the September League of Nations meetings. Foreign Minister Aristide Briand probably will take a leading role in the discussions, conferring with Foreign Minister Dino Grandi of Italy.

The memorandum will not be communicated to Great Britain or the United States until next week because of France's desire to keep the matter a strictly two-power problem. Rene Massigli, the French naval expert, and several other naval authorities will accompany the French League of Nations delegation to Geneva to participate in the negotiations.

There was a general belief that the chances for success of the negotiations have increased recently. Both countries have shown a willingness to reach an agreement which would cut down the expense of their navies. It is generally admitted that such an accord is necessary for success of the 1932 general disarmament conference at Geneva.

Ecuador's President Quits; Larrea Alba Assumes Post

Congress Accepts Ayora's Resignation; Washington Not Advised.

Quito, Ecuador, Aug. 24 (A.P.).—President Isidro Ayora of Ecuador resigned tonight, shortly after he had accepted the resignation of his cabinet.

The president presented his resignation to congress and it was accepted with only one negative vote, cast by Ingeniero Manuel Navarro, president of the chamber of deputies.

Previously the entire cabinet had resigned and President Avora had appointed Col. Luis Larrea Alba as minister of government.

The decree naming Col. Larrea Alba had been read to the people, who shouted protests. A crowd swept past a guard, entered the halls of Congress, and shouted, "Down with the government of Col. Larrea Alba!"

At the time the cabinet's resignations were presented, a delegation of officers of the Chimborazo Battalion

FLOWERS TO LIVING URGED BY MINISTER, RECALLING LINCOLN

Dr. Edgar DeWitt Jones, From Detroit, Is Guest in Local Puplit.

Both Suffered During Life Only to Be Praised After Death, He Asserts.

Taking for his text the incident of Mary of Bethany, who gave her gift to Jesus while He was alive, and Joseph of Arimathea, who rendered his service to the Christ after His death on the cross, Dr. Edgar DeWitt Jones, pastor of Central Woodward Christian Church, Detroit, Mich., preached yesterday morning at the First Congregational Church.

Applying the theme of his sermon to the present-day attitude of rendering praise to a man after his death, while in his life he was only criticized, Dr. Jones said: "I have been attending Lincoln celebrations for many years and am accustomed to hear the great Kentuckian eulogized and praised to the skies. Such homage is due one of the supreme figures of all times, yet when I hear eloquent speakers lavish eulogies on Abraham Lincoln I recall how few roses he had in his lifetime. He was never a popular hero in the days of his flesh.

"I recall that when 'the bronzed, lank man, prairie lawyer, master of us all,' was bearing the colossal burden of State a partisan arose in Congress and said, 'You might search hell over and find no more miserable wretch than Abraham Lincoln!' Would that the 'captain of the mighty heart' might have had a little of the praise during his lifetime that was heaped upon his memory, now that he has gone from among us."

Wilson's Case Called Similar.

Referring to Woodrow Wilson and applying the same thought, Dr. Jones went on: "During the World War an American President dreamed a great dream of the world leagued together to further the cause of peace on earth and good will toward men. In ardent sincerity this man, when there seemed no other solution, led us into a war to end war, ever keeping in mind the idea of an international agreement for world peace. The aftermath of the world conflict involved him in controversy, broke him physically and brought upon his head an avalanche of detraction and bitter criticism such as happened to no other American President save Lincoln. He went to his death a victim of the war as truly as any soldier who fell on Flanders Field. After his death eulogies fell from the lips of those who had bitterly assailed him in his life. Editorials praised him to the skies and the Nation wept at his coffin. Would that he had had some of these roses when the days were long and the way was bitter; would that some of this praise might have been spoken when Woodrow Wilson was alive bearing his herculean burden of state, engulfed by all the hates released by disillusionment and the war-weariness that folowed the armistice."

Dr. Jones pointed out how belated kindnesses and postponed offices of sympathy often haunt us because we have not performed them at the appropriate time. "It costs so little to be kind," he said, "means so much to be considerate and is so Christ-like to forgive."

Pluckers of Thistle.

Making a religious application of the same idea, Dr. Jones said that we should follow the example set by Christ who magnified life and minimized death. He said that too often we reverse this order and are strangely forgetful in the midst of life and when death and disaster come to those about us we seek to offset our sins of omission by opulent offerings brought too late to accomplish any great good.

"Abraham Lincoln never wrote anything more revealing and more practical," Dr. Jones said, "than the sentiment he set down in his letter to his dear friend Joshua Speed, in which he said: 'Speed, die when I may, I want it said of me by those who knew me best that I always plucked a thistle and planted a flower where a flower would grow.'"

In conclusion, Dr. Jones said: "Already there are too many organizations, orders, fraternities, and the like in this modern world of ours, but I am minded to suggest one more, namely, Pluckers of Thistle and Planters of Roses—Roses of Bethany."

Car Count Taken In Terminal Case

Virginia Agencies Making Pennsylvania Avenue Trolly Tally.

J. W. Rich, traffic expert, was employed Saturday by Virginia agencies to make a traffic count of the number of street cars which cross Pennsylvania avenue at Fourteenth street between the hours of 7 and 9 a. m. and 3:30 and 6 p. m. tomorrow and Tuesday.

This was announced Saturday by A. K. Shipe, of the Washington Board of Trade, who is also counsel for the Arlington and Fairfax line. Both the number of cars in both directions and the number of passengers will be recorded.

In addition, today only passengers on the two nearby Virginia railways will be given questionnaires intended to ascertain how many expect to travel north of Pennsylvania avenue, how many are District and Federal employes, at what hour they travel, and other information. The data is intended to be used in another effort to persuade the Public Utilities Commission to alter its ban on a terminal north of the Avenue for the lines to Virginia.

VETERANS TO WEIGH JOB STUDY PROGRAM

Disabled Men Will Meet at District Board Room September 2.

A national check on the number of disabled veterans of the World War out of work is being conducted by the Department of Labor and the United States Veterans' Bureau, in cooperation with the Disabled American Veterans of the World War, it was learned last night.

Progress in the survey will be discussed by E. Claude Babcock, national commander of the organization, and assistant secretary of the Civil Service Commission, at a mass meeting for disabled veterans of the District September 2 at 8 p. m. in the board room of the District Building.

All ex-service men, without regard to rank and affiliation, are invited to attend, Melvin Brotman, Federal Chapter, No. 6, chairman of the arrangements committee, announced last night. Other matters of interest to members of the order will be taken up, he said.

Servant Is Robbed As Burglary Fails

Men Greet Caretaker at Door With Guns; Take $104 in Valuables.

Edward Murphy, colored, 26 years old, caretaker at the home of Lieut. Lyman S. Berry, 4413 Klingle street northwest, told police that when he returned home early yesterday morning he was met at the basement door by two unidentified white men.

Both flourished guns, he said, and demanded to know the location of the family jewelry. Upon being told that the family had taken it away with them the burglars entered Murphy's room in the basement and robbed it of clothing and valuables valued at $104. After the robbery they left in an old sedan.

Murphy said that both of the robbers were short, one of slender build and the other heavy.

THE ONCE OVER

By H. I. PHILLIPS

THOSE EUGENIE MODES.

MILADY looks just a bit blotto—
Her hat's worn far over one ear;
"Eugenie for me!" is her motto;
The empress, she thinks, was a dear.

Her bonnet is rakishly tilted
Far over one side of her head;
It gives her a look rather wilted
And brings back an ear quite dead.

It's set at an angle disturbing—
It gives her a look all askew;
You'd fancy she'd not been observing
The law Mister Volstead put through.

"You seem hoisy-toisy," I tell her,
"In such an off-center old hat;"
She answers, "Say, lissen, young feller—
An empress once wore 'em like that!"

One question no more asks my dearie,
I haven't once heard it of late;
It's this—the old time-honored query,
"My hat . . . have I got it on straight?"

MILADY wears skirts that are sweeping
The sidewalk, the street and the floor;
Methinks all the stores have been keeping
The dresses that grandmother wore.

They're stylish, they tell me, and maybe
They are, and excessively chic,
But still it's my judgment, oh baby,
They make you seem rather antique.

Milday is deaf to all reason,
She wants her Parisian modes hot;
She'll be promenading next season
With bustles, believe it or not!

A bustle! Oh, say, have a heart, dear;
Use prudence, I pray, lady fair;
I'm certain you won't look the part, dear!
With all that upholstery there!

A bustle? Declare it's not so, sweet,
Abstain from this fashion, my dear;
Resolve all this style to forego, dead,
And please be yourself, front and rear.

It pains me to see you all playing
The Eugenie modes, hat to boot,
However, I can not help saying
In honesty, girls, you look cute!

SIXTH MARINES SAIL TO TWO-WEEK CAMP

Capital's Reserve Brigade to Arrive Tonight at Virginia Beach.

The Sixth Brigade, Washington's Marine Corps Reserve unit, under command of Lieut. Col. J. J. Staley, and comprising 1,500 men embarked for two weeks active training at Virginia Beach, yesterday. The brigade boarded the steamer Northland for the trip to Norfolk, from where it will proceed by train to its destination, reaching Camp Pollard late tonight.

When the brigade assembled at its armory on John Marshall place northwest, Maj. Gen. Benjamin H. Fuller, commandant of the Marine Corps, presented colors to Col. Staley. Gen. Fuller also presented commissions to Second Lieuts. Winslow H. Randolph, jr., William E. Combs, William Shepherd and Justin Shook, elevating them to the rank of first lieutenants.

A large gathering of relatives, friends and others attracted by the troop movement, which is the largest of a single branch of the military service out of Washington since the World War, lined streets near the wharf and cheered as the Northland swung into the channel to the strains of "Auld Lang Syne," played by the brigade band.

Included in the brigade are five members of Congress: Maj. Melvin J. Maas, of Minnesota, who will serve as chief of staff, Capt. David S. Hopkins, of Missouri; Capt. Andrew L. Sommers, of New York and Capt. Vincent Carter, of Wyoming.

Grounds to Be Improved At Alice Deal School

Improvement of the grounds of the Alice Deal Junior High School so as to provide a sidewalk to Fessenden street will be started today, Maj. H. L. Robb, assistant engineer commissioner, said Saturday. The school, built at a cost of $475,000, is scheduled to open next month. Because of its position off any thoroughfare, the school has been a problem in accessibility to District authorities. Plans are under way, however, to extend Nebraska avenue so as to provide a better approach.

The National Capital Park and Planning Commission also expects to start work early next month on razing acquired property so that a portion of the proposed Fort drive, which will run adjacent to the school, may be partially constructed.

1,313 GIVEN OUTINGS AT DISTRICT CAMPS

Two Vacation Places Will Be Closed Today and Tomorrow.

With a record of 1,313 children and mothers given free two weeks' vacations in the country since July 1, Camp Good Will in Rock Creek Park and Camp Pleasant at Blue Plains, D. C., will close today and tomorrow after sending their final parties home. This was announced in a statement Saturday by John Joy Edson, chairman of the summer outings committee of the Associated Charities, which conducts these camps financed by the Community Chest. Of this number 702 were entertained at Camp Good Will, 611 at Camp Pleasant.

Mr. Edson personally inspected both camps last week and expressed himself as highly pleased with the way in which they were managed. He found that even during the spell of cool and rainy weather the campers had been contented and happy, with games supervised by the councilors. He praised the work of Miss Rachel Haviland, superintendent of Camp Good Will, and E. P. Lovette, superintendent of Camp Pleasant, and their staff.

At Camp Pleasant Friday evening the children staged a final program of music and recitations with help of the councilors. Special guests included Judge James A. Cobb, Dr. Emmett J. Scott, secrtary-treasurer of Howard University; Mr. and Mrs. Douglass Whitlock, Mrs. Carrie L. Fearing, Miss Theresa White, Edwin S. Potter and a number of social workers. The entertainment was directed by Mrs. Lovette, assistant superintendent.

Arlington Leader Denies Ely Charge

Republican Holds Absurd Tale of Irregularity at Convention.

L. C. McNemar, of Clarendon, who presided as permanent chairman over the recent Arlington County Republican convention, in a statement yesterday characterized as "grossly absurd" reports there were irregularities in the convention.

The reports were circulated as result of announcement yesterday by M. G. Ely, who was defeated at the convention for the nomination for trial justice, that he would be an independent candidate for the office at the November election.

"As the chairman of that convention, I welcome any one who can prove to me that anything at that convention was not proper," Mr. McNemar declared. "We can not be concerned over any reports that may come from the political camp of a defeated candidate who thinks he can win by leaving the ranks."
